Government To Run Marguerite

The provincial government will again operate the Princess Marguerite service this summer because two leasing proposals from private industry were not acceptable.

Transport Minister Jack Davis announced the government's decision today and said regular service between Seattle and Victoria will begin May 21.

But new labor contracts have still not been negotiated with the ferry unions and start of the service could hinge on completion of the wage agreements.

Two bids to lease the vessel were received by the government, while other firms who had expressed an interest backed off after examining costs and possible income from the service, said Davis.

Sea-Vic Ltd. bid to operate the ship for one year, renewable for five years, but Davis said the company is not registered in Canada.

Harbor Ferries Ltd. of Vancouver did not give a firm proposal, according to the minister, "but merely an offer to manage the vessel on a profit-sharing basis."

Davis said "documentation as to the probable costs and profit outlook in both cases was incomplete."

"Obviously the Princess Marguerite's operations are marginal at best. Were we to charge depreciation on the B.C. government's $2 million investment in the ship, they would be losing money," he said.

The B.C. government now has no alternative but to operate the Marguerite providing that labor contracts with the three unions involved can be concluded to "meet with Anti-Inflation Board approval," said Davis.

The government will try to keep losses at a minimum to recover some of its investment in the ship and he added its finances will "all depend on how well it is managed."

This year the ship will provide daily service between Seattle and Victoria but will not go to Port Angeles.

B.C. SEAT BELT LAW

Compulsory seat belt legislation will be introduced by the provincial government later this session.

Transport Minister Jack Davis said today B.C.'s law will be closely patterned after Ontario's legislation which he said is working effectively and "anything Ontario can do, we can do better."

The minister did not describe details of how the system would work but violators would be subject to fines.

Jubilee Strikes 6 a.m. Tuesday

The Hospital Employees Union will strike Royal Jubilee Hospital at 6 a.m. Tuesday, union secretary-manager Jack Gerow said today. A strike is also possible at Victoria General later this week, he added. No date has been set, however.

Gerow said a picket line will go up around the Jubilee at 6 a.m. Tuesday, stopping everything but essential workers and goods. He said the picket line will stop all garbage pickup, most laundry and some food deliveries.

However, the provincial Labor Relations Board has designated 59 of the 1,163 HEU employees as essential and has declared that 769 of the hospital's 950 beds must be kept in service.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, Jubilee executive director, said the hospital went into action with a contingency plan over the weekend and is ready to continue full medical service for the patients in the designated 769 beds.

Between Friday and 1 p.m. Sunday the hospital began discharging patients who were recuperating from operations and 326 were sent home.

At the same time, 68 patients were admitted for emergency care, for a net reduction of 258 patients.

Pickles said 329 beds are for long-term illnesses, including veterans in Memorial Pavilion, and these patients will not be moved. They will continue to get full care.

In addition, at least 377 beds will be available for acute care patients. As of this morning, there were 304 patients in these beds, leaving 73 available for additional patients.

These new patients will be emergency cases only. Full services will be available for emergency operations. The emergency ward is open but where patients have a choice (for example, a broken arm) they probably should go to the emergency ward at Victoria General.

All elective surgery has been cancelled at the Jubilee. One exception, said Pickles, is open heart surgery, which will resume some time this week despite the strike.

The patients will be admitted on a priority basis with the most urgent cases first. It takes two full days of tests after admitting before the

BUDGET MAY 25

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal budget will be presented Tuesday, May 25, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald announced today.

The budget — the first presented by Macdonald since succeeding John Turner — seems certain to include an increase in the price of crude oil, now $8 a barrel.

Ferry Rates Firm

There is no chance of a ferry fare review prior to the scheduled June 1 doubling of fares, Transport Minister Jack Davis said today.

The minister said he has not read weekend reports about Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair promising a review of the new ferry fares but stressed there are no plans to take a second look.

He said he would be "very surprised" if the new rates were ever rolled back, although in the long term the government plans to set up a regulatory system for reviewing all government charges to consumers.

But that process is likely many months away, he said.

At some period long in the future "maybe five or 10 years from now" a fare rollback on the ferries might be ordered, said Davis, but with costs where they stand today it will not happen for some time.

Mair has denied reports which quoted him as saying he expected a review of the rates before the June 1 increases go into effect.

Mair was quoted as telling the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities' convention Friday the new fares will hurt the tourist industry and the government would likely review them.

"I can't remember the questions or the answers I gave," he said Sunday(referring to a 30-minute question period after his speech to the Campbell River convention. "But I certainly didn't indicate that the government is planning any review. I wasn't speaking for the government or the department."

Meanwhile, the four Vancouver Island labor councils expressed their dissatisfaction Saturday with the doubling, and in some cases tripling of ferry fares. They met at Nanaimo and sent a telegram to Premier Bennett requesting a meeting to discuss the layoff of 420 ferry workers and the effect of the fare increases.

Labor delegates said the new fares will constitute a major threat to the economy of Vancouver Island and the Sunshine Coast.

Special instrument (right) "exposes" Nootka's inner tracts

When a Whale Is Blue . . .

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

It could be spring fever.

If it is, it's the most expensive bout in history.

Nootka, mate of Sealand of the Pacific's killer whale Haida, has been off her feed for several days.

Sealand manager Angus Matthews said today after days of mecial testing an international team of experts has been unable to diagnose why she is not eating.

"It's pretty hard to believe but it could be spring fever," he said.

Matthews, who was married on Saturday, has postponed his honeymoon until Nootka is off the shoals.

Assisting Sealand's veterinarian Dr. Allan Hoey in taking tests of Nootka today was Dr. John Allen, a marine mannal expert from New Zealand.

Allen was attending an international conference of scientists in Seattle last week and flew to Victoria on learning of Nootka's problem.

Also on the team examining Nootka was Dr. Jay Sweeney, a research marine veterinarian, who works at the United States naval marine centre in San Diego.

When blood samples and other tersts failed to show any cause why Nootka should be off her food, two doctors from the University of Washington's hospital in Seattle were flown by charter plane to Sealand on Friday.

The two doctors are gastroenterologists.

2 Men Gunned Down In City Club Argument

Two men were gunned down before 150 people at the Dockyard Recreation Association Club Sunday night and a 43-year-old Esquimalt man is in custody charged with two counts of attempted murder.

Joseph Halasz of 819 Wollaston appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning and was remanded to Friday for plea and bail hearing.

He is charged in connection with the shooting of Richard Cory Small, 32, of 519 Constance, and John Warren Ingham, 29, of 825 Admirals.

Both are in Victoria General Hospital. Small is in poor condition with a bullet wound to his neck. Ingham, wounded in his chest, is in fair condition.

An Esquimalt police spokesman said the shooting occurred shortly after 11 p.m. He said an argument had apparently broken out between three men and one of them pulled a handgun and fired twice.

The spokesman said three members of the Esquimalt police force and two Military Police attended and found Small and Ingham sprawled on the floor with club members administering first aid.

He said another man was off to one side sitting in a chair and being watched by other club members who told police they had disarmed him.

Police said a .25 calibre semi-automatic Browning was seized.

WORKERS' SABOTAGE AFFECTING OLYMPICS

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Rouleau, chairman of the Olympic installations board, said Sunday that progress on the main stadium site has been affected by a work slowdown and acts of sabotage by some plumbers and electricians.

"The completion of the stadium is not yet in question," Rouleau told The Canadian Press. "But if we have problems like this for a week we may be in trouble."

If the work disruptions which started late last week continue, they could force the closure of the construction site, he said. But he added that he hopes a shutdown will not be necessary.

"Most of the workers on the site have been working very hard and I lift my hat to them," Rouleau said in a telephone interview. "But some of the plumbers and electricians have been cutting pipes and wires, and I've had enough."

He did not specify the estimated cost of damages or the extent of delays caused by what he described as acts of sabotage.

NEWS BRIEFS

Thorpe Resigns

LONDON (Reuter) — Jeremy Thorpe resigned today as leader of Britain's Liberal party after weeks of crisis over allegations that he once had a sexual relationship with a male model. Thorpe, 47, had led the country's third-largest political party since January, 1967.

Nurses Walk Out

MONTREAL (CP) — About 5,500 nurses in five cities, including Montreal, began a 24 hour work stoppage this morning in response to the slow pace of contract negotiations with the provincial government.

Lira Stronger

ROME (Reuter) — The lira strengthened on the Milan foreign-exchange market tday, opening nearly three per cent higher than its closing rate Friday. Dealers said the lira was being quoted at about 830 to the U.S. dollar, compared with 855 on Friday.

Italian-Born Canadians Offered Quake-Site Flights

Times News Services

As more tremors rolled through north-eastern Italy today Alitalia announced in Toronto it will offer free flights to their Italian hometowns to Canadian citizens born in the area recently hit by a devastating earthquake.

An airline spokesman said persons producing proof of birth from their local Italian consulates will be given free economy flights until May 13.

About 145 persons left Toronto during the weekend on flights to Rome to search for relatives in the stricken area.

Also in Toronto, a telethon Sunday raised $658,000 for earthquake relief work. The telethon originally was planned to raise money for a geriatric centre for Metropolitan Toronto Italians, but air time was turned over to the Friuli Emergency Fund.

Two more strong quakes were felt Sunday in northeastern Italy and western Yugolavia. No casualties were reported from them. But the official toll from the quake Thursday rose to 812 dead and more than 2,000 injured.

Rescue operations continue in the villages. Three women were found alive early Sunday, more than 50 hours after the quake. Police expressed the belief that at least 400 more persons are buried in the debris, and there is little hope of finding any of them alive.

The first mass burial was held Sunday in Maiano.

REPRISAL FEARED

BONN (Reuter) — Police throughout West Germany were on the alert today for possible left-wing guerrilla reprisals after Ulrike Meinhof, founder of a gang blamed for a series of urban bombings, was found hanged in her jail cell.

Mrs. Meinhof, discovered hanging from a strip of towel in her solitary jail cell in Stuttgart Sunday morning, had been on trial for almost a year accused of involvement in bombings that killed five persons in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

A defence lawyer in her trial, Otto Schily, Sunday night demanded an international inquiry into what he called her "alleged suicide." Another lawyer, Giovanni Capetti, said Mrs. Meinhof, visited in prison on Friday, had not given the impression of "someone who had given up."

Government and justice officials said her suicide may lead to violent protest by sympathizers of her group, named after Mrs. Meinhof and co-founder Andreas Baader.

Ships, Planes, Tanks in Proposal

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Major contracts for the construction of 20 new destroyers are expected to go to shipyards in Quebec City, Montreal and Sorel, Que., if proposals of the chief of defence staff are accepted by the federal cabinet, a Montreal newspaper says.

In a weekend report, the Gazette says the proposal calls for new fighter planes and tanks in addition to the helicopter - equipped destroyers.

Cost of the destroyers was estimated at more than $2 billion and the fighter planes, about the same. Tanks worth $400 million would be bought under a separate plan.

The tanks and aircraft would be bought abroad, but the proposals strongly suggest that the ships be designed and built in Canada.

The plans are said to be an offshoot of Defence Minister James Richardson's announcement in the Commons last Nov. 27 that the government is planning to re-equip the armed forces.

Army advisers are trying to decide between the Leopard 1 and Leopard 2 tanks, built in West Germany. The air force has been asked to decide whether it can replace the CF-5, CF-104 and Voodoo aircraft with a single model, probably the U.S.-built F-16.

Differing propositions for the ships have been forwarded to Ottawa. Some designers are pushing for a ship with ice-breaking capabilities, while the Navy League of Canada has urged the purchase of more gas-turbine powered destroyers like the last four delivered to the navy, the newspaper says.

The Gazette says the navy itself favors a Canadian-designed and Canadian-built ship that would be turbine-powered, cost about $100 million, weigh 3,500 tons, take a crew of 160 and carry helicopters.

Twenty such ships would be built over a period of 18 years.

The newspaper quotes a spokesman for Richardson as saying the cabinet may not rule on the proposals until later this year because of other pressing business.

Esquimalt Zoning Hearing Tonight

A two-day public hearing for 306 residents affected by an Esquimalt zoning bylaw which restricts development density in the municipality will be held tonight and Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the recreation centre on Fraser Street.

The largest public hearing since major zoning changes in 1957, the hearing will discuss bylaws covering pockets of property in two main areas west of Admirals and Esquimalt and Craigflower and Colville.

Zoning committee chairman Ald. Jim McEvay says the bulk of changes are the creation of three new zones; a low density apartment R3L which limits heights to two storeys; a medium density townhouse at 12 units an acre, and a low density townhouse zone at nine units an acre.

Most of the 45 acres to be down-zoned from R-3 will switch to the townhouse zoning with duplex and R3L following. Mayor Art Young sees the down-zoning as "a major step in reorganizing Esquimalt as a family base."

Thrust of the move is to meet the Capital Regional Board's regional plan, which set a target population for the municipality at 18,500 for the year 1996. Under existing zoning the population could reach 21,600.

Municipal clerk George Merz has sent out abot 8,000 letters to occupiers and owners directly or indirectly affected by the reduced zoning.

Indications are the hearings are going to be lively.

"People see us as taking money out of their pockets; but it's all in their minds," said Mayor Young. "We've been talking about it for three or four years and I don't see how anyone in the developing business could have been caught short."

Pioneer Dies

The daughter of a pioneer Vancouver family who married into B.C.'s most prominent mercantile chain died Sunday at her West Vancouver home.

Gertrude Isabel Spencer, 84, only daughter of Richard Vance Winch, owner of seven coastal canneries, was the widow of Col. Victor Spencer, one of the five sons of the storekeeping family which sold its chain of stores in 1948 to Eaton's.

Col. Spencer died in 1960.

ANTI-ABORTION VIGILS HELD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Anti-abortion groups held vigils outside Greater Vancouver area hospitals Sunday to protest abortions carried on inside the hospitals.

At Vancouver General Hospital, striking hospital employee union members moved their picket lines to allow about 200 people to hold a vigil outside the hospital's main entrance.

Demonstrations were also held at the Lions Gate Hospital in North Vancouver, Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster, Burnaby General Hospital, Surrey Memorial Hospital and Richmond General Hospital, each of which were attended by between 50 and 100 people.

Betty Green, chairman of the British Columbia Pro-Life Society, said anti-abortion groups will go to Victoria on Wednesday to put pressure on Health Minister Bob McLelland and Attorney-General Garde Gardom to end abortions in B.C. hospitals.

Jubilee Goes on Strike At Dawn Tuesday

operations can take place. Among the 59 HEU employees designated as essential by the Labor Relations Board were hart pump operators for open heart surgery.

The strike affects the Eric Martin Institute and Memorial Pavilion (the former Veterans Hospital) as well as the main building at the Jubilee. There are about 220 patients in the Memorial Pavilion, most of them long-term cases, and they will not be moved. A few acute care patients in the pavilion may be moved later into the main building to consolidate that type of care.

The hospital sent home 56 of the 110 patients in the EMI.

All out-patient care has been cancelled during strike except for the cancer clinic which remains in full operation. The closure means there will be no X-rays, laboratory services and electro-diagnostic services for out-patients.

Pickles said the hospital should be able to operate for an extended period of time, if necessary, at the reeduced level of service.

There would be no reduction in service for emergency care at any time during the strike.

Meanwhile, the union prepared to deliver strike signs from Vancouver to Victoria this evening.

The HEU workers going on strike include orderlies, dieticians, clerical workers and other housekeeping groups.

The picket line will be open, which means essential medical employees may cross without being hindered in any way.

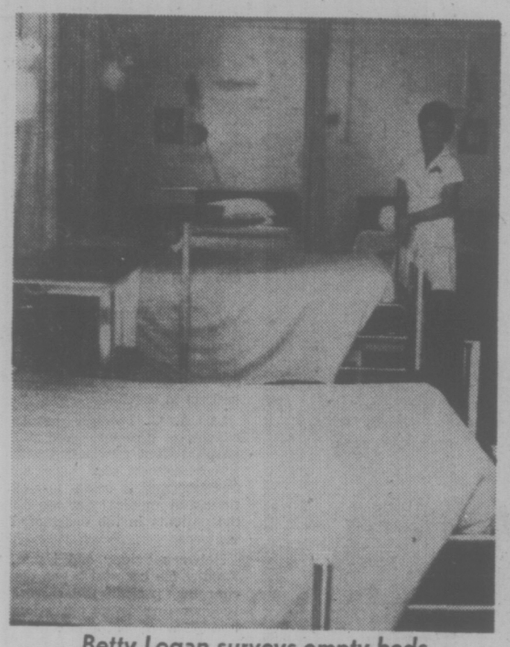
Truck deliveries will be stopped and inquiries made to ascertain whether the product is essential to the health care of the patients.

For example a routine delivery of oxygen would be stopped but an emergency shipment of oxygen would be permitted to cross the picket line.

Seventy-two hour strike notice at the Jubilee expired at 12:50 p.m. today but the strike was delayed until Tuesday morning in hopes of a break in the wage negotiations, Gerow said.

The union is seeking implementation of the contract settlement proposal by industrial inquiry commissioner Bert Blair. The Blair reprot recommended a one-year contract providing wage and benefit increases estimated at between 13 and 15 per cent for the 16,000 union members in the province. The hospitals offered eight per cent.

Labor Minister Allan Williams scheduled meetings today with the Hospital Labor Relations Association, which represents management, and said he would not comment until after the meetings.



Betty Logan surveys empty beds.

The strike by 2,100 HEU members at Vancouver General Hospital is in its seventh day. Strikes may be called at any time at Burnaby General, Lions Gate in North Vancouver, Surrey Memorial and Langley Memorial, union sources said. The union may begin a series of rotating strikes, allowing the Vancouver General and Jubilee to return to full oeprations after a short strike.

Strike votes are planned at Shaughnessy Hospital, the Royal Columbian in New Westminster and hospitals in Kelowna and Trail.

Strike notice expired at 11:40 a.m. today at the Victorial General but there would be no immediate strike, union sources said.

After the Jubilee strike is under way, "the situation at the Victoria General would be considered," Gerow said.

At Victoria General, executive director Jim Fair said some elective surgery has been postponed in anticipation that the beds will be needed for emergency cases.

There are a maximum of 429 beds at the Victoria General and about 330 patients at the moment. About 60 patients were discharged during the weekend.

Fair said some elective surgery would continue, especially any cases related to cancer, and full services would be maintained for emergency care and to handle any referrals from the Jubilee.

Earthquake Relief Fund Opens Here

Members of the Italian community in Victoria decided Sunday to open a disaster relief fund for victims of severe earthquakes last week in north Italy.

Starting with a $1,000 donation from the Victoria Italian Assistance Centre at Leonardo da Vinci hall, 195 Bay, the fund will accept donations from members, the public at large and possibly money-raising functions such as bingo, spokesmen said today.

Donations may be made in person or mail to the above adress, marked earthquake relief fund. Office hours are 6-9 p.m.

Angry Salt Springers Protest Ferry Rates

The provincial government promised in 1961 to keep ferry fares low for Salt Spring Island residents and the angry Islanders are not going to let the government forget it.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis will be reminded of a 15-year-old promise at what will amount to a protest rally on the Island Friday.

Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce spokesman Gil Humphries said people on the islands are "terribly upset" about what amounts to a 400 per cent increase in fares on the two ferries from Vancouver Island.

Islanders realize ferry fares must increase and are not concerned about a hike in regular fares but abolition of special commuter fares will mean a drastic increase in their cost of living, he said.

A man who commutes to Crofton Mill to work, for example, faces a $900 a year increase in costs, not to mention its effect on costs of goods on the island.

The island ferries paid for themselves when it was still owned by a private firm and it's only recently it's begun to lose money, said Humphries.

But he believes the major losses are on other ferry routes and the new ferry rates would mean islanders are subsidizing other ferry systems.

Norman Mouat, a director of the private firm that operated the ferries up until 1961, said there was a verbal agreement at that time that low ferry fares would be retained for Island residents.

Mouat said he wouldn't accuse the government of breaking a promise since fares have been kept the same for 15 years, but, like other Islanders, he feels commuter tickets should still be cheaper, cheaper.

"I'm not questioning the doubling of the fares, but we take great exception to making the regular commuters who support the system all year 'round have a 400 per cent increase," said Mouat.

The local Social Credit constituency association was having a meeting with their MLA, Hugh Curtis Friday night but now the meeting has turned into a protest rally for Salt Spring Islanders.

Humphries said the meeting is expected to be packed with angry commuters.

"Lately they (the government) have been trying to turn the Gulf Islands into a tourist attraction and if they want tourists to pay more to get on the islands that's fine with us, but some people have been using commuter tickets that aren't entitled to them and we think that should stop too," said Humphries.

the weather

The warm temperatures which occurred Sunday over much of the province established one new record of 29 for Kamloops breaking their previous record high for the date of 28 which was set in 1969. Sundays warm temperatures over the Vancouver and Victoria areas will end today. The major depression now covering all of the Gulf of Alaska has forced a broad area of cloud and rain into the coastal area. This will spread slowly eastward today and inland weakening in the process. The next system in this series will begin to affect the north coast late Tuesday otherwise a return to generally sunny skies is forecast for Tuesday except for some rain lingering along the Rockies.

Egypt, Soviets Patching Relations

By THOMAS W. LIPMAN

CAIRO (WP) — President Anwar Sadat has decided that Egypt's estrangement from the Soviet Union has gone far enough and is moving on several fronts to halt the deterioration in relations between the two countries, according to informed Egyptian and foreign sources.

In recent days the Egyptians have made several conciliatory gestures toward Moscow, and Sadat has been saying in private conversations and public speeches that he is not seeking any further quarrels with the Soviet Union.

The two nations signed a new trade agreement last week, after months of delay, and a Soviet delegation is expected here next month to discuss a proposed five-year commercial accord. The Egyptian press, according to informed analysts, has been instructed to modify the anti-Soviet tone of its recent articles.

There is no indication, however, of any change in the fundamental dispute over military supplies and equipment that led Sadat to ask last month for abrogation of the Soviet-Egyptian treaty of friendship and co-operation.

Soviet sources say the recent flurry of diplomatic consultations between the two countries, undertaken at Soviet request, did not deal with resumption of Soviet military shipments. Western military experts say they have no reason to doubt Sadat's continued assertions that Moscow has shut off the supply of spare parts, replacements and new weapons to Egypt's Soviet-equipped armed forces and they do not expect such shipments to resume.

Relations between Egypt and the Soviet Union dropped to a 25-year low last month

Prince Bernhard Cleared

AMSTERDAM (AP) — A Dutch investigative body has cleared Prince Bernhard of accepting bribes from the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., but said he must have known payouts were made to some of his associates, the newspaper Algemeen Dagblad reports.

The three-man commission set up in February has told the government it found no evidence in support of allegations that the 64-year-old husband of Queen Juliana took $1.1 million to promote sales by the United States firm in The Netherlands, the newspaper says.

The paper gives no attribution for its information and a government spokesman said today the report has not yet been received.

The newspaper says the commission concluded that the prince was "swept along" by associates who were receiving Lockheed funds, but that he had a "considerable awareness" of his royal function and did not accept bribes.

Violence Lines Robbery Trail

MONTREAL (CP) — For the fourth time within a week, a Montreal policeman involved in the investigation of a $2.8-million Brink's armored truck robbery has been the object of a violent attack.

Constable Kevin McGarr was beaten unconscious by four people while making a phone call in a west-end bar Saturday, a police spokesman said.

He was later taken to hospital, where he is expected to undergo an operation on a shattered cheek bone.

Police said three persons have been arrested in connection with the incident and a fourth is being sought.

There have been no arrests so far in the Brink's investigation.

Last Tuesday, Constable McGarr had to jump out of the way when a motorist tried to run him down just prior to a raid in connection with the Brink's robbery.

Constable McGarr's partner, Constable Ross Trudel, escaped injury Thursday when a booby-trapped shotgun went off when he picked it up during a police raid on a bar.

Earlier in the week, Detective Sergeants Andre Savard and Pierre Gilbert, also assigned to the Brink's investigation, escaped unhurt when shots were fired through the windshield of their police car.

Police have conducted numerous raids since the robbery of a Brink's armored truck outside a downtown bank last March but have consistently declined to give details of the raids, citing security reasons.

English Only Ruled For Air Canada Pilots

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada has issued a directive to its flight crews reiterating company policy that English is the language of work on aircraft flight decks, a spokesman for the Crown-owned airline said Sunday.

The directive, issued April 20 in the form of an amendment to the airline's flight operations manual, reaffirms a 1969 decision that defined English as the "technical language" to be used by pilots during flights.

'We're not telling them anything new," said Gerry Lareault, Air Canada regional public affairs director. It's only a clarification of procedures that are already being followed."

He said the amendment was published following several requests by both English-and French-speaking pilots to clarify company policy.

Asked about published and broadcast reports of friction between English-and French-speaking pilots over the language issue, he said: "There might have been some of that. I don't know."

Mr. Lareault said the policy would not prevent two French-speaking pilots on the same plane from speaking French in private conversation.

But they would have to use English for any operation related to flying the plane, he said.

"The policy was made to avoid misunderstandings and accidents," he said. "The pilots are used to using a particular jargon, and the technical terms are in English."

He said the April 20 directive applies only to conversations in the cockpit itself, not to communications between pilots and ground controllers.

French-speaking pilots would be permitted to speak to ground controllers in French at those Quebec airports where the federal transport department has instituted bilingual traffic control, he said.

What's new in Hawaiian Condominiums?

HAWAIIAN CONDOMINIUMS aren't new to Canadian Buyers. (Although they sure are popular).

And the fact that they are on a beautiful beach in a developing part of Maui isn't new.

And because they are offered for sale by a Canadian Realty Company under an approved B.C. prospectus isn't new (but it's newer).

And because they are offered fee simple to the purchaser isn't new (but it's newer).

But what is new and exciting is the fact that Block Bros. are now able to offer a Guaranteed Rental Option along with the purchase of these beautiful condominiums THAT'S NEW.

If you have been worried about how you will rent your condominium unit when you are not in Hawaii this could be the answer?

Call now to Block Bros. Realty to hear more about this program or better still attend an informal Open House at Block Bros. on Blanshard Street on Tues., May 11th at 7:30.

We'll have a short slide presentation, answer your questions and have brochures for you. Coffee too!

And this is REALLY NEW. If you buy at Kauhale Makai we'll refund the air fare, just for you.

One of the best investments of our time: the Mercedes-Benz 300D. The reasons are given below

The Mercedes-Benz Diesel:

You'll find it a thoroughly sensible automobile for today's driving conditions

PERHAPS IT'S TIME for you to join the many thousands of Canadians who drive a Mercedes-Benz Diesel. Undoubtedly they have found it a sensible solution to many driving conditions.

Here are just five of its many benefits, and then we'll debunk some of the myths that still linger about the Diesel.

1. Good mileage

Although a Mercedes-Benz Diesel is a genuine 5-passenger automobile it offers the kind of sensible mileage that can deflate the rising cost of fuel.

For example, according to the U.S. EPA tests, model 300D can get up to 29 mpg in city driving; up to 37 mpg on the open highway. Of course, the mileage you may get can differ somewhat due to driving conditions.

With a full tank, the 300D can take you over 600 highway miles and still have a reserve of 2 gallons! (Based on U.S. EPA figures.)

2. No expensive tune-ups

Unlike gasoline engines, Diesels have no fussy ignition systems. They don't have points, condensers, spark plugs, carburetors or distributors. Parts that aren't there don't need adjustments, never break down and don't need replacement.

So you can forget about those often costly summer and winter tune-ups!

3. A clean burning engine

Virtually all gasoline engines are required to mount an emissions-cleaning device that reduces performance as well as pollutants. Not so a Diesel. It is an exceptionally clean-burning engine because it burns its fuel much more efficiently than a gasoline one. You never pay an ecological penalty when driving a Diesel.

And because it doesn't need an emissions-cleaning device, there's one more part that can't go wrong.

4. Performance, comfort, safety

The 240D and 300D are comfortable 5-passenger automobiles with the quiet luxury and elegance you expect from Mercedes-Benz.

In every major appointment, the 300D is equal to the famous Mercedes-Benz 280 Sedan. And it offers performance never before associated with a Diesel automobile.

As with all our models, safety comes first. A rigid steel safety cell encloses the entire passenger compartment—and there is evidence of the decades of Mercedes-Benz safety engineering everywhere.

5. A lasting investment

Mercedes-Benz has a well-deserved reputation for providing lasting value. The record shows that our automobiles have a better resale value than other standard or luxury cars.

This welcome reassurance, along with the fact that a Diesel engine can last far longer than a gasoline one, makes a Mercedes-Benz Diesel an exceptional investment.

Debunking some myths

Mercedes-Benz introduced the world's first production Diesel passenger car in 1936. In the four decades since then, we have sold over one million and refined our Diesels to include as standard equipment, fully independent suspension, power steering, central locking system, 4-wheel disc brakes, and on the 300 Diesel automatic transmission, AM/FM radio, electrically operated windows, cruise control and air conditioning.

Model 240D can deliver mileage of 25 mpg and over.

Yet some myths still persist.

Item. "Diesels make an odd noise." Not an odd noise, a different noise, and only at idle. This different sound is a natural result of the Diesel's unusual combustion process. Underway, it's virtually impossible to hear the difference between a Mercedes-Benz Diesel and most gasoline engines.

Item. "Diesel fuel is hard to find." The fact is there are thousands of stations offering it across Canada. After all, trucks need Diesel fuel too! And with the Mercedes-Benz large fuel tanks (19.2 gallons) and good mileage, trips to the service station can be far apart.

A sensible automobile?

Most decidedly! But we invite you to test drive a Mercedes-Benz Diesel so you can form your own opinion. We think you'll agree with thousands of other Canadians that it is a sensible solution to today's driving conditions.

For your test drive, and for our 46-page illustrated brochure, see your authorized dealer. Or write: Mercedes-Benz of Canada Limited, 849 Eglinton Ave. E., Toronto, Ontario M4G 2L5. Leasing and European Delivery Plans are available.

A Foregone Conclusion

When Prime Minister Trudeau emerged from a five-hour meeting with provincial premiers last week to announce no agreement on increased domestic oil prices, few Canadians were surprised. Now the federal government will meet with producing provinces, namely Alberta and Saskatchewan, in a last attempt to hammer out an acceptable increase. Failing that, the federal government will impose a price increase somewhere between $1 and $2 a barrel, raising the price of Canadian oil from $8 to $10 per barrel. For consumers it will mean gas prices of close to $1 per gallon. Nor will the June 1 increase be final. Stated government policy calls for more increases in line with world prices. By 1978 Canadians may be paying $1.50 per gallon for this precious commodity on which the country runs.

The major question remains: why do we have to jack up our prices in line with arbitrary world prices when the current dwindling oil supply is being produced profitably at current prices? Following the 1973 sharp rise in world oil prices the Trudeau administration seemed intent on reining in producer provinces' natural penchant for more revenue. Now Ottawa impatiently explains to Ontario that prices must rise in order to ensure future exploration and conserve a finite resource.

Ontario's official attitude appears to be that as Canada's major industrial province it has a right to cheap oil. The western provinces argue that they should reap the rewards buried under their own jurisdictions. Inevitably it boils down to money and how it is distributed. The foreign-owned oil companies receive about 30 cents out of each revenue dollar produced in the industry. The other 70 cents goes to provincial and federal governments. Without an incentive of higher prices the industry refuses to invest in costly Arctic exploration. Had the federal government shown the imagination to take a major hand in this industry, which is analagous to a public utility, we would not be in the current mess. This is one of the economic tragedies of the century. At bottom, increased oil prices are not being dictated by any level of government; they are being forced upon us by the corporations who explore, develop and market Canadian oil.

If Canada is to have sufficient oil resources in the future it must raise current prices, given that private foreign companies will be licensed to explore for it. Criticism should not be directed so much at the efficient corporations who only wish to maximize profits, as successive federal governments which lost control of this resource as reserves dwindled. It is not an exaggeration to say that in terms of domestic economic growth Canadians are now vassals to multinational petroleum corporations.

Meanwhile, it is ironic how we bicker among ourselves over the last few billions in revenue that can be extracted from our dwindling southern oil resources. Canadians would appear to have to learn everything the hard way. During the next decade rising oil prices will change our life styles. Large single dwellings may become a thing of the past except among the very wealthy. The prairie branch railway lines that the government wants to tear up may suddenly be the most economical transportation device throughout the plains. And there is little hope of declining prices when Athabaska tar sands and Arctic resources eventually are piped to southern markets.

It is interesting to note that the Science Council of Canada calculates the investment required to reduce energy consumption would be about 10 per cent of the investment needed to increase supply by an equivalent amount. The return on this investment would be in the range of 50 to 200 per cent annually. Fascinating stuff to consider as we wait for the next oil price increase.

"... I was wondering if I should put extra postage on this parcel in case it takes forever to get to where it's going and the rates go up in the meantime ..."

Lost Opportunity

Through a strange sequence of missed connections and who-didn't-tell-what-to-whom, British Columbia has let slip through its fingers the chance to bring back a beautiful collection of coast Indian art amassed by an American anthropologist four decades ago. Instead, the 119 pieces of carving — masks, small pieces, argillite, a chest — which are representative of the best that coast natives from Oregon to Alaska could make has gone to a British Museum warehouse in London.

Various people in B.C. knew that the collection of Bruce Inverarity of Philadelphia was up for sale, including Dr. Gordon Shrum, director of Vancouver's museum, officials at the provincial museum here and faculty at the University of B.C. but depending on who is talking, either the price was too high or Inverarity wouldn't have sold to B.C. because of its sad record of neglect in the past or we just didn't care enough to try to get the collection back.

Anyway, we can do nothing now but lament the loss. The British Museum doesn't loan anything and its fine collection of northwest Indian art is not on display very often. Still, it is embarrassing to be considered uncaring colonials, much like the barbarous Turks who couldn't be trusted to preserve the famous Elgin marbles on the Parthenon 150 years ago, or the Egyptians from whom the French and in turn the British acquired the Rosetta stone.

VICTOR MACKIE

'We Can Sit Down and Talk'

OTTAWA — Relations with the United States are all sweetness and light if you listen to the Canadian government.

That of course is nonsense. The relations between this country and the U.S. have become strained, as was inevitable in this period of growing nationalism in Canada and economic difficulties.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen at a general press conference — the first since he became minister in 1974 — went out of his way recently to reject suggestions that relations between the two neighbors are deteriorating. What's the guideline? Certainly they have deteriorated since the days of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

John Diefenbaker's government detected stresses and strains developing and the two governments took steps to try and smooth out relations and make communication at the ministerial level more easy and fruitful. Mike Pearson too experienced at first hand, when he was prime minister, the growing strain on relations and warned that the days of an easy-going existence between the two countries was past.

Alarm Shared

MacEachen's contention that there is harmony between Canada and the U.S. was prompted by a report issued last week in Washington by a Republican congressional group. It called for a re-evaluation of what it described as "deteriorating" Canada-U.S. relations.

Subsequent interviews with top U.S. trade negotiators revealed that they shared the alarm.

Later the 15 congressmen belonging to the right-wing Republican Wednesday club called for "regular bilateral summit meetings" between U.S. President Gerald Ford and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. They suggested the Canadian prime minister should be invited to address a joint session of congress.

The congressmen are not alone in claiming that relations between the two countries are undergoing severe stress. Ambassadors to Canada from the U.S. have commented on the situation.

Ambassador William Porter late last year sounded off just prior to his departure for the same post in another land. He was an outspoken representative of our good neighbor to the south. As a good neighbor he thought it was better to air the problems rather than shove them under the rug.

Strangely his observations — made at an informal goodbye party with members of the press — aroused a storm in parliament. Prime Minister Trudeau verbally rapped the departing ambassador over the knuckles for daring to suggest that relationships were not as good as they could be.

Ambassador Porter in his own way was trying to do us a good turn. To this correspondent and others he had spoken of his concern over the growing number of problems that need to be resolved. He was also disturbed by the negative attitude he detected on the rise in the American media and the U.S. congress. He had spoken of his concern to others in the state department and reportedly got an okay to go ahead and talk about them — on the record — at his little farewell party.

THOMAS ENDERS
... co-operation is common sense

His successor Thomas Enders has been equally outspoken but perhaps using more diplomatic language. Just recently he delivered an address in Toronto in which he spoke of the reactions he has encountered concerning investment and resources since he came to Canada. Canadians have told him they welcome U.S. and other foreign enterprise for what it can contribute to Canada's prosperity. Others tell him that Canada cannot be itself unless U.S. enterprise plays a lesser role in the Canadian economy.

That's what they say in the polite circles he moves in, but what they think is perhaps more to the point. Some Canadians think the U.S. is out to grab Canadian resources and dominate the economy in this country, while some Americans think Canadians are out to use our commodity power to gouge the United States.

He sees these points of view as part and parcel of a changing world.

In the years immediately after the Second World War Americans and Canadians co-operated in economic and resource development. U.S. capital flowed into Canada on a vast scale, Canadian resources were exported to the U.S., also on a vast scale.

Then came the reaction. Canadians debated the role of foreign investment and set out to curb it. Concern over the depletion of non-renewable resources has grown, aggravated by the energy crisis and culminating in actions to limit Canadian exports of resources. That has caused "some turbulence" between the two countries, suggests Ambassador Enders quite properly.

But during this "turbulent" period a new pattern has emerged in trade and investments between the two countries.

Take Stock

A large flow of Canadian direct investment to the U.S. is developing. The postwar influx of U.S. direct investment has declined. Trade between the two countries in commodities is now more balanced, there is still a disparity but it is subsiding. Where do we go from here was the question the ambassador posed and he proceeded to offer several realistic answers.

Just because Canada and the U.S. have separate identities does not mean that they can't work together. Just because their interests are different doesn't mean that co-operation won't benefit both countries.

The two nations have major requirements for the efficient use of scarce capital and resources in the future. But in these areas they are in danger of allowing their differences to dominate the relationship and block opportunities.

That was the ambassador's message in his Toronto speech. He suggested the time had come for both countries to take stock and realize they have reached a symmetry in their interests. The United States stands ready to co-operate with Canada, he said, in both a bilateral and multilateral framework, in the search for new expansionary solutions.

Surely that is the more common sense approach rather than to continue denying there are mounting strains and stresses between the two good neighbors.

HAROLD GREER

Ont. 'Separatists' Emerge

TORONTO — It was, in a way, an historic occasion. The leader of the Ontario Liberal party, Stuart Smith, had urged the Ontario government to "fight for Ontario's rights" because what federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan had done was "disgraceful."

What Whelan had done (vetoed Ontario's chicken quota under Canadian egg marketing arrangements) was really neither here nor there. Any issue would have served, provided Smith could legitimately describe it as a federal opposition to Ontario's rights, the more disgraceful the better.

It has been a long time since an Ontario Liberal leader has talked that way about the federal government because the federal government has been the federal Liberals for a long time. No matter how disgraceful the federal treatment of Ontario has been — and it's been raw enough on occasion — the provincial Liberals have felt constrained either to suffer in silence or in apologetic defence.

Over the years, the political cost of this has been high, although opinions will vary as to the degree.

Split Votes

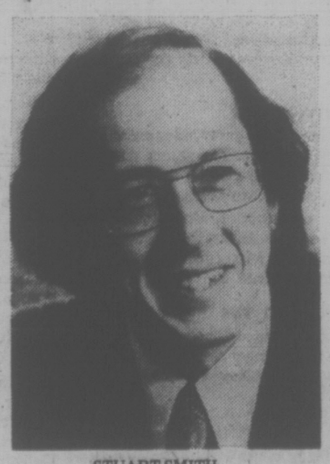
The federal system of government depends on a certain balance of power between the national and provincial levels, and the disposition of Ontario voters to split their vote — Liberal nationally and Conservative provincially — is a matter of historical record. In any event, the Conservative party and government of Ontario has constantly made a big thing of "standing up" to the feds and dismissing the Ontario Liberals as "kissing cousins" of Ottawa, and it must be said that it seems to work.

Six months before last September's general election in this province, for example, Conservative popularity was as low as it could be and the polls were indicating a Liberal victory. Then came the federal budget with its 10 cents a gallon on gasoline, apparently because of pressure for higher oil prices from Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Ontario Liberals made the horrible mistake of acquiescence. The Conservatives protested outrageously, used the federal budget as justification for countervailing Ontario action, including contradictory giveaway programs such as sales tax rebates on new cars (mostly foreign-built) and reversed the political tide against them.

Few indeed were the Liberal candidates who didn't feel the federal albatross around their necks last September, and perhaps it was a good thing in the long run because it created pressure within the party for some kind of separation.

Although the need for a distinct provincial image has been obvious for years, the Ontario Liberal party has been so federally-orientated and dominated that the "provincialists" have not been able to do much about it. Last September's defeat at least produced converts to the cause of separation.



STUART SMITH
... leader of Ontario Liberals

A second major influence was a favorable change in fund-raising. Historically, the Liberals have always had trouble raising money in the ridings for provincial elections. Riding campaigns have been dependent on transfers from central office funds which in turn reflect the efforts of the federally-orientated fund raisers.

But with the implementation last year of the Ontario Election Finances Reform Act, which in effect pays the basic costs of riding campaigns from the public treasury, this Liberal problem has virtually disappeared.

Thus it was not surprising that the Liberal Party in Ontario decided at its annual meeting here recently to separate into two organizations, the Ontario Liberal party and the Liberal Party of Canada (Ontario), each with its own constitution, executive and structure. Nor was it surprising that Ontario leader Smith should find an occasion a few days later to "fight for Ontario's rights" because something a federal Liberal had done was "disgraceful."

The question remains, however, whether anything very far-reaching has happened. The constitutional split was legitimate enough, although it is possible for the same persons to run for office in both parties and thus subvert the whole exercise. This clearly was not the intention of this year's annual meeting, which elected separate slates of officers, but at the same time most of the delegates insisted on viewing the change as merely administrative and not touching upon fundamental policy.

Hari Kiri

Smith, for example, went out of his way to deny that the split was an anti-federal move and to affirm his full support for the federal Liberal party. Virtually every delegate who supported the change seemed to feel compelled to declare he or she was a Liberal, period — that is, a Liberal federally and a Liberal provincially.

Such protestations are only to be expected, of course, but if that is all Ontario Liberals really intend by having separate parties, then the change is mere window-dressing. To be a Liberal both federally and provincially is no doubt possible if one simply means belonging to or supporting both parties. But it is hardly possible, certainly it is political hari-kiri, to insist upon unity in policy and philosophy. If Smith is to be allowed to keep calling federal policies disgraceful, so that eventually the public will see him as a provincial politician regardless of how styled, then Ontario Liberals will be no better off politically than they have ever been.

The hard fact is that it is not feasible to be an integrated Liberal in this province. One can support, federally, the move to world oil prices for domestic oil, for example. But if one does it provincially, one is dead at the polls.

High Grading

The Times of May 4, carries on the front page the story that "Private industry and the B.C. Forest Service are working out relaxed regulations to allow operators to leave cut wood in the forests that now must be processed into wood chips."

Once again the Social Credit government is paying off its benefactors, the big forest companies, by allowing them to take only the big trees out and leave all the smaller stuff that costs more to process, to clutter up the woods and create more havoc and more fire hazard. If this policy carries through, I hope the Times and other leading papers send their photographers out to take pictures of the mess that is left behind, and feature such pictures on their front pages.

Next the Socred government and its prophet (profit?) of never-ending resources, Tom Waterland, will be saying to the mining companies (possibly it has already said):

"Don't bother with the low grade ores, boys, just take the top grade and move on. There's more profit that way."

But what about the mess that is left behind? What about the environment? What about the ecology? The present government seems much more concerned about the profits of the big companies in B.C. than it does about the welfare of its citizens, and the quality of their environment.—J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Street.

Free Fares

It would be interesting to know the statistics on the income of senior citizens in British Columbia in view of the fact that they are to be granted free passage on the ferries. It is my guess that a very large number of these citizens are sufficently well-provided for that they do not require assistance from many less well off citizens.

These people are paid old age pensions which they do not need while those in need are fortunate if they are able to have a decent roof over their heads and sufficient food in their stomachs to ward off malnutrition. Those who already benefit from a powerful system in Canada which provides well for them, do not require free ferry passage.

If the unemployed who would be glad to work if there were jobs, students struggling to attend university, people who have suffered greatly from the ills of society and the many who are just making a living wage are to be denied consideration in the raising of ferry fares to an intolerable level, then it is too much to expect that those who are already well-provided for should be considered able to pay their own way.

Those who have lived so well under the capitalist, free enterprise (since when?) system should not expect to get a free ride. — Reader, Saanich.

Gandhi Deserves A Chance

By JENNIE LEE

(Baroness Lee is the widow of former Labor cabinet minister Aneurin Bevan. She wrote this article for the London Observer.)

Mrs. Gandhi taking oath of office in 1971 with new ministers

It is now more than a quarter of a century since the end of British rule in India, but how much has changed? Mainly, the emergence of the prosperous Indian trading class enjoying privileges formerly reserved for the British Raj.

This is a far cry from Jawaharlal Nehru's dream of an India that would not only be independent but would in time become a civilized Socialist society using as its instrument of change peaceful parliamentary means.

Alas, today the majority of Indians remain as poor as or poorer than they ever were. Considerable progress has been made both in industry and in agriculture, but the population explosion has more than cancelled out the advance in living standards that might have been expected.

But how can family planning make headway where men, women, children and animals live huddled together in primitive mud huts or tattered canvas tents?

As we all know, the best contraceptive is a rising standard of living. But India cannot wait. The need is urgent to supplement more conventional methods of birth control with a system of rewards for those who limit their family to two children, and demotion for those in the public service who exceed that number. Male sterilization? All kinds of prejudices and religious taboos stand in the way, but that too is now strenuously advocated.

Before the emergency these draconian measures would have remained merely talk. But the powers now vested in the prime minister and the sustained propaganda urging more action and less talk, many overcome some of the difficulties formerly found to be insuperable.

Time will tell. The cynics claim nothing has changed, nor will change because of the emergency. The restraints on parliament, on the press, on the trade unions and on black marketeers, one is asked to believe, are simply a ploy to safeguard the personal position of the prime minister and pander to her vanity.

How comes it that one woman has so much power? What are the forces for her and against her? On a recent visit to India I was reminded by an old mutual friend of how Indira Gandhi was described 10 years ago by the powreful Congress leaders who invited her to become prime minister. She was their "dumb doll." Her function was to present an acceptable image to the masses while real power remainded in their hands. Her first appearances in public reassured them that all would work out to their satisfaction. At that time, diffident, inexperienced in her new role, lacking the glamor her father had, they felt they had nothing to fear from her.

In the intervening 10 years Indira Gandhi has grown steadily in self-confidence and now has her own personal power and charisma. The "dumb doll" has outwitted her tormentors and detractors. I am not impressed by the crocodile tears now being shed by all too many well-to-do Indians who care not one jot for democratic practices and have consistently brought parliamentary legislation into disrepute by seeing that it remained a dead letter.

It was not in the interest of many Congress leaders and public officials, both at the national and local level, to carry out land reform, so every kind of chicanery was practised. The landless peasant remained landless. The moneylender drained the very life out of his victims. Women, in theory enjoying complete equality as enjoined by Gandhi and Nehru, in practice remained the underdogs.

Inevitably, disillusionment with the ruling Congress Party drove some of the most idealistic of Indians into opposition. Unfortunately, they have made common cause with other opposition groups on the extreme Right and in so doing undermined their credibility.

I can understand the kind of frustration and despair that drove some Socialists into opposition. After the collapse of the 1929-31 Labour government some of us in this country had a similar traumatic experience. Angry and disillusioned with the Labour Party, some Labour MPs left to join Mosley; others joined the Communist Party; still others, myself included, left with the Independent Labour Party.

Aneurin Bevan was one of the few younger and abler Labour members of parliament who remained with the main party. He insisted that what the Labour Party with its powerful trade union roots could not be persuaded to do could not be done. "Pure but impotent" was the phrase he used to taunt those of us who broke away, and time has at least confirmed the impotency of the splinter groups. I do not wish to carry the parallel too far, but in my judgment what the Congress Party cannot be persuaded to do will not be done by any combination of the present opposition groups.

If Indira Gandhi is brought down, who is there to take her place? And with what kind of following? There are many in key posts in her own party who want only a quiet life and are no more than camp followers. But there are others who share her burning indignation at the betrayal of so many of her father's high ideals.

I am told that on one occasion when barracked by a group of reporters she retorted: "My father was a saint who strayed into politics. But don't under-estimate me. I grew up in politics." Whether this is fact or fiction is irrelevant. It simply underlines the toughness as well as the dedication of India's present prime minister.

She has had to face the fact that Parliamentary democracy on the Westminster model has demonstrably failed. If the richer nations of the West had contributed more generously to an easing of the intolerable burden imposed on the Indian government by the sheer volume of poverty and illiteracy it has to contend with, they would have more right to preach sermons.

If the United States in particular had been willing to give help without humiliating conditions attached, the whole situation might have been different. As it is, the Indian subcontinent is now having to fight to retain its distinctive identity against intolerable pressures, both external and internal, coming from both East and West.

What would Indira Gandhi's critics like to see happen next? India a tragic football kicked from one helpless position to another, as in the pitiless game of power politics being played out in Bangladesh? India, a Muslim State, colonized by the U.S., as in Pakistan? India left with no alternative but increasing dependence on Soviet Russia?

There is not much we can contribute these days to solving India's problems. But at least we need not wantonly throw away the reputation we had in the early years of independence for fair comment and fair dealing.

Who's Running This Country?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

A democratically elected government should not propose, and a democratically elected Parliament should not approve, legislation which establishes an authoritarian agency. Yet that is what they both did when they established the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The CRTC must be the only agency in the country — at least we hope so — which can extend its jurisdiction by announcing that it is doing so. The CRTC has announced that it is taking control of apartment antenna television systems. Until now apartment master antenna systems were free of CRTC control if they were totally on one piece of property, even though they might serve thousands of residents. Now they will be required to get CRTC licences unless they are already doing what the CRTC wants them to do.

What appears to have prompted the commission's action is that it wants to prevent the development of unlicensed pay-TV. One pay-TV company has been offering such a service to residents in an apartment development in Metro Toronto. Under the new system it would have to get a licence to do so, and, the CRTC has refused all other applications for pay-TV services. The CRTC, in other words, is against pay-TV, licensed or unlicensed. That's that.

The legislation which set up the CRTC probably allows for this extension of its authority. It is so comprehensive and so general that it allows the CRTC to do practically anything which it can distantly relate to broadcasting, even when the element of broadcasting itself, as it was originally understood, is no longer involved.

The CRTC has not yet exerted control over private home TV antennas, but citizens should not entertain any confidence that it will not. If it decided that too many of us, too often, were using them to tune in foreign stations when we ought to be listening to Canadian stations, it could decide to license private antennas and then — as with pay-TV — refuse to issue any licences.

The CRTC is using its powers to determine what Canadians shall see or hear. It is limiting the choice that ought to belong to them. And Parliament is letting the CRTC get away with it.

If the legislation setting up the CRTC had been specific, the CRTC would have to go back to the Government and Parliament for each extension of its powers. That would lead to some very acrimonious debate. It might very well lead to the government deciding not to introduce legislation granting the powers, or to Parliament's refusing to approve them or to the people raising so much opposition that both Government and Parliament would obey public will and say no to the CRTC.

The CRTC has not given much of a fig for public will. It doesn't care whether the public wants pay-TV or not; in fact, it must suspect that it does. It has refused to let pay-TV in Canada because it might reduce the audiences for licensed TV stations and thus make it harder for those stations to produce what the CRTC considers to be good Canadian programs.

It is not at all too fanciful to suppose that one day the CRTC will force everybody onto cable, and eliminate all but Canadian programs from cable. Its actions — inhibited at times by such outraged public opinion that the politicians had to pay attention — has suggested that is its ultimate goal.

This is democracy?

Tories Have Numbers, Lack Talent

By MARJORIE NICHOLS

OTTAWA — You figure it out. On the Opposition side of the House of Commons there are six Conservatives for every member of the New Democratic Party. To be precise, there are 16 Socialists and 95 Tories, for a total warm body count of 111.

The arithmetic is revelant only to put Thomas Clement Douglas into proper context. Douglas, the bantam-sized preacher cum provincial premier cum federal politician, is a novelty among this army of generalists. He is a specialist, an expert. His area of expertise as was duly re-noted last week during the debut of Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie's new energy policy, is energy.

Douglas obviously has a better personal understanding of the field than does the minister. Gillespie has, after all, been running the energy portfolio for only eight months. The minister may be a Rhodes scholar, but even they have their limitations. The Tories, despite the fact that they rule the country's energy capital of Alberta both federally and provincially, do not have a critic of Douglas' calibre. It will be conceded that after 41 years in politics, the former Saskatchewan premier should enjoy the odd debating advantage. But there is more to it than that. It is a reflection of the difference in approach by the NDP and the Conservatives.

Logic would dictate that it should be the small band of Socialists who are forced by necessity to adopt the role of generalist. With 95 members the Tories enjoy the luxury of numbers that would enable them to breed specialists.

But the converse is true. It is the NDP who are the practitioners of indepth politics. An examination of the occupants of the Tory benches produces only two or three individuals who enjoy national recognition as expert critics. The first who comes to mind is Gordon Fairweather, the scholarly Maritimer who is an acknowledged expert on civil liberties and international affairs. When Fairweather rises in the House of Commons to address himself to an issue with these boundaries, there is a perceptible increase in the interest level on the government side. And that really is the test.

The new Opposition leader, Joe Clark, has been reaping headlines in recent weeks with his demands for reform of the parliamentary system. Parliament, says Clark sternly, is becoming increasingly irrelevant because of the disdain with which the Trudeau government treats the institution. Parliamentary committees, he says, must be given a more important and influential role in the order of things. Who can find fault with that? The system is far from perfect, and any critic who calls for the introduction of measures to redress its short-comings is on solid ground. Clark may not appreciate the comparison, but he sounds suspiciously like a fellow by the name of Pierre Elliott Trudeau. One of Trudeau's priorities when he assumed the prime ministership eight years ago was to streamline the system, to elliminate the anachronisms, to expedite the business of the nation.

In due course, the prime minister had his way. In 1969 there were major rule changes. But then the inevitable happened. The government discovered that perfection still had not been achieved and the cry went up once again, "The system must be changed."

The question that must be put to Clark is whether his party has really attempted to make the present system work.

The fact is, as proved by Douglas and Fairweather and a handful of others, that despite the innumerable shortcomings, one informed MP can have enormous impact within the system as it exists. There are some who would like to see changes in the Canadian committee system that would incorporate American practice: That is, the extension of certain veto powers to the committee.

Among the other acknowledged "experts" in the House of Commons are Stanley Knowles, the NDP member from Winnipeg, who is the reigning authority on procedure. Gerald Baldwin, the former Conservative House leader, is a peer of Knowles in this field and an authority on freedom of information.

Even terrible Tom Cossitt, the Ontario muckraker with the fascination for the private life of the prime minister, is an expert of sorts. Cossit has near photographic recall of every item of furniture purchased for 24 Sussex Drive. He has also become something of an expert on the construction of swimming pools.

Jack Horner doubtless knows more about the transportation problems faced by the prairie farmer, but it would be extravagant to call him a genuine expert on transportation. Six years ago Parliament greatly increased the amount of public funds available to the Opposition parties for research. The idea was to attempt to even the odds, to provide the Opposition with the resources to provide some semblance of balance.

It has been money well spent and in the greater good of all. But, as the Tommy Douglas case demonstrates well, a researcher cannot force an MP to think or to study.

Smoke If You Wish

russell baker

I have nothing against people who don't smoke. I stopped smoking myself for five years once and it didn't do me any noticeable harm. If people want to sit around not smoking, it doesn't offend me in the least. I certainly wouldn't bully and try to make then feel absolutely terrible about not taking up the habit.

If I were a cab driver, I wouldn't dream of pasting a sign in my taxi that said: "Smoke!" and even if I did and somebody got in my cab and didn't light up, I would never turn around and say, "There is no nonsmoking in this cab."

If I invited somebody to dinner who didn't smoke, it would never occur to me to embarrass and humiliate her, or even him, by saying, "If you're not going to smoke, will you please go outside where it doesn't irritate the other guests?"

As a smoker, I feel no sense of moral superiority whatever. I don't even feel self-righteous about smoking. Not even when I am in a crowded room with 15 or 20 nonsmokers. After all, I might want to give up smoking again one of these days, and if I do I don't want smokers looking down their noses at me.

Being of this turn of mind, I am baffled by the growing intolerance among so many people who don't smoke. Not long ago, I was severely put down by a New York cab driver for lighting up in his machine. It was puzzling. He was offended by my smoking, yet I wasn't in the least offended by his not smoking.

What was behind his eagerness to oppress me? Was it a tryannical concern for my health? Not likely. As a pedestrian, I know from long experience that New York cab drivers are utterly indifferent to my physical longevity.

Was it a concern for his own health? Some fear that my used smoke would filter under the filthy plastic barrier which separated us and shorten his years? This made no sense at all. He was, after all, spending his life running an internal-combustion engine whose poisonous fumes surrounded him during all his working hours.

Such minute quantities of my used smoke as he might inhale were negligible compared to the vast clouds of sulphur and carbon gases in which he had voluntarily chosen to spend his life. Moreover, both shock absorbers and springs had long ago disappeared from his cab and he was willingly submitting to the risk of grave spinal damage by spending hours every day jolting and crashing through an endless series of uncushioned collisions with New York's thousands of potholes.

On the floor of the rear seat there was sundry garbage, including what I later discovered to be some fairly typical New York dog droppings. A man concerned about his health would scarcely live in such constant proximity to burgeoning bacterial colonies. Obviously, it wasn't health that had turned him into a tyrant. Some subtler factor was at work. Something had persuaded him that the smokers of the world were an inferior class who had to elevated, brutally if necessary, by society's better people, its nonsmokers.

This is a fairly new attitude among nonsmokers, and I believe it results from the diminishing number of people in this country whom one can treat with intolerance and contempt without risk of being called a bigot. Until very recently, there were dozens of classes of people to whom one could safely feel superior.

Nowadays you can't even tell a Polish joke without being hailed before the Committee for Stamping Out Bigotry. The list of people who can safely be pushed around, which used to include "ethnics" — whatever they are — and blacks, Jews, women, Catholics, Dixiecrats, Californians, fundamentalists, homosexuals, professors and poets — has been so diminished by the forces of uplift that there is scarcely anybody left.

Smokers, I suspect, are being used to replace them by poeple who can't make it through the day without having an inferior class to feel superior to. Already, the airlines — the buses of the late 20th century — force smokers to ride in the back of the plane. Some restaurants have already begun to segregate smokers from other diners.

In New York City, where breathing the municipal air is equivalent to smoking two packs of cigarettes a day, smokers are subject to criminal punishment for smoking in many stores while city buses puff gales of exhaust fumes with legal impunity.

Smokers have historically been tolerant of their nonsmoking compatriots. Too tolerant perhaps. It may be time for us to go on the attack and start accusing the nonsmokers of bigotry. If we put on enough heat, we can give them such guilty consciences that they will never again be able to refuse to light up after dinner without explaining that some of their best friends are smokers.

HOSPITAL BREATHALYZER TELLS THE WHOLE TALE

Each of Victoria's general hospitals has just acquired an expensive machine which will take your breath away.

The Collins computerized modular lung analyser, worth about $42,000, not only takes your breath away, it measures how much it has taken, compares it to averages for your age, height and weight, and gives you a rating, a different kind of breath test.

It can measure your tidal volume, the usual amount of air you move in and out of your lungs, your vital capacity, the range between your biggest breath and the most you can exhale and it can then measure what's left.

You huff and puff into a tube while Wade Holstein, chief technician in electrodiagnostic services at Victoria General, or Mike Rawlins, pulmonary function technician, keep watch.

The computer, already fed your vital statistics, clatters away. Out pops your scorecard.

Actually the analyser can handle about 20 tests on a patient's breathing capacity, including flow rates and gas analyses. It does the job precisely, and thanks to the computer, in about half the time it took using the equipment it is replacing.

Bronchitis, emphysema and asthma are the main lung diseases and the new equipment is sensitive enough to uncover problems in breathing while there is still time to do something about them.

It also measures how a patient is responding to treatment, the technicians note.

Deadly Bats, Mushrooms

NANAIMO — Bats and wild mushrooms both head the seasonal danger list, according to central Vancouver Island Health Unit director Dr. Peter Reynolds.

He warned that bats on the island could have contacted rabies and never should be handled during daylight hours.

If bitten, the victim should wash the wound thoroughly with soap and water and consult a physician as soon as possible for further treatment.

Eating poisonous mushrooms is also an annual danger at this time of year, he said, pointing out that it is difficult for even an expert to separate the edible from the poisonous varieties.

"Nobody should pick mushrooms withuot first positively identifying them as being non-poisonous," said Dr. Reynilds.

"If in doubt do not eat what you pick. Throw them away and buy mushrooms from a commercial source."

Parksville Hotel Talks Continue

PARKSVILLE — Mediation talks are continuing in an effort to settle Island Hall hotel's five-month lockout.

Mediator Ken Albertini is holding the talks with representatives of the hotel and the Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union.

Picket lines went up Dec. 11 after the hotel locked out its employees, following a strike notice from the union.

So far, both the company and union say, the dispute has cost Island Hall hotel $300,000 and the business community here fears that a longer tie-up will effect the whole tourist trade for the area.

The union is seeking wage increases comparable to other area agreements. The hotel has said it cannot pay the higher wages because it is a seasonal operation.

Ford Steering Being Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal transport department is investigating a problem with the steering assembly of full-sized Ford vehicles built since 1965 that can cause loss of steering control and has resulted in several near accidents, says department officials.

The department has investigated 21 cases in the past year and has discussed the matter with Ford Motor Co. of Canada.

Ford says the problem "does not constitute a safety hazard" and can be avoided with proper maintenance.

Motorist Garnet Carswell of Ottawa says he was turning when his steering locked and he continued onto his lawn.

"I couldn't control the car," he said in an interview. The steering locked "and I couldn't turn in."

"There were kids playing on the front lawn at the time, that's what scared me."

He said he had to have his 1970 Ford LTD station wagon towed to a garage.

He said the garage, found that the idler arm, a part of the steering mechanism which attaches to the frame of the car, had pulled completely away and had dropped onto the exhaust system.

Transport experts say the problem centres on a sealed, self-lubricating joint or bushing which connects the idler arm to the steering control assembly.

Over time, the bushing corrodes and can eventually seize.

When this happens, the continued movement of the steering assembly as the car is driven cause the idler arm to bend the frame. Eventually, the arm pulls away from the frame completely, causing loss of steering control.

Japanese Whaling Cut

TOKYO (AP) — Under international criticism and restricted to smaller quotas, six Japanese fishing companies have closed their whaling departments and set up one joint firm to do all their whaling.

The new Nippon Kyodo Hogei Co. has jobs for only about half the 3,000 persons who formerly worked in the industry. But management and labor agreed in late April on a plan to take care of the rest by voluntary retirements and transfers to other types of fishing.

The new firm has purchased three mother ships that can butcher the catch and freeze it. It has bought 20 of the 41 catcher boats owned by the six firms.

An official of the government fishery agency estimates at least nine more catcher boats will be converted to tug or patrol boats.

Due to shrinking quotas assigned by the international body that regulates whaling, Japanese fishermen harvested 16,419 whales in 1971 and only 13,427 last year. Merger negotiations began in 1972 and were spurred by the government's lack of interest in forming a semi-public company to help overcome the industry's decline.

Isao Aoyagi, managing director of the new company, predicted it will be making a profit in five years if the present quota is not reduced.

"We have few problems at home today," he said. "What we are worried about is the anti-whaling compaign abroad. We listen to serious demands based on scientific figures, but not emotional campaigns.

"The present campaign comes from either religious or sentimental belief. We make a living by catching whales and there is no reason for us to drain our sources of income."

"Many studies show the number of whales is increasing. I cannot find any differences between the killing of whales and killing cows and pigs."

Since strict controls on catches were imposed in 1972, the price of whale meat has climbed to $1.87 a pound from 82 cents. But whale meat still is a popular item on Japanese dinner tables, and the oil, bones, skin and teeth are widely used.

Methadone Fails to Reach Goals

WASHINGTON (WP) — The medical researchers who pioneered methadone treatments for heroin addicts have concluded that the treatment failed to live up to their expectations of 10 years ago that it would end heroin use in American cities.

Dr. Vincent Dole and Marie Nyswander blame the failure on bureaucratic roadblocks imposed by federal regulatory agencies and the unexpected to replacing one addicting drug with another.

They reported on the 10-year history of methadone treatment in this week's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, to be published Monday.

"Many thousands of former heroin addicts have been rehabilitated," they said, "but on balance today it must be recognized that the projections of 10 years ago were overly optimistic.

Dr. Robert DuPont, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, agreed with the Dole-Nyswander view. "I don't have any problem with it. I think they are saying a lot of things that need to be said," commented DuPont, who formerly ran the methadone treatment program in the District of Columbia, which had been hailed as one of the best in the country.

Methadone is an inexpensive synthetic drug that relieves the craving for heroin in addicts, allowing them to hold jobs without having to steal to satisfy their needs.

The Dole-Nyswander report takes an added significance since DuPont said in March that heroin addiction is increasing steadily in the nation after an 18-month downturn that started in mid-1972.

Dole and Nyswander published their first report on their pioneering successful methadone program in New York 10 years ago.

From that project involving 750 addicts, the program expanded until an estimated 200,000 Americans have received methadone treatments.

We're Sorry for Abuses, Says FBI Head

WASHINGTON (WP) — FBI director Clarence M. Kelley says the bureau is "truly sorry" for past abuses of its power and, for the first time, publicly placed the blame for FBI wrongdoing on the late J. Edgar Hoover.

"Today, the superhuman image of the FBI, and the power and glory that accompanied it, has greatly diminished," Kelley said. "Amid the thunder and lightning of criticism, the FBI has descended from Mount Olympus. And, as it turns out, we are mere mortals, with human imperfections, and we always have been.

"The abuses assailed occured chiefly during the twilight of Mr. Hoover's administration," Kelley said. In a pointed reference to Hoover's 48 years as head of the bureau, he added:

"I believe no man should again serve as director for more than 10 years. No director of the FBI should abide incursions upon the liberties of the people."

FBI sources said Kelley's remarks — contained in a speech at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo. — were intended to signal a new direction in the bureau's response to charges of runaway police power.

The charges stem chiefly from disclosures that the FBI, between 1956 and 1971, engaged in a series of counter intelligence programs (Cointelpro) aimed at disrupting militant political groups such as the Communist Party, the Ku Klux Klan and the Black Panthers.

Cointelpro involved widespread use of illegal tactics such as fabricating derogatory information about target individuals and sending it to their families and employers. In one instance, the FBI carried on a campaign of harassment and defamation against the black civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

These activities were ordered by Hoover, who died in May 1972. Until now, Kelley, the director since 1973, had deliberately shied away from public discussion of his predecessor's responsibility for the wrongdoing.

He took this tack, it is known, out of concern for morale within the bureau. Many older agents retain strong loyalties to Hoover's memory and regard suggestions that the FBI should apologize for Cointelpro as adverse reflections on their own careers.

Past public statements by Kelley and other FBI executives conceded that some abuses had existed but argued that they were at least partly justified by national security considerations.

These same elements were present in Kelley's speech. For the first time, though, he subordinated them to an admission, more frank and unequivocal than he had made before that the FBI has amassed too much power under Hoover and had then abused this power.

Political Bugging Abounds

WASHINGTON (CP) — Democratic and Republican administrations alike have succumbed to the temptations of using the FBI for secret electronic surveillance with alarming consistency, Senate investigators reported Sunday.

The staff of the Senate intelligence committee said wiretaps and bugs have been used "to serve the interests of presidents in almost every political arena," often in violation of the meagre procedural safeguards periodically laid down to prevent abuses.

In a 78-page report, the Senate committee staff warned that the consistency of the practice, under "administration of both political parties," simply demonstrates "the immense danger of vesting authority over the use of such techniques solely within the executive branch."

Underscoring the warning, the report added that with today's sophisticated technology, the government can intercept any telephone, telegram or telex communication that is transmitted at least partially through the air, as most such communications now are.

Perhaps unintentionally, the report, one of a series of 13 that the committee began releasing last week, stood out in many ways as a contrast to FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley's weekend speech in Fulton, Mo., where, for the first time, he publicly placed blame for FBI wrongdoing on the late J. Edgar Hoover.

Kelley took the position that most of the abuses occurred during the twilight of Hoover's long tenure and suggested that shorter terms for the FBI directorship might cure the problem.

The Senate report, however, not only contained evidence of abuses quite early in Hoover's career, but also hints of an erratic determination in his later days to permit less of them.

N-Waste Burial Suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It appears likely that deadly radioactive garbage may be disposed of forever by burial far beneath the ground.

The government has launched an effort to solve the problem of permanent nuclear waste disposal by 1985, and the energy research and development administration sends Congress this week a five-volume, 1,500-page analysis of various means for handling and storing atomic power plant wastes.

ERDA says a plan will be announced "in the near future" by the Energy Resources Council and public comment will be invited.

Others have tried — and failed — to find acceptable solutions to the problem of atomic disposal for more than three decades.

Past proposals have included shooting radioactive debris to the sun aboard rockets, or sealing atomic garbage in concrete pillars that would stand, guarded forever, in the desert.

Now, ERDA officials believe the most promising method appears to be the solidification of wastes into insoluble ceramic blocks that would be buried in underground salt domes or abandoned salt mines.

Senate Rallies Defence

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Senate's bipartisan leadership is asking the Senate to pay the cost of defending William Proxmire (Dem.-Wis.) in a $6 million damage suit by a psychologist who contends that Proxmire held his research up to "public ridicule."

Proxmire, in a floor speech and in a press release April 18, 1975, said several federal agencies that had supported the psychologist's research were being named recipients of Proxmire's "golden fleece of the month" award for "the biggest waste of the taxpayers' money."

The psychologist is Ronald Hutchinson, who holds a doctorate in experimental psychology from Yale. In 1975 he was director of research at Kalamazoo State Mental Hospital in Michigan.

According to the suit filed April 17 in Madison, Wis., Proxmire said Hutchinson over the previous several years recived almost $500,000 in grants "to determine under what conditions rats, monkeys and humans bite and clench their jaws.

The Justice Department had agreed to undertake Proxmire's defence, but Majority Leader Mine Mansfield and Minority Leader Hugh Scott want the Senate to do it directly, because of the constitutional issue involved.

The congressional immunity clause of the Constitution protects members against liability for things said on the Senate and House floors. One question posed by suit is whether immunity also applies to those statements when repeated by members in press releases or on television.

Queen Arrives

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Queen Margrethe and Prince Henrik of Denmark arrived Sunday for a month-long visit marking the United States bicentennial.

Anti-Busing Millionaire?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Local anti-busing forces are offering to make an instant millionaire out of anyone who can end court-ordered busing for school desegregation by having it ruled unconstitutional.

Frustrated by dwindling participation in marches and demonstrations, leaders of the major anti-busing organizations here gathered during the week-end to announce their change in tactics.

From now on, they say, emphasis will be on raising money for an "American Freedom Fund" and not on demonstrations.

There will still be anti-busing marches and rallies, said Bill Kellerman, head of Citizens Against Busing, but "for the most part the days of organized marching and street protests are over."

The idea to give $1 million from the fund to anyone who stops busing was Kellerman's idea.

Kellerman said the reward will work because no money will be paid to anyone until bussing ends. "Nothing this controversial can continue in this country," he said.

The money also might go to the politician who is the "prime mover" of legislation that outlaws busing for desegregation.

"It will offer the incentive to lawyers, educators, politicians, sociologists, judges, organizations and individuals to strive to find the solution."

SHINGLE MILL DESTROYED

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — City fire officials suspect a cutting torch started a fire that destroyed the partly-demolished shingle mill of Capilino Timber Ltd., assistant fire chief Harry Burnett said.

Cause of the weekend blaze still is officially listed as unknown.

Many Inquiries

Victoria MLA Charles Barber's community service office handled 186 inquiries or complaints last month, half of them from people 60 years or older.

For the first time the volunteer staff kept track of the age of callers. Fifty-one per cent were 60 or older, 28 per cent between 30 and 60 and 21 per cent under 30, says the office's second monthly report.

The figures could mean seniors have more problems or it may just reflect the breakdown of age groups in the community, a release said.

Phone number of the office, at 1020 Blanshard, is 382-9898.

Calling Collectors

For sale: an 1898 CPR timetable, a 1904 map of Canada, a 1919 road map of Vancouver Island, a 50-year-old radio, a hand-wound portable gramophone.

Good will Enterprises will hold another collectors' items auction next Saturday at its rehabilitation centre, 220 Bay, with preview at noon and sale at 1:30 p.m.

About 120 assorted lots of collectibles have been selected for the sale from articles donated to the centre.

Among them is an 11th edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, on India paper with red leather binding. In addition there is silverware, pottery, paintings, period dresses, furniture, cutlery and a copper fish kettle.

Special Tribute

Administration and staff at Mount St. Mary Hospital will deliver a special tribute next Wednesday to the volunteers who help with patients throughout the year.

The hospital, at 999 Burdett Ave., has 127 beds for mostly elderly patients requiring long-term care and there are about 60 people who regularly donate time to help them in a variety of ways, a hospital spokesman said Friday.

The volunteers range from young people who help feed patients their evening meals and operate a mobile shopping cart to women who assist with handicrafts and discussion groups and men who volunteer as drivers, she said.

Trackshoes Sale Set

Operation Trackshoes, a group working with young people who are mentally and physically handicapped, will hold a garage sale May 16 at 2535 Government St.

Funds raised will help finance the organization's sixth annual track and field meet for the handicapped next month.

People interested in promoting understanding, awarenes and acceptance of the problems of the handicapped are invited to attend meetings of the Handicapped Action Committee at CNIB headquarters, 1609 Blanshard, the third Monday each month at 7 p.m.

More informatibn is available at 385-1082.

HELICOPTER SEARCHLIGHTS TO BE TESTED

Trials will begin this month on the feasibility of mounting searchlights on searth and rescue helicopters.

The move was announced by defence department executive assistant M. G. Cloutier in a letter to Dr. Bob Somerville of Campbell River, a Vancouver Island rescue coordinator.

He said Night Sun searchlights will be installed on the helicopters and when money is available they will be equipped with marine VHF-FM radios.

Before you spend thousands on a new car, spend 5 minutes learning how to protect it.

When you put out big money for a car, that car better put out for you. It has to last. It has to perform. A difficult task these days with increased emission control laws that tax an engine's efficiency.

And that's where STP Oil Treatment can help. A recent test showed that STP reduces engine wear and oil consumption. The test was conducted in the U.S. with cars ranging from one with only 1,867 miles on it, to one with over 250,000 miles on it. A single and a multi-grade premium oil were used.

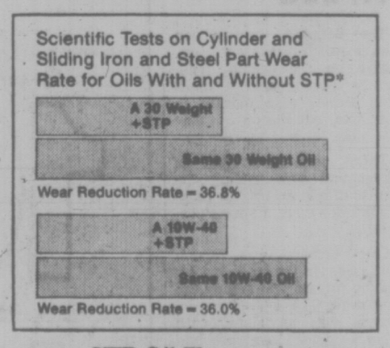
Each car was tested for two 6,000 mile oil change intervals without STP Oil Treatment. Then, the test was repeated with STP.

Professional drivers ran the cars through a range of speeds from stop-and-go driving to long stretches at 55 mph.

The following graphs and information are the results of that test.

STP Oil Treatment reduced the engine wear rate by an average 36.4%. Here's how:

It's a fact, motor oil can lose effectiveness with use. Even a premium grade 10W-40 weight. This can happen because some of the important ingredients are depleted as you drive. And, that's where STP Oil Treatment can help.



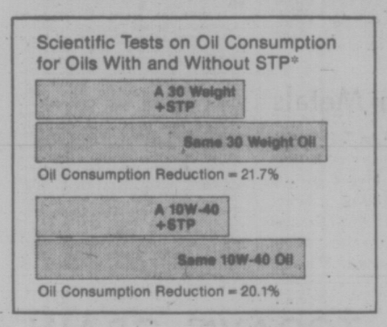
STP Oil Treatment fortifies, or toughens, motor oil. In doing so, it helps reduce the wear rate of lubricated sliding iron and steel parts, as well as parts containing copper and aluminum. Engine parts like cylinders, rings, bearings, cams and lifters.

STP Oil Treatment reinforces the oil's ability to withstand the abuse of friction and heat developed in a running engine.

Metal-to-metal wear is reduced. It's as simple as that.

STP Oil Treatment reduced oil consumption by an average 20.9%. Here's how:

The reason STP Oil Treatment reduces oil consumption is a simple one. It retards the oxidation of motor oil. Therefore, the test cars used less oil. No matter what the weight.



STP Oil Treatment provides increased lubrication at the time it's most needed. That's because under the pressure of increased friction and heat build-up of a fast running engine, the long chain polymers in STP uncurl and expose more of the actual molecules' surfaces.

Also, oil treated with STP drains off moving parts more slowly, leaving a film of lubricant on critical surfaces for a longer time when the engine is not running.

The time to use STP Oil Treatment is at every oil change. And, the first time you need oil.

In new or rebuilt engines, or engines in good condition, use one can of STP Oil Treatment per 4 or 5 quart crankcase. About 10%. In engines where oil consumption is high, use up to 20% of STP or two cans per crankcase.

And, STP will not settle out of solution. Once mixed with motor oil, it remains permanently mixed in the solution.

STP Gas Treatment is another fine product you should know about. Here's why:

While it's true today's gasoline contains cleaning additives, no gasoline when used over a period of time can make a carburetor cleaner. Instead, when used, gasoline leaves deposits on the carburetor throat and other internal parts. These gummy resins are by-products of fuel. They collect dirt that passes through the air filter down into the carburetor. Dirt that can have a serious effect on engine performance. Whether moving on a highway or idling at a stop light. Dirt that reduces engine efficiency and adds to fuel consumption.

And, that's where STP Gas Treatment can help. STP Gas Treatment can clean that dirty carburetor. And, keep it clean. It can help keep valves, spark plugs, PCV valves, and fuel systems clean as well.

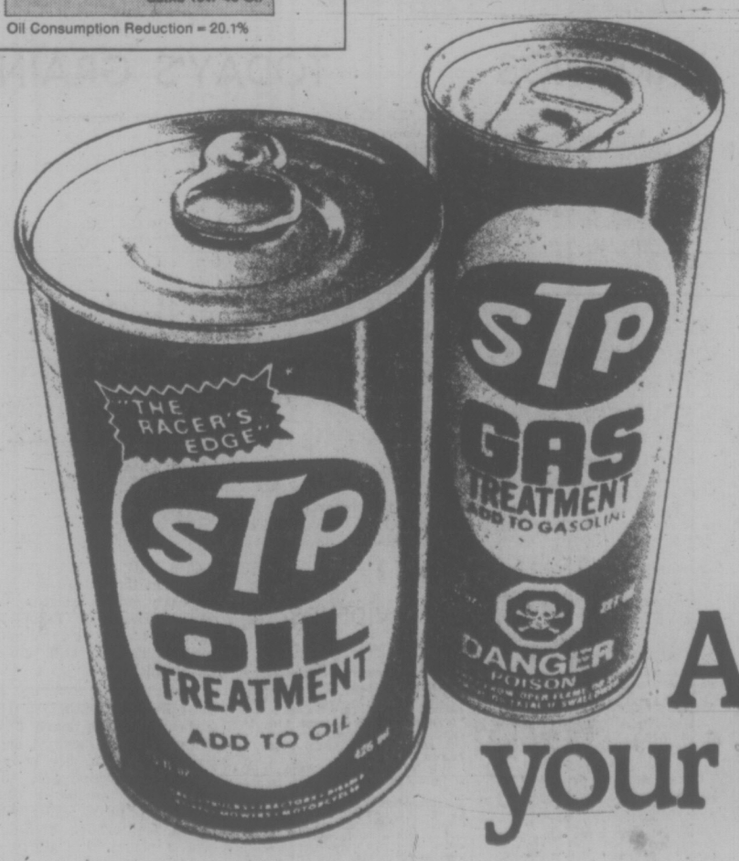
STP Gas Treatment also contains an effective anti-rust agent that provides protection against damages caused by moisture accumulation in the fuel system. And, it's as simple as adding one can of STP Gas Treatment to every tank of gas.

Also, STP Gas Treatment is safe to use with unleaded gas and has no effect on either the life or the catalyst action of catalytic converters. Very important.

It all adds up. Here's why:

Clearly, STP Oil Treatment and STP Gas Treatment are products right for the times. It's a simple matter of arithmetic when you consider that a car wash can cost more than a single can of STP Oil Treatment or Gas Treatment.

Think it over. With what your car costs you, shouldn't you get a run for your money?



*Here's what the graphs mean: On the wear graph, for example, for every 1,000 miles driven, 64.8 milligrams of iron were worn away without STP in a 10W-40 oil, and 41.5 milligrams of iron were worn away with STP in the same 10W-40 oil. This is an average reduction in wear rate (calculated from parts per million of iron measured in the crankcase oil), of 36%. Of course, use of STP will not always result in a 36% reduction in wear rate. The results shown are averages for the test cars. Results for individual test cars varied. The actual wear and oil consumption results that you obtain may also vary depending upon the way you drive, driving conditions, the motor oil you use, your car's condition, model year and optional equipment. What these scientific tests show is that the use of STP Oil Treatment will help reduce wear and oil consumption.

A run for your money.

EX-DRUNKS, JUNKIES TO WHOOP IT UP

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The biggest crowd of ex-drunks and ex-junkies ever assembled will meet June 26 in Metropolitan Stadium to celebrate being sober.

The stadium, home of the Minnesota Twins and Vikings and scene of some of the world's liveliest tailgate parties, will make history by serving only coffee and soda pop — hundreds of gallons of it.

More than 22,000 tickets already have been sold to recovering alcoholics and drug addicts, their families and friends — young and old — and a sellout crowd of 47,000 is expected for "Freedomfest '76, a Celebration of Sobriety."

Turkey Warns U.S.

ANKARA (AP) — Rejection by the U.S. Congress of the new billion-dollar defence agreement between Turkey and the United States might mean the end of Turkish military co-operation with the United States, Premier Suleyman Demirel warned Sunday.

The Ford administration agreed in March to give Turkey $1 billion in military aid during four years in return for the re-opening of 26 U.S. bases in Turkey. The bases were closed after Congress halted arms shipments to Turkey in retaliation for Turkey's use if U.S. weapons in the invasion of Cyprus in July 1974.

A similar $700-million agreement is pending with Greece, but congressional approval for both appears unlikely. No date has been set for Congress to vote on the agreements.

"If the agreement is rejected, it should be better not to have it," Demirel said in an interview. "It would be very difficult to have another agreement along these lines or along other lines.

INSULIN MAY CAUSE BLINDNESS

RESTON, Va. (AP) — Researchers say the insulin that has saved millions of diabetics from death may cause one of the disease's most ravaging after-effects — blindness.

The first indications that insulin may be a two-edged sword came in results of studies with rhesus monkeys. Test results were announced Sunday by researchers at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"The results if our study raise important questions concerning whether insulin, apart from its ability to prolong life, may contribute to the development of diabetic proliferative ocular eye disease," said Dr. Alan Shabo.

Proliferative diabetic retinopathy is a disease seen in various stages in the majority of diabetics. As it progresses, the disease can result in bleeding inside the eyeball, detached retinas and other complications that can severely hamper vision.

Dr. Shabo and other eye specialists told a science writers' seminar sponsored by Research to Prevent Blindness Inc. that insulin has done diabetics much more good than possible harm.

If further research definitely links insulin and eye disease, that would give clues to the process bringing on the ailment and might lead to discovery of ways to reverse or block the disease, they said.

Diabetes is a disease in which the body's ability to burn up sugar is hampered because the pancreas does not produce enough insulin. The condition is controlled through substituting insulin from animals, mainly cows, or through weight control and diet.

67 Journalists 'Jailed or Missing'

LONDON (UPI) — At least 67 journalists have been jailed for political reasons or have disappeared in 17 countries around the world, Amnesty International said Sunday.

The private human rights group issued a list of the journalists on the eve of an International Press Institute meeting in Philadelphia, saying "many of the journalists on this list are held without charge or trial."

"Virtually all are detained in violation of Article 19 of the United Nations universal declaration of human rights," the British-based organization said.

"Some have been subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment."

According to the list, which Amnesty International said was correct as of April 23, Indonesia has jailed the largest number of journalists — 21. Most of these "have been detained since 1965," it said.

It published the names of 47 more journalists held in 16 other Nations: Bangladesh, Brazil, Chile, Cuba, India, Korea, the Philippines, Singapore, South Africa, the Soviet Union, Taiwan, Tanzania, Thailand, Turkey, Uruguay and Yugoslavia.

Seven Soviet journalists were identified as detained in "special psychiatric hospitals" or corrective labor colonies."

The list, issued to coincide with the International Press Institute's 25th general assembly, named six journalists imprisoned or "disappeared" in Brazil, five in Yugoslavia and smaller numbers in the other nations. Amnesty International said the list was far from comprehensive, noting "there are almost certainly more journalists detained in the world and equally certainly more countries that are holding journalists in custody."

Angola Still Worried By 'Trouble Spots'

LUANDA (WP) — Angolan President Agostinho Neto says there are still some "trouble spots" along the country's northern and southern borders and for the first time accused indirectly both Zaire and South Africa of continuing to back armed incursions into Angola.

"There are incursions being made from outside against our country," he said, referring to Angola's border with Zaire in the north. "And in the same manner, there is a certain agitation on our southern border."

"There have been violations of our border in the south . . . and this (has happened) after we had contacts with the authorities of these countries who promised to keep their troops away from our borders."

Although he mentioned no country by name, it was clear from the context that he was referring to Zaire on Angola's northern border and South Africa, and possibly Zambia, on its southern one.

The Angolan government has had direct negotiations with Zaire and Zambia over their past policy of support for the two pro-western factions defeated in the recently ended civil war here. And it had indirect contacts through Britain and the Soviet Union in March to arrange for the withdrawal of South African troops from southern Angola.

Neto made no threat in his speech to take action against either Zaire or South Africa. But the fact that he even mentioned the issue was taken here as a sign of the Angolan government's growing irritation with its neighbors. Both Zaire, Zambia and South Africa supported the losing pro-Western factions against the victorious Cuban and Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola during the civil war.

In the past, the Angolan government has tended to dismiss the continuing troubles in the north and south as "banditism" as a part of the final death throes of the two defeated factions. But there is now apparently concern that South Africa, Zaire and Zambia may still be secretly backing three groups despite their pledges to end all aid to them.

So long as these problems continue on Angola's borders, it is regarded here as extremely unlikely that the new Angolan government will feel secure enough to ask for the withdrawal of any Cuban troops as the United States has asked.

The "trouble spots" (literally centres on instability) in the north that Neto was referring to are believed to be mainly in the oil-producing enclave of Cabinda, where there is still an active seccionist movement, and the northeast region of the country, where there are reportedly still some guerrillas of the routed National Front for the Liberation of Angola army operating.

In the south, there are scattered units of the other defeated pro-Western faction, the National Union for the Total Indepence of Anola, still reportedly harassing troops of the Cuban army and the victorious Popular Movement forces.

While none of these groups any longer poses a serious threat to the central government, their continuing sporadic attacks are apparently a cause of some concern to the Popular Movement leaders who are anxious to get on with the task of national reconciliation and reconstruction.

In the past month, there have been two attacks by National Union soldiers against the Benguela railroad reported from outside Angola and in one of them a locomotive was damaged and one person, possibly a Cuban, killed.

APPEAL MADE ON TAX FINE

TOKYO (UPI) — Yoshio Kodama, a key figure in $12 million Lockheed bribe scandal in Japan, asked a Tokyo tax office to dismiss a $5 million fine for tax evasion.

The Tokyo district public prosecutors' office last March indicted Kodama for tax evasion charges of $2,846 million in 1972 and $4 million, plus penalties, for the period between 1970 and 1972.

Lockheed Aircraft Co. has said it paid the 65-year-old ultra-rightist $7 million in agent's fees to promote its airplane sales in Japan.

Crimson Tide Checks Speedy Japanese Side

Combining poise and an aggressive offence, Crimson Tide of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union rolled to a 33-18 triumph over the touring All-Japan side before 900 delighted spectators Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Tide led all the way against the smaller but faster visitors and it took some strong defensive play to keep the Island representatives out front.

Jim Wenman of Oak Bay Wanderers, Ken Wilke of the University of Victoria Vikings and Steve Thompson of Castaways scored two tries each for the Tide.

Wenman, the Tide fullback, played a particularly strong role in the victory. Besides scoring the tries, he stopped several rushed by the Japanese speedsters with some alert tackling and long clearing kicks.

Veteran standoff Gillie Greig topped all scorers with nine points on three conversions and a penalty goal.

Greig's counterpart, Yuji Matsuo, had an off day. He managed only one of three conversion attempts and missed two penalty goals.

The Tide led 15-10 at the half and were hard-pressed until Thompson and Wilke scored tries about a minute apart to boost the margin to 29-19.

Centre Masao Yoshida accounted for two of the tourists' tries during their bid to catch up in the second half. Both came at the end of sparkling plays that drew loud ovations from the spectators.

Hirotaka Ujino scored the two All-Japan tries in the first half.

There were several stoppages of play because of injuries and prop Naoshi Kumagai was taken to the hospital for a suspected concussion but released shortly afterward.

It was the second setback in three of the five matches All-Japan is scheduled to play in B.C. and Alberta. The side opened their tour with a 39-18 loss to University of British Columbia Thunderbirds the previous weekend and then bounced back for a 25-14 victory over Vancouver Reps last Wednesday.

Next match on the tour is against the B.C. Reps on Wednesday in Burnaby's Swangard Stadium and the visit ends with a May 15 tussle against the Alberta Reps in Calgary.

Cherry Picked By Broadcasters

OAKLAND (AP) — Don Cherry of Boston Bruins has been named coach of the year by the National Hockey League Broadcasters Association.

Cherry received 87 of a possible 125 points and was named on 24 of the 25 ballots. He will receive a trophy and $1,000 cash at an NHL luncheon next week in Philadelphia.

Al Arbour of New York Islanders was second in the voting with 48 points and Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens was third with 34.

English, Scots Set for Collision

England's new-look soccer team beat Wales, 1-0, at Cardiff on Saturday in their first match of the British championship series. In one other series match, Scotland beat Northern Ireland, 3-0, at Glasgow's Hampden Park.

England manager Don Revie, looking beyond the championship to England's first World Cup qualifying tie in Finland next month, experimented with several new young players, partly because of injuries to experienced men.

Wales started at a fierce pace but England emphasized its superiority in the second half and the goal came in the 57th minute from winger Peter Taylor of Crystal Palace, whose only previous appearance in an international match was in the role of a substitute.

Skipper Gerry Francis beat off a challenge from a Welsh defender and flicked the ball inside to Taylor who fired a low drive from the edge of the penalty area.

At Glasgow, Archie Gemmill, Don Masson and Kenny Dalglish scored for the Scots who led 1-0 at the half.

The Scots, who now lead the series with two wins after beating Wales, 3-1, on Thursday, could have had more goals.

Willie Pettigrew missed two good chances early in the game and Derek Johnstone, who later replaced him, failed to find the target.

The Scots' great strength was in midfield where Gemmill, Rioch and Masson dominated with Gemmill sending a stream of passes through the Irish defence.

A key match in the series comes next Saturday when England meets Scotland at Hampden Park.

National Hoop Team Loses Two

STRAKONICE, Czechoslovakia (CP) — Canada's national women's basketball team was defeated 82-47 by Poland at an international tournament Sunday, the team's second loss in two days after upsetting the Soviet Union on Friday night.

Canada lost 65-43 Saturday to Czechoslovakia after trailing 25-14 at halftime.

The losses dropped Canada into a tie for third with Italy.

Bev Bland of Richmond, B.C., was the leading scorer for the Canadians who trailed Poland 40-24 at halftime.

Coach Brian Heaney of Halifax said his team was not prepared for the game against Poland.

Canuck Gymnasts Fail to Qualify

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — Canada's men failed to qualify Saturday for the gymnastics at their own Montreal Olympic Games despite a better performance than the rival Bulgarians who, however, had accrued a higher points total at previous qualification meets.

Among the six nations left to qualify for the Olympics — the first six had been determined after the world championships in Varna, Bulgaria — the Americans made sure of their berth, along with Switzerland, France, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

The Canadians scored 263.65 points in the compulsories and another 266.00 in the free style events for a total of 529.65 points. The Bulgarians, reaching only ninth place behind the seventh-placed Canadians, accured 526.35. Thus the aggregate result remained 548.535-545.280 in favor of the East European country.

The two-day event was staged because of allegations that inflated points were awarded in other pre-Olympic events. The Wiesbaden meeting was decided to count 40 per cent and the previous meet 60 per cent toward the qualification total.

The Canadian competitors were Philip Delesalle and Bruce Medd of Victoria, Owen Walstrom of Vancouver, Keith Carter of Winnipeg, Naasaki Nadsaki and Steve Mitruk of Toronto, Nigel Rothwell of Windsor, Ont., and Pierre Leclerc of Montreal.

Peron Wins Cycle Race

Michael Peron broke away from the pack on the final lap to win the 38 kilometre Victoria Wheelers' bicycle road race Sunday at William Head.

He finished with a time of 66 minutes, 45 seconds. Mike Rasmussen was second in 67:00 during the combined junior and senior event while Terry Oldford, Philip Quillevere and Pat Peron were next in line.

In the 19 km. schoolboy event, Scott Clazie emerged in front of a three-rider spring finish. Bob Rainford was second and Phil Langrish third, all in a time of 38:13.

Title Retained

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Lonnie Bennett of Los Angeles battered Bill Douglas senseless in eight rounds Saturday night to retain his World Boxing Council North American light-heavyweight boxing championship with a technical knockout.

Toronto Feels Safe With Black Panther

By The Canadian Press

The Black Panther is paying early-season dividends for Toronto Metros-Croatia of the North American Soccer League.

Eusebio de Silva Ferreira, better known as the Black Panther, scored for the third time in two games, lifting Toronto to a 1-0 victory Sunday over Washington Diplomats.

The win, before 4,205 fans, gave Toronto a 2-2 won-lost record, 23 points and first place in the league's Northern Division.

Eusebio, the 34-year-old Porguguese star signed by the Metros two weeks ago, scored on a diving header in the 38th minute.

In other games Sunday, Minnesota Kicks defeated San Jose Earthquakes 4-1 and Los Angeles Aztecs beat Seattle Sounders 4-3.

In games Saturday, Boston Minutemen shut out Hartford Bicentennials 3-0, Rochester Lancers beat Miami Toros 3-0, Philadelphia Atoms downed New York Cosmos 2-1, Dallas Tornadoes shut out Portland Timber 2-0, San Jose beat St. Louis Stars 3-0 and San Antonio Thunder edged Los Angeles 3-2.

Vacouver Whitecaps were idle at the weekend.

George Best tied the game with a goal in the final three minutes of regulation play, then booted home the game-winner in the tie-breaker series as Los Angeles downed Seattle.

Close Call for Champs

It took injury time and sudden-death overtime, but Lord Tweedsmuir of Surrey capped an unbeaten season by defeating St. Michael's University School 20-16 in the final of the 16-team B.C. spring high school rugby championship Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

The Surrey school won all 14 matches it has played this season.

St. Michael's appeared to have the victory in its grasp when Tom Blades kicked his second penalty goal of the match with about four minutes to play to put the Victoria champions ahead, 16-12.

Tweedsmuir pressed relentlessly, however, and came through with the tying points in injury time when Terry Lescisin went over for a try on the second-to-last play.

Referee Don Burgess ordered two 10-minute sudden-death overtime sessions after the Tweedsmuir conversion attempt went astray.

Tweedsmuir dominated subsequent play and after about five minutes, Dennis Silverstone charged over for the winning try.

John Blackstock and Brad Moore scored single tries for St. Michael's, who led 7-6 at the half. Blades also had one conversion.

Mark Iannone and Dave Kaye also scored tries for the Fraser Valley champions and Rob Jones kicked two conversions.

Tweedsmuir gained the final by tripping Centennial of Coquitlam 19-7 while St. Michael's needed a late try by Blackstock to edge Kelowna 4-0 in semi-finals played Saturday morning at Mt. Douglas High School.

In consolation play the same day, Kelowna hammered Centennial 31-8 in a match that decided third and fourth place; defending-champion Oak Bay Barbarians finished fifth by blanking Alberni 20-0, and Alberni placed sixth with a 12-8 win over Claremont Spartans.

South Delta, which dropped a 22-6 decision to Oak Bay earlier, finished seventh when Claremont (eighth) defaulted its final match.

No Buttons Left to Push So Red Sox Can't Panic

By The Associated Press

There's no panic in Boston, perhaps because manager Darrell Johnson of the Red Sox has no buttons left to push.

"There's not much we can do with our lineup with three people laid up," Johnson said Sunday after his defending American League champions saw their losing streak reach nine in a row—longest since 1963—with a 6-5 loss to Texas Rangers.

With centre fielder Fred Lynn, shortstop Rick Burleson and third baseman Rico Petrocelli all sidelined, the Red Sox bore little resemblance to the club that took Cincinnati to seven games in the 1975 World Series before losing on a bloop single in the ninth inning.

In Sunday's other games, Oakland A's nipped New York Yankees and ex-team-mate Catfish Hunter 4-3 in 12 innings, Minnesota Twins downed Milwaukee Brewers 6-4, Chicago White Sox held on to defeat Detroit Tigers 4-2 for Wilbur Wood after the pitcher was struck by a line drive and suffered a broken left kneecap, Kansas City Royals trimmed Baltimore Orioles 7-4 and California Angels edged Cleveland Indians 3-2.

Seven of the setbacks in Boston's losing streak—the last place Red Sox are 8½ games out of first in the East—have come at the hands of the Rangers, whose eight-game winning string is a club record.

On Sunday, the Rangers rallied for two runs in the eighth inning on a walk, singles by Jim Sundberg and Juan Beniquez and second baseman Denny Doyle's throwing error on a potential double play ball — Boston's third miscue of the game.

The Red Sox had an early 4-0 lead as Cecil Cooper and Jim Rice homered.

"No panic," Johnson insisted. "We have to keep going out there with confidence."

Bert Campaneris' sacrifice fly in the 12th innning scored Sal Bando as the A's defeated Hunter behind Paul Lindblad's brilliant seven-inning, one-hit relief stint.

Bando walked to start the inning and went all the way to third on Larry Lintz' sacrifice bunt when the bag was left uncovered.

Hunter got to the base late and took a throw, but umpire Rich Garcia ruled he missed the tag. Campaneris then hit a line drive to right field to end the game.

Wood, only pitcher in White Sox history to win 20 games four years in a row, blanked Detroit on three hits for 5 2-3 innings before he was hit by Ron LeFlore's line drive. The fractured kneecap may sideline him for the rest of the season.

Washington Swimmers Dominate Invitational

John Weston, an unattached swimmer attending the University of Washington, emerged as the only four-event winner during the three-day Victoria invitational swim meet which concluded Sunday at Crystal Pool.

Weston won all four men's freestyle events at distances of 100, 200, 400 and 1,500 metres.

University of Washington Huskies walked off with the team title with a total of 756 points, Hyack Swim Club of New Westminster placed second with 737 and Canadian Dolphin Swim Club of Vancouver placed third with 690.

Victoria Amateur Swim Club, the host team, was fourth with 533 while Juan de Fuca Coho Swim Club, the only other team entered from Vancouver Island, finished 10th with 139.

Kinji Retains Pro Mat Title

Kiji Shibuya retained his Pacific Coast professional wrestling title in a defaulting manner Sunday and decisions were hard to come by in other bouts on the Memorial Arena card.

Shibuya was declared the winner of the main event when challenger Jim Snuka was injured after becoming entangled in the ropes.

No decision was rendered when Andre the Giant and Don Leo Jonathan were both counted out of the ring; a tag-team battle between John Quinn and Sigfried Steinke and Buck Ramstad and George Wells ended in a draw, and Bruce Smith and Eric Froelich also fought to a draw.

Frank Balois forfeited another scheduled bout to Keith Franks because of an arm injury suffered Saturday.

LaPointe's Sudden Thrust Gives Habs Narrow Victory

MONTREAL (CP) — Somehow in the roar of 17,582 frantic fans, Steve Shutt heard teammate Guy Lapointe yelling at him.

A quick flick of his stick and Shutt deposited the puck on Lapointe's stick and the Montreal defenceman moved in to the dot in the left-wing faceoff circle and fired a shot by Flyers' goaltender Wayne Stephenson at 18:38 if the third period Sunday night to give the Canadiens a 4-3 win over Philadelphia and a 1-0 lead in their National Hockey League Stanley Cup best-of-seven final series.

Jim Roberts, Larry Robinson and Jacques Lemaire scored the other goals for the Canadiens, who trailed 2-0 after one period and 3-2 with 5:17 gone in the third period after Larry Goodenough had put Philadelphia ahead with a powerplay goal.

Reggie Leach, with a record-breaking 16th goal in post-season play—the most goals scored in one playoff year—and Ross Lonsberry gave Philadelphia a 2-0 first-period lead which they lost when Roberts and Robinson scored in the second.

The winning goal came suddenly, as many were expecting that both teams would engage in their first overtime game of the playoff season.

"I heard the yell, so I just put it where the yell was," explained Shutt. "That's the best way to describe it. If Lapointe hadn't yelled, I wouldn't have given it to him."

Lapointe said Shutt "was fighting along the board with Tom Bladon so I screamed at him that I was loose at centre."

"He got the puck to me so I went down two-on-one with Guy Lafleur. (Jim) Watson threw out his stick in front, so I decided to take a shot and it hit the post and went right in. It was a low shot right on the ice."

Stephenson, who was outstanding at times during the game, thought he had the angle covered on the Montreal defenceman.

"I didn't think he had anything to shoot at," said Stephenson. "Obviously he had a little bit."

The Flyers came close to forcing overtime but Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden came up with a game-saving stop on a shot by Jim Watson with less than 20 seconds to play.

"I thought it was in," said Watson. "I let it go and he came across the net and got it. I was trying for the corner and did hit the corner and he got the shot. I'll remember him for that one."

While the Canadiens had an 11-4 edge in first-period shots, it was the Flyers who left the ice with a 2-0 lead with Leach's goal just 21 seconds after the opening faceoff and Lonsberry's effort at 13:22.

"It was a race for the puck and (Bobby) Clarke got it and apparently passed it back to Leach blindly," Montreal goalie Ken Dryden said. "Leach was moving in and drew his stick back. He didn't stop it. He just shot it."

Roberts and Robinson each popped their third goals of the playoffs in a span of 2:26 in the middle period before Goodenough shot the Flyers into a 3-2 lead in the final period while Pierre Bouchard was serving a holding penalty.

Lemaire banked a shot off the goal post to Stephenson's left to tie the score at 10:02 and set the stage for Lapointe's game winner.

The series resumes here Tuesday.

QUEBEC STEALS ONE WITH GOALIE'S HELP

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Ron Racette of Quebec Remparts said several times during the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League season he felt Maurice Barrette was the best goaltender in the league and perhaps the whole country.

Barrette showed Hamilton Fincups, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, his stuff Sunday afternoon as the Remparts sneaked a 4-3 win in the opening game of the Memorial Cup round-robin tournament.

"Our goaltender was just unreal," said Racette. "I said from the beginning of the year that he was the best in our league and maybe in the country. I know he was definitely the best goaltender in the Quebec league."

But Barrette and his teammates have little time to savor the opening-day win. Tonight they meet the rugged New Westminster Bruins, the Western Canada Hockey League representatives at the three-team event for Canada's national major junior hockey championship.

Remi Levesque, Jean Gagson, Eddy Godin and Yvan Hamelin scored Sunday for the Remparts, who held a 3-0 lead after two periods only to see Hamilton cut it to one goal with just over five minutes to play.

Steve Hazlett scored twice for Hamilton with Ric Seiling getting the other. While he did not score, Hamilton captain Dale McCourt had 14 shots at Barrette, but was stymied.

For the most part, the game was a dull affair, slowed down by several penalty calls made by referee Darryl Havrelock of Edminton. There was little to excite the 7,983 fans in the first two periods, but action picked up as Hamilton tried it's comeback.

Bates Still Undefeated

It might be considered a negative touch, but Stan Kern got a charge out of the opposition's battery at the weekend.

The Colonel Kern picked up two of the victories as Victoria Bates ran their winning streak to 10 straight by sweeping four games from New Westminster Royal Towers.

Bates defeated New Westminster 1-0 and 13-1 Saturday and came right back to Royal Athletic Park on Sunday to claim 3-0 and 5-4 victories.

The fireballing Kern won both one-run decisions with "help" from the other battery.

Kern won Saturday's opener when Reg Underwood scored the game's only run in the bottom of the seventh inning. Underwood coaxed a walk out of New Westminster's Larry Heath. With two out, the speedy Victoria outfielder stole second. Moments later a passed ball enabled Underwood to advance to third and when catcher Mel Armstrong's attempted pickoff throw went wild Underwood completed his tour of the bases.

Kern won his fourth straight game with another seventh-inning gift in the series finale Sunday.

Bunt singles by Carl Walker and Mike Taaffe got Bates started. After both advanced on Ken Bate's outfield fly for the first out of the inning, New Westminster loaded the bases with an intentional walk to Harvey Stevenson. Walker was then forced out at home but New Westminster pitcher Barry Bock walked Bob Holness on four straight pitches with two out to send Taaffe in with the winning run.

Stevenson supplied the game's big clout with a three-run homer in the third inning.

Bate was the hitting hero in the 13-1 romp with a four-for-four performance, including a double and triple. Dave Ruthowsky checked Royal Towers on four hits to win his fourth game.

Pre-Game Warmup Has All the Heat

Rockland Nationals made it three in a row and for the second straight time the finalists in the Centennial Cup series engaged in a 45-minute fight even before the hockey action started Sunday at Rockland, Ont. Naationals defeated Alberta's Spruce Grove Mets 5-3 to take a 3-0 lead in the national tier two championship. The fourth game will be played tonight.

The referee and linesman rushed onto the ice in stocking feet when teams, for the second time in succession, engaged in a brawl that began in the pre-game warmup.

It apparently started when one of the Rockland players strayed into the Spruce Grove end of the ice and was belted by one of the Alberta players.

Because of the chippiness inherent in the series, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association officials responsible after the Friday night fracas ordered the teams to stay strictly to their own end of the ice during the pre-game period.

"I can't recall anything like it before in junior hockey," said Jean-Marc Lalonde, CAHA series co-ordinator.

"I'm only glad Al Johnson (CAHA president) was here to see it. Otherwise he wouldn't believe my report."

In autosport, an unknown Canadian, Rod Remner, 24, of Toronto surprised racing experts by winning the Formula Ford Race at Zanvoort, The Netherlands. Remner, who was not even listed in the official program, won the 143.793 kilometre event in 35 minutes and 15.8 seconds.

In Silverstone, Eng., John Fitzpatrick and Tom Walkinshaw of Britain drove their BMW to victory in the Silverstone Six Hour race for the Silhouettes, special production models world manufacturers championship. In Nashville, Tenn., Cale Yarborough withstood pressure from Richard Petty to win the NASCA Music City 420 Grand National by two seconds on Saturday. Victory was Yarborough's third this year and increased his lead for the national championship. In Ontario, Calif., former drag racer Jim Busby of Laguna Beach, Calif., won an exciting but controversial victory over his friend and car sponsor, Peter Gregg, in the International Motor Sports Association 100-miler for GT cars. Gregg was leading eight laps from the end when Busby plowed into him and spun him out. Gregg protested but later withdrew his official complaint.

Hawley Aboard Handicap Winner

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Saving the best for last despite high weight of 128 pounds, Ancient Title raced through the stretch Saturday to win the $53,350 Caballero Handicap at Hollywood Park.

The six-year-old Ancient Title, with Sandy Hawley of Mississauga, Ont., aboard for his third victory of the afternoon, got in first by one-half length over Big Destiny, with Pay Tribute third in the field of five older horses.

SWIM POOL SINKS

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan age-group swimming championships came to an abrupt halt Sunday morning when a three-ton bulkhead at the deep end of the pool slowly collapsed during heats of a freestyle race for 11 and 12-year-old girls.

Swimmers were on the home stretch in the 10-month-old Lawson Aquatic Centre at the time of the collapse and timekeepers standing on the bulkhead managed to jump free of the slowly sinking structure. Finals of the last 37 events were postponed.

Cause of the collapse has not been determined.

McDonalds Lead; Cables Win First

With a later assist from Burnaby Cablevision, Victoria McDonalds took over sole possession of first place in the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League with a 21-8 Saturday romp over host Richmond Roadrunners.

Burnaby lent a helping hand Sunday by flattening runners-up Coquitlam J-Hawks 19-9 during a game in Burnaby.

Kevin Alexander, who scored a record 207 points in the 28-game schedule last season, appears well on his way toward another massive total.

He scored three goals and assisted on seven others to boost his total to 18 points in two games.

Al Radley, who was a standout against Burnaby, helped ease the club to victory again by making 46 saves in the McDonald net.

Rookie Kevin Kennedy also scored three goals for the Bakery crew while double tallies were added by Bob Cook, Jim Boyd, Ken King, Ross McKinstry, Mike Bryson and Tej Labh.

Dave Cochran (2), Gord Quilty, Joe Marello, Davinder Deol, Rico Bellusci, Len Semenelli and Tim Kelly replied for Richmond.

McDonalds are home to Coquitlam at Esquimalt Arena Tuesday night.

Artley Olson, with three goals and five assists, and Kelly McLenaghen, with four goals and three assists, sparked the Cablevision victory. Dan Tikner set the pace with three goals and two assists for J-Hawks, who would have tied Victoria with a win.

Whalers Outcheck Aeros To Take Lead In Series

HARTFORD (AP) — New England Whalers taught Houston Aeros a lesson Sunday night and it wasn't how to score goals.

"Our forechecking came right out of the scrapbook," said Whalers' coach Harry Neale after New England's 4-1 victory over the Aeros in the third game of their World Hockey Association series.

The win gives New England a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven United States final. Fourth game in the series is here Tuesday night.

"If anyone wanted to make an instructional film on forechecking, this game would have been a perfect one to film," said Neale.

"That was the key to our victory. We forechecked with gusto and had them off balance all night."

Another strong performance by rookie goaltender Cap Raeder and first-period goals by Rosaire Paiement and Don Borgeson sparked New England.

Raeder turned back 29 Houston shots and was working on his third playoff shutout when Mark Howe broke through at 16:20 of the final period. Raeder would have tied a WHA record for most playoff shutouts in one season.

After the Whalers built their 2-0 first-period lead, Thommy Abrahamsson added to the lead with his second goal of the playoffs at 9:53 of the second period and Bob McManama closed the New England scoring with his fourth goal at 14:35 of the final period.

Hornets Romp To Fourth Win

Tom Graham scored four touchdowns to lead Saanich Hornets to a 26-16 decision over Saanich Vampires in a Junior Bantam Canadian Football Spring League game Sunday at Cedar Hill Park. It was Hornets Fourth straight win.

Rob Neil set the pace for Vampires with two TDs.

In the other game, Oak Bay Crusaders romped to a 47-25 victory over Juan de Fuca Tigers. Dale Wong scored five majors for Oak Bay and Steve Percival led Tigers with four TDs.

A's Outrun Burrards

COQUITLAM (CP) — Jim Aitchison scored four goals and Darryl Sauve added a sterling performance in goal Saturday night as Coquitlam Adanacs outran Vancouver Burrards 14-10 in a Western Lacrosse Association game before 500 fans.

Sauve made 46 saves including 14 in the third period when he blanked the Burrards as his team-mates fired three goals to insure the victory.

Kevin Parsons scored three goals for the Adanacs who also got two-goal performances from Moe Jodoin, Dave Durante and Harry Powless.

Pat Differ and Doug Hayes led the Burrards with two goals apiece while Brian Davidson, Bill Foote, Ron Pinder, Gord Frederickson, Dick Crompton and Taki Vohalis added the other counters.

Marie Coasts Home While Don Worries

DON BROWN
—Photographs by Ken Jones

By DOUG PEDEN
Times Sports Editor

Marie Fisher made it a spectacular wire-to-wire run and breezed to the finish, but Don Brown had to charge from behind and worry about pursuers down the home stretch Sunday at Town and Country Lanes.

Although Don had more worries, the final result was the same. Both collected titles in the 13th annual Times Fivepin Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs.

Mrs. Fisher jumped out in front with a sizzling 345 effort in her first game and wound up the women's three-game rolloff with an 892 total for a comfortable 109-point margin over runner-up Dorothy Krimmer, who was gunning for a third rolloff crown.

With former rolloff champion Fred Hickey threatening to run away and hide in the early stages of the men's race, Brown needed some sharp shooting to keep Hickey in sight and finish the first game in second place.

Opening with six successive strikes, Hickey rattled the pins for a first-game 358 although punching a headpin in the 10th frame.

Trailing Hickey by 47 after the second frame, Brown began to move with three straight strikes. He later added a two-timer and completed his opening game with 316, leading third-place Jim Lebold by 20.

Hickey ran into nothing but trouble in the second game, bouncing five headpins and counting only 172.

Don also hit some headpin trouble, but he notched a 247 tally and that was enough to send him out in front, 18 ahead of charging Larry Cross, who fired a six-timer and counted 330 for a two-game total of 545.

Hoping to get away from headpin problems, Brown made a slight adjustment in his delivery for the third game. He made it work for a 283, and that was just enough to get him home ahead of the stylish Cross, who set a contest record when he qualified for the rolloffs with a 1,065 total in the 21st week of this season's 26-week Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition.

Beginning the final game with three strikes, Larry moved out in front in the first frame and was still leading after five.

Then Don connected for a three-timer, moving in front to stay and finishing with 290 for a three-game count of 853.

Open in the eighth frame, Larry wound up with 283 and a total of 828, safely ahead of the 772 fired by Bill Cool, Sr., who set a rolloff record in 1967 with his winning total of 1,022.

Mrs. Fisher and Brown each received a Times Trophy for the triumph, but both missed out on the bonus prize of $100 that goes to any rolloff champion who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times.

Merleen Hill and Ken Grexton, who won the tenpin rolloff titles on April 25, each collected the $100 bonus as a Times subscriber.

In becoming the fourth women's rolloff champion, and the third in the last five years, to score higher than the men's winner, Mrs. Fisher turned in a remarkably consistent effort.

Her only major trouble came when she failed to mark in the first three frames of her second game, but she recovered quickly and finished that games with four strikes for 256.

"I just swung them out," said Marie, a member of the Master Bowlers' Association who is completing her best season on the lanes with averages of 230, 235, 237 and 243 for the four leagues in which she bowled during the winter.

Brown, also a Master Bowlers' Association member and twice with a team in the national tournament, posted averages of 256/258 and 260 in his three leagues.

Unable to compete in many tournaments because of weekend work committments, Don credits the coaching of Mrs. Krimmer for making this his most effective season.

Although unable to seriously challenge the winner, Mrs. Krimmer was second all the way in the women's rolloff, posting games of 274, 259 and 250 for 783 and a 20-point margin over third-place Barb Hyde, who moved up from fourth with 265 in her final game.

WESTS GAIN CUP FINAL ON OVERTIME VICTORY

VANCOUVER — Darryl Hooker and John McGuire scored in the second half of overtime to boost Victoria West to a 3-1 decision over White Rock United in provincial Cup soccer semi-final action here Sunday.

In the other semi-final, Vancouver Italian Canadian Pauls blanked Burnaby Cliff Avenue United, 6-0.

Duncan Smith gave White Rock an early lead with a goal at the 39-minute mark but Steve Forslund evened the count four minutes later.

Wests carried the play all the way but couldn't penetrate the tight White Rock defence and the score remained tied 1-1 until the six-minute mark of the second 15-minute overtime session when Hooker connected. McGuire notched the insurance tally about six minutes later.

Sergio Zanatta and Robin Elliott set the pace for Pauls with two goals each. Singles were added by Doug Wilson and Mike Mceod.

The final for the Provincial Cup, emblematic of senior soccer supremacy in B.C., will be played next Sunday in Victoria. If Victoria West wins the B.C. crown, the Vancouver Island Soccer League's premier division club will play host to the Alberta-Saskatchewan winner in the Western Canada final, Aug. 14.

With Stocker on Shelf Go-Karting Can Be Fun

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Larry Johnson is like all other racers; he'd drive a steam calliope in a parade if there was a checkered flag at the end. But unlike other racers, Johnson seems to be carving out his career in reverse.

Many drivers in the weekly stock car races at Western Speedway got their start with go-karts before graduating to the bigger machines. But Johnson, 26, started as a stock car driver before switching this year to go-karts.

He began as a stock jockey when he was 19 and last year drove a 1966 Chevelle in the superstock class at Western.

He still has the Chevelle, but he lost his sponsor and faced a lot of work on the car to get ready for this year's racing. So he and Guy Shields, a member of his pit crew, turned to go-karts.

"It's a lot cheaper than stock car racing," Johnson explained in the pits during Saturday night's superstock-hobby class program at Western that also featured two go-kart races.

"You could have four karts and a crew for about the same price as you'd pay for a superstock," he said. "I have about $3,000 invested in the superstock, but my partner and I got two new go-karts for $1,000 apiece.

"You don't have to spend that kind of money to get into karting," he added. "We bought the best there was to buy, but you can get a top used kart for $450 or $500.

"This is a relaxing kind of racing," he continued. "I'm having a lot of fun, but it's plenty competitive. I find that many of the techniques I learned in stock car driving can be applied to karts."

Saturday was Johnson's fourth time out with the Capital City Go-Kart Club which races each Saturday afternoon at Western with 68 members and about 36 karts. Unfortunately, Johnson didn't make either of the evening main events, both of which were won by Terry Smalley. Johnson was the victim of a seized piston ring during the afternoon heats.

Still, that didn't seem to dim his enthusiasm. He plans to travel to Portland to get his first look at U.S. karting in two weeks.

Meanwhile, he'll be in the pits each Saturday night for the stock car races.

"I haven't given up stock cars," he said. "I wouldn't do that."

He keeps an active hand in as a member of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association's safety committee.

Johnson must have wondered if he'd be in for an overtime safety session during Saturday night's hobby stock heat race, an eight-lapper involving seven cars that took nearly a half-hour to complete. Spinouts forced two restarts and the race was punctuated by a couple of collisions, neither resulting in injuries. Four cars finished, Gordon Stone getting the chickered.

Billy Hitchcox, who was second, survived to win the hobby feature while Bob Collins fought off runner-up Orton Ker and third-place Ray Vatcher for the victory in the 35-lap superstock main event before 2,730 fans.

Albion, Oak Bay Score in Cricket

Albion, Oak Bay, Alcos and Castaways collected opening victories in the Victoria and District Cricket Association's annual 40-overs competition at the weekend.

Results of these matches, which will be held throughout the season, do not count toward standings.

Albion topped Cowichan by 21 runs at Beacon Hill Park and Oak Bay tripped Nanaimo by 44 runs at Windsor Park on Sunday. Alcos downed Incogs by 62 runs at Windsor and Castaways bounced Saanich by 135 runs at Beacon Hill in Saturday play.

Malcolm Shapks scored 39 to lead Albion batsmen to 116 while Cowichan bowler Tim Lord took four wickets for the loss of 32 runs. Cowichan had 95 for nine when overs ran out. Lord had 29 while Albion bowlers were sparked by Don Hughes (two for 20) and Allan Carter (two for 27).

Oak Bay rang up 86 runs behind the lead of Jan Aten, who scored 23. Nanaimo bowler Nevil Askew toppled seven for 38. Nanaimo was all out for 42 when the Hub City crew came up against the superb Oak Bay bowling of Eric Richards (five for 3) and Kortwright Richards (four for 18).

Bob McKay scored 24, not out, to lead Alcos to 106 as Rob Wilson of Incogs dropped three for 14 and John Wenman took three for 18.

Incogs were dismissed for 44 runs.

CELTICS, SUNS SCORE HOOP WINS

By The Associated Press

Dave Cowens, the Boston Celtics' superstar, went to work on John Lambert, a lightly-tested rookie, late in the fourth quarter Sunday of their National Basketball Association playoff game and suddenly Cleveland Cavaliers were out of the ball game.

The Celtics wound up with a 94-89 victory and a 2-0 advantage in their best-of-seven semi-final.

In the other semi-final, veteran Keith Erickson scored eight points in the second overtime to give Phoenix Suns a 133-129 triumph over Golden State Warriors. Their series is tied at two games apiece with the next game set for Wednesday at Oakland.

New York Nets took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven American Basketball Association final, defeating Denver Nuggets 121-112 Saturday at Uniondale, N.Y.

SOFTBALL

Ingraham Dealt Another Defeat

Ingraham Hotel is discovering that a new season does bring on some changes.

League and playoff champions in the Stuffy McGinnis Major Men's Softball League last year, Ingraham suffered its second straight loss Sunday when the club dropped an 8-5 decision to Seaboard Construction at Central Park.

In other games, Port Angeles dropped Mike's Sports Shop 7-2, Molsons defeated the junior Matthews Heating team 8-3 and Royal Oak Sporting Goods split a double header at Sooke — winning 7-0 behind the pitching of Ken Fox and then losing 3-2.

Ron Kubica tossed a three-hitter to spark Esquimalt Juveniels to a 6-0 voctory over Remcos in a Heywood Avenue Men's League game while Hygrade Radio clouted Taylors 14-1 and 5-1.

In Senior Women's League play at Hyacinth Park, MacDonald's Seniors defeated Seaboard Construction 11-2, MacDonald's Juniors edged London Boxing Club 4-2 and Hygrade Radio mauled CJVI Vicettes, 16-1.

Last-inning heroics settled Sunday's decisions in the Sidney Men's League at Sanscha Park. Roy Walker's triple in the bottom of the seventh gave KOA a 6-5 victory over Victoria Chiefs and the Kampgrounders had to settle for a split when Doug Boden's two-run homer gave Seaboard Properties a 6-4 win.

Hayes Wasn't An Easy Mark

DALLAS (AP) — Mark Hayes' first victory on the professional golf tour was a laugher.

"It's been a long time coming but this is the greatest thrill of my life," he sighed. "I just hope it's going to be easier to win next time."

If it were much easier it would be illegal.

The lean, handsome young Oklahoman, leading from start to finish, blazed home with a 69 Sunday and won the $200,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament almost in a breeze.

It was his first triumph after four years on the tour.

He assaulted the par 71 Preston Trail golf course with rounds of 66, 67 and 71 before the closing 69 that left him 11 under par at 273 and two shots ahead of runner-up Don Bies.

"Next time," grinned Hayes, 26, tucking a $40,000 check in his pocket, "I'm going to come from behind and win.

"It's not much fun to lead every day. I was so afraid of losing that it was really bad form."

Bies banked $22,800 for his second-place finish that included a closing 68.

At any rate, Masters winner Ray Floyd, who once got within three strokes of the leader, matched Hayes' 69 and took third at 277.

Hale Irwin had a final-round 68 to nail down fourth place and $9,400 with a 278 while little Ben Crenshaw added to his growing stature and bank account with a 69 for 279, fifth place and $8,200.

Sally's Shot From Sand Pays $10,000

Times News Services

South Africa's Sally Little, regaining the lead with two clutch birdies on the back nine only to lose it again with two bogeys, won the first Women's International golf tournament Sunday at Hilton Head Island, S.C., by one stroke over Jan Stephenson of Australia by holing a third birdie from a sand trap on the 18th green.

Miss Little's 35-35—70 for the day, and her seven-under 281 for the 72 holes, was worth $10,000.

It was a super finish to the new tournament which sponsors hope will become the women's counterpart to the Augusta Masters.

The two foreign golfers were far in front of the field of top North American professionals and amateurs. Their nearest competition came from Sandra Palmer and Betty Burfeindt, both of whom finished with one over totals of 287.

Elsewhere in golf, Graham Marsh of Australia shrugged off a triple bogey on the 14th and won the $66,660 Wizard tournament in Hashimoto, Japan, Sunday with a three-round total of 212, and South Africa's Vincent Tshabalala finished with a five-under 67 and a 272 total to win the French Open at Letouquet.

Ferguson Swings To Another Crown

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Saturday's homework helped Cec Ferguson to pass Sunday's test.

The long-hitting Gorge Vale amateur captured the C-FAX Vancouver Island Open golf championship for the second time in three years by defeating clubmate and defending champion Grant Milliken 5 and 4 Sunday.

At the same time, Royal Colwood's Pete Moretti claimed the tournament's handicap championship with a 2 and 1 triumph over Gregarah's Vince Clarkson.

Ferguson, who celebrated his 26th birthday on Tuesday, wasn't overly satisfied with his swing earlier in the week. It prompted Ferguson to schedule a lengthy "homework" session Saturday.

He played 18 holes in the morning, came back for nine more in the afternoon and polished it off with a long session on the practice fairway.

"I had to get the swing going," he explained after Sunday's victory. "I can tell by hitting the ball when I'm swinging good."

It took him a few holes to warm up Sunday, but Ferguson soon found satisfaction.

In the final scheduled for 36 holes, Ferguson jumped into a one-up lead after nine, stretched it to three after 18 and was in complete charge with a six-hole margin after 27 holes.

Despite what he felt was an "uninteresting" putting performance, Ferguson had an approximate medal of one under par for the 32 holes played. Milliken was about four over par for the same distance.

It was an uneventful final although one break went against the 22-year-old Milliken when a win may have changed the complexion of the match.

Holding a one-up lead, Ferguson wass too strong with a five-iron shot to the par-three 10th green.

His ball hit a wire fence, however, and ricocheted back into "safe" territory instead of going out-of-bounds. Ferguson was able to get his par and halved the hole to protect his lead.

Both Ferguson and the defending champion had problems on the greens. Although well-conditioned and reading true, the greens seemed to be a shade slower than both Milliken and Ferguson prefer. Both were consistently short with putts for most of the match.

Moretti, a nine-handicapper like Clarkson, hit the first nine greens in regulation figures to grab a one-up lead. That was the margin after 18 but Moretti went two up after 27 and appeared to be in command when he won the 28th and 29th holes to go four up.

Clarkson came back to win the 14th with a par and the 15th with a birdie. The Gregarah manager-greenskeeper also had a chance to win the 16th but missed a five-foot putt for win.

Moretti scored an approximate four-over-par 76 in the morning and was about five over for the 17 afternoon holes.

Clarkson, a former finalist in the championship, was about 10 over for the 35 holes.

The Reunion Is Over

But the Memory Lingers

HONOR OF CUTTING black and gold iced cake at pioneer tea went to one of the oldest living graduates of Vic High, Cecil (Hardie) Leeming, from the class of 1902. Mrs. Leeming was born in 1883. (John McKay photo)

At Government House, people , people . . . and more people.

Days of Sunshine . . .

Two glorious days of sunshine and memories at the weekend rolled up Victoria High School's 100th anniversary reunion for more than 10,000 participants.

Better than 1,000 an hour turned up for class reunions, sports events, a look at the school archives and a chance to turn back the years with friends and old teachers in a day-long program Saturday.

The same brilliant sunshine stayed on for Sunday when thousands reassembled at Government House for tea and more socializing on the lawns, after a night of dancing to the music of Mart Kenney at Memorial Arena.

The Vic High reunion was successful beyond the wildest hopes of its organizers, but like the years at school it became today one more memory in a catalogue spanning most of this century.

A few of the old classmates from each decade were asked to recall their best thoughts of their Vic High years.

One of the oldest of the Old Boys was there in 1905, Johnny MacRae, now of Shelton, Wash., a chum of former jurist Mr. Justice Tom Norris, who was too ill to attend.

With trembling hands he produced a creased and stained copy of an early yearbook and turned to a poem extolling Johnny MacRae's prowess on the rink. His school years were fun:

"'Instead of joy-riding, we used to take a girl in a canoe up the Gorge."

Grace Fynn, class of 1917, had a strong recollection of the First World War, which more than spanned her years at Vic High:

"Some of our best teachers went off to war . . . We were working so hard for the Red Cross knitting a sock a day."

John Zarelli, 1923, paid tribute to "a fine staff of inspiring teachers," but also was fond of the social life: "We learned to dance."

Dorothy Urquhart, 1927, who designed the school pin, remembers the encouragement given to young artists. Her best recollection was "Capt. A. M. Boyd's art gallery. He had a gallery in his room to which all the kids contributed pictures."

Jim Robinson, 1940: "I remember Lewis Clark well, I was in his home room. Strict but fair and never played favorites."

Bindo Dillon, 1946, made many friends and joined a lot of school activites. Though only 4 feet 9½ inches, she made the girls' rep basketball team each year, and remembers passing off her sister Bosso's (1949) report card as her own.

Ray Lee, 1950: "I was new here then, and remember meeting a whole new bunch of people. There was an awfully good staff here. Sports activities were really quite good."

Mary Wickstrom, 1955: "The friends I made. Twenty years later, they're still here."

Bruce Chan, 1960: "Things were very strict. We really had to toe the line; we had our place, and we had to work. Victor Thomson, he ran this place like a ship."

Two grads said something for everyone.

Jane Vaesen, 1965: "Just being part of the school tradition. I didn't belong to anything, just enjoyed being here."

Teatime for Alma (Heyer) Snyder, 1925, from Carstairs, Alta.

MODISH RICK (1963) and Wendy Thomas, 115 Robertson, sidelined for the moment at centennial ball where estimated 7,000 packed Memorial Arena 'til 1 a.m. Sunday.

MEMBERS OF CLASS of '46 bringing each other up to date are Rosemarie (Austin) Haddad, Vancouver; Lee and Ed Weber, Delta, and Ann (Greenwood) Dunae, 775 Cowper. Reunited grads filled arena wall-to-wall for Saturday ball.

'Brazen' Convicts Escape Wilkinson

Vancouver Island police are searching for two Wilkinson Road inmates who bolted from the jail's exercise yard Saturday night, climbed a fence and fled across a field ignoring two shotgun blasts fired by a guard.

Prison director Hal McGillivray called the escape one of the most brazen in the history of the jail.

He identified the escapers as Richard Ernest Alexander, 21, of Campbell River, and George Wesley Kenny, 20, of Nanaimo.

Both men, who were awaiting trial on separate narcotics offences up-Island, had escaped from the jail once before, on April 5.

McGillivray said Alexander and Kenny were in a group of 30 inmates taking exercise in the yard. As the men were being led back to their cellblock at 8 p.m., the two bolted from the line.

They ran for a far corner of the yard on the northeast side, climbed a 10-foot fence, over five strands of barbed wire, and fled across the open field on the other side.

McGillivray said a guard fired a warning shot over their heads and when they didn't stop aimed directly at them and fired again. But by that time they were out of range.

There was no way the guards could pursue the pair, McGillivray said, because "their first job had to be to contain the remaining 28 from escaping too."

Saanich police were on the scene within minutes, McGillivray said, and started a search of the bush behind the jail. An RCMP helicopter was brought in and tracking dogs sent from the RCMP detachment in Nanaimo.

Saanich police Staff-Sgt. Robin Stewart said officers and prison guards searched the area for the better part of the night.

Police said neither man is considered dangerous. Alexander is described as black, five feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes.

Kenny is white, five feet eight inches tall, 140 pounds, with brown hair and eyes.

Both men were wearing green institutional clothing.

SMILING Shirley May, a 17-year-old student at Reynolds Senior Secondary, was chosen May Queen Sunday and will be crowned at an official ceremony on the steps of the legislature May 23 during Victorian Days celebrations. Chosen princesses at the judging Sunday at Saanich Municipal Hall were Barbara Rainsford, of Esquimalt Senior Secondary and Caroline Vanderboor, of Mount Douglas. (Bill Halkett photo)

Rapist Receives 15 Months

Mr. Justice John Gould today handed out what he called his lightest sentence ever to a 41-year-old Victoria man convicted last month of rape.

William Robert Robinson was sentenced to 15 months in jail and Gould recommended it be spent where treatment is available for alcoholism.

Robinson, in a brief comment to the Supreme Court, said "I am my own worst enemy," and added he will do his best to never drink again.

Gould noted that Robinson has already spent three months in jail and both he and the complainant, aged 54, were "very drunk."

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang said it was "quite clear" Robinson is an alcoholic and alcohol was involved in the offence. He suggested a sentence of two and half to three years.

First Pick Three Quarts of Dandelions

WE LOOKED OUT THE other day to see one of our neighbors roving a yellow-spangled vacant lot with a plastic pail in his hand. At first we thought he was collecting greens for his rabbits. Then we noticed that he was nipping off only the heads of those hosting dandelions.

"Wish he'd come over and pick ours," I grumbled.

"I don't," Win said. "We may have a use for them."

With the exception of little children and nature-salad fanciers, nobody has any use for the tough and prolific dandelion. I said as much.

"You're forgetting about dandelion wine," my dear one said. "I had some once, and it was really good."

I'd forgotten about the dark and tangy elixir — hadn't even heard it spoken of for years. The mention of it brought back memories. In the country towns of my boyhood, mothers would send their children out to pick dandelions at the height of the springtime, with explicit instructions.

Just the flower heads, mind! No stems and no grass leaves. And try not to get too many bugs in the pail.

"You make it in a stone crock," I said. "While it's working, it fusses and bubbles and gives off the damnedest smell."

But Win was off to ask for the recipe.

She came back with a copy. We rounded up a couple of ice-cream buckets and went out to harvest a grass plot that could pass for the Field of the Cloth of Gold.

"No stems, remember," Win told me, her fingers already dyed orange by the dandelion juice. "They make the wine too bitter."

We picked industriously. Sometimes we paused to debug an opulent yellow head. I remembered the double standard that used to exist where such home-brewed aperitifs as blackberry cordial and dandelion wine were concerned.

Strait-laced ladies of temperance convictions who looked on store-bought liquor as the devil's agent took pride in their dandelion wine. A thimbleful served with dark, rich fruit cake in the parlor purified the blood and tempered the spleen. They regarded it as a tonic, in no way to be bracketed with the Demon Rum and its pernicious allies. An alcoholic beverage? Nonsense!

We picked three mounded buckets of dandelion heads, then drove to town to hunt up a stone crock. Inflation has got in its licks on stone crocks too; but the technological revolution has produced acceptable substitute containers. We settled for a plastic garbage can.

"That small one should be just right," Win decided.

The clerk nodded. He glanced at my fingers, which still showed a trace of orange.

"Going to make dandelion wine, eh?" he said. "I hope your's turns out better than my last batch!"

Home again, we dumped our dandelions into the new can. We'd done pretty well by the no-stems injunction, and only a corporal's guard of bugs toiled up the sides of the containers.

Win put water on to heat — 14 quarts of it on four burners. When the water came to a boil, we poured it over the dandelions.

"Too bad for any bugs left in there," Win said, "but maybe they'll add a little something to the flavor!"

Following the recipe, we let the dandelions soak overnight.

Next day, we poured off the liquid. Win strained it and put it on to warm while I dumped the dandelion heads into our compost for recycling. Then Win cut up oranges and a lemon while I grated ginger and fingernails.

With the warmed extraction returned to the can, in went the other ingredients. Orange and lemon chunks. The ginger. Two cups of raisins, nine pounds of sugar, and to finish off, one tablespoon of yeast sprinkled on a slice of toast.

Our dandelion wine in the making now sits in a sheltered nook where it won't be tripped over. Once a day, it receives a cautious stirring. It remains only for time and ferment to get in their licks.

The slice of yeasted toast has expanded to three times its original size. The smell when the can lid is lifted is highly promising. It's plain that elemental forces are at work in there.

"When do we get to sample it?" I asked in the course of this morning's inspection.

"Six months from now, Win said, putting the lid firmly in place. "In a little glass, with a piece of fruitcake!"

'Hope for the Best' . . . at Women's Transition House

elizabeth forbes

A big, two-storey house, sitting well back in a lot on a tree-shaded street and with an expanse of green grass, a few flower borders and a child's red wagon near the front steps.

That was my first impression of Victoria Women's Transition House, when I visited there a short time ago.

Inside I was greeted by a pleasant young woman named Margaret.

A small boy with big brown eyes played quietly with some toys (his mother was keeping an appointment with a doctor). In a tidy kitchen an older woman was cooking a meal on a well-used stove.

I had come there to see Margaret and, through her, to learn something about Transition House. So we went into a small room referred to as "the office."

Immediately she said "there is no one person in charge here. Rather, there are four of us, each taking responsibility for a particular area of the work."

Then she smiled and added "actually we didn't plan it that way, it simply fell into that pattern . . . and it seems to work.

Gloria, Liz and Lillian, members of a small regular staff, do the bookkeeping, office filing and upkeep and the maintenance of the house respectively.

Margaret, who started with Transition House as a volunteer, is on hand the better part of each day. She takes her share of interviews and, on occasions, acts as an advocate.

That means going into court.

"Quite often women who come to us are physically and mentally disturbed," she explains. "They've run as far away from the source of their troubles as they can. They're not only from this area but from up-island, other parts of the province, and even farther afield.

"They don't know the city, nor how to go about getting help. So we talk to them, find out, if we can, just what they want to do. Then we try to advise and, if needed, we go into court with them . . . mainly to show someone cares and is there to back them up."

All four young women take their turn at meeting and talking to those who come to the House for help—90 per cent of whom are referred there by Human Resources district offices.

There are four large bedrooms that can be "doubled up" by putting a mother and children and perhaps a single woman in together.

Average number of women using these rooms is around six during a month and the average number of children, nine or ten.

In addition, some 54 or more non-resident women are given counselling or other help in a month.

"Many are young and with young children," Margaret said, "but we also have women in their 40s and 50s, some of them grandmothers, coming here for help."

Length of stay varies from a night or more to as long as two months, with the average around three weeks.

Women in Transition House, even for a night or two, take their share of keeping the place tidy and clean.

"We don't assign set duties," Margaret told me, "rather we let them get together and decide how they wish to divide up the housework."

That, as she sees it, gives them a chance to know each other and to talk out some of their troubles amongst themselves.

Here I was told many of the problems that bring women and children to Transition House, involve physical violence.

And although Margaret and her three fellow workers are attempting to provide a service that will forestall violence and work toward the healing of family relationships, they must deal with this age-old trouble of the powerful bullying the powerless.

Women are gradually refusing to submit to such treatment of themselves and their children, the four young directors point out.

They have begun to recognize that they do no service to their violent partner by remaining available to him for such treatment.

"Rather they recognize their responsibility to establish an environment for themselves and their children (many of whom arrive at Transition House frightened and uncommunicative) based on love and mutual respect."

Therefore serving families has "of necessity" become a priority, Margaret says, "but we do try to include help for widows, unmarried mothers and women and children temporarily without housing and who are not contending with a male partner."

"Also we try to provide shelter and aid for those who for some reason are considered by their social worker, doctor or minister, to be unable to stay alone for periods of time."

It's three years since Transition House was opened at its present location, with a grant-in-aid from the provincial Department of Human Resources.

A few months later, it was purchased by the Department of Public Works.

"We cleaned, painted, built furniture — even beds — and otherwise made the house livable ourselves," Margaret remembers.

At first the place was shared with the Women's Centre and used both as a drop-in place and a residential facility.

When the Centre was relocated on Pandora Street, early last year, Transition House immediately concentrated on an enlarged program geared mainly to provide a service that would instill a sense of personal worth and confidence in the women who come there for assistance.

Inevitably, with limited accommodation, there are times when there is a waiting list for the four available bedrooms. Inevitably, inflation has created economic problems.

The staff has been reduced to a minimum of four and available funds barely cover operating expenses.

Nothing is provided for extras, such as supplies for a craft class recently started within the House by a volenteer who is also an artist.

"We have a corps of volunteers always on call for night duty," Margaret says, "weekends however, we take ourselves."

Then she smiles again and concludes with "we don't get frustrated and we don't expect sudden change in the work we do with the women who come to us for help. Rather, we hope for the best . . . and sometimes we get it!"

As an afterthought she adds "perhaps just being available to those who need us, is the most important phase of our program!"

Can One Wrinkle Lead To A "Prune Face"?

Can neglect—failure to take action against wrinkle-causing dryness lead to shriveled facial lines like the skin on a prune? Yes, your surface skin, like that of a prune, is pulled from beneath by the cells that shrink in size from lack of vital moisture. How can you put back moisture in your skin cells? Simply apply 2nd Début. It contains an anti-wrinkle ingredient CEF that carries water thru the skin surface to dry shrunken cells. As cells expand, they push out—lines and wrinkles fade—often even disappear. Skin softens . . . you should have a younger look . . . in just 10 days or money back. That younger look should last for years with continued use of 2nd Début. Ask for 2nd Début with CEF 600 or double strength 1200 at leading cosmetic counters.

85% Third Mortgage Interest —And It's Perfectly Legal

Credit is the easy way to get what you want when you want it — but it can also be an accelerating juggernaut. Times Business Editor Al Forrest takes a look at how the problems start, how they can be avoided, and where a person sinking under debts can turn for help in this three part series.

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor
(Second of three)

Frank and Martha Brown have just taken out a mortgage on which they are paying an interest rate of just over 85 per cent.

Most people pay only 12 per cent. But Frank and Martha need the money.

They are local pensioners who own nothing of value except their home. It's more like a shack, really, worth about $29,000 but it's all theirs.

Except for the mortgages. There is a first mortgage at 18 per cent interest on which they still owe $14,300. In addition they owe $4,800 on a second mortgage at 24 per cent.

They can't meet the payments. Despite the fact they eat very little, mainly beans, tea and toast, they still spend $114 more per month than they receive in pensions.

Out of desperation they took out a third mortgage.

This document was for $3,000 at 24 per cent interest, which is the limit. But they didn't get $3,000. The company gave them only $1,600, keeping the $1,400 for expenses. These included brokerage costs, an appraisal of the house (nobody looked at it) and legal fees (unspecified).

As a result, they have started paying 24 per cent interest on $3,000, although they got only $1,600.

The mortgage document must, by law, indicate the effective rate of interest — and it does. It clearly states the effective interest rate (because of the $1,400 deduction) is 85.26 per cent.

Frank and Martha read the numbers but signed anyway. They had to meet the payment on the other two mortgages at month's end and the $1,600 will help. For a while.

In a few months they will be even deeper in debt and will have almost nothing left to borrow on. They could lose their house.

All of these mortgages are completely legal and the companies involved have clearly told the couple how much they would have to pay.

The problem is that regular mortgaging companies will not make the loans at 12 per cent because the couple are not a good credit risk and the house is not good security.

Time and again it is the beans-and-tea people, who are pinching pennies to try to last out the month, who have to pay 18 and 24 per cent interest.

Then there is the case of Steve.

He is a vivid example of how the 24 per cent interest charged by finance companies can turn financial trouble into disaster. Victoria community workers say finance companies are a common denominator in most case studies of debt.

Steve has a wife, two children and an income of only $652 per month. He liked to spend more than that. To help meet his bills he borrowed $2,200 from his bank.

But this was soon gone and he borrowed $2,700 from his credit union.

When that was gone, there was no place he could go to get a loan at bank rate interest (around 13 per cent). He had to go to a finance company.

They loaned him $4,000 at 24 per cent interest. He paid $100 the first month, of which $80 was interest. The debt never seemed to get much smaller and the cash was soon gone.

His first problem was that his living costs including food, clothing, shelter and regular bills cost $613 per month. That left him $39 a month for beer, cigarettes and to pay back any loans.

His second problem was that he slipped into high interest borrowing and the debt would be there for years.

Then there's Tom and Shirley. Tom has a job in heavy construction, taking home $1,100 per month. After regular expenses he has $401 left over.

At least he had. Tom and Shirley liked the good things in life and they spent the $401 five times over.

Soon they began missing payments. Then they decided to pay only the creditors who complained the loudest. Then they started borrowing. And finally they were writing NSF cheques.

And just as suddenly they stopped. They decided it was out of control and they sought help.

The reckoning was frightful. In 36 months they had gotten into debt by a total of $36,384.

One consolidation loan they took out required them to pay $1,384 per month, although Tom earned only $1,100. Much of the $1,384 went to interest.

Tom and Shirley are getting straightened around now and they are gradually reducing their debt.

Tomorrow — Where to get help.

Brooks Bros. Short Of Tailors

NEW YORK (AP) — Good tailors are so scarce these days that Brooks Brothers says it will no longer make custom-tailored garments.

The company, long an advocate of traditional and conservative men's attire, released a statement Friday announcing the decision.

For generations Brooks relied on the highly skilled tailor typified by the dying breed of Italian immigrants who still do most of their intricate needlework by hand. The decrease in their numbers is said to be the main reason behind the company's decision to discontinue its custom-tailoring service.

Cited also was a decline in demand for expensive custom-made clothing. The cost of a man's suit, for example, runs between $500 and $600.

Frank Reilly, the president of the company established in 1818, said the special order department of the stores, which modifies standard cuts of clothes for each customer, would be able to satisfy 90 per cent of the clientele. Suits in that department are priced between $350 and $400.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Anybody who thinks women have equal rights in this country is crazy.

If a man's trousers are too tight, he's just put on a little weight. (If a woman's skirt is too tight, she's trying to be sexy.)

If a man stands on a street corner, he's getting some fresh air. (If a woman stands on a corner, she's looking to be picked up.)

If a man has one drink too many, he's "feeling good." (If a woman has one drink too many, she's a lush).

If a man has a night out with the boys, he's put in a hard day at work and needs to "relax." (If a woman has a night out with the girls, she's up to no good and should stay home with her family.)

If a man cheats on his wife, people say he's probably married to a cold fish and he's only human. (If a woman cheats, she's a tramp.)

If a kid turns out good, he's a chip off the old block. (If he turns out bad, his mother did the rotten job of raising him.)

It's still a man's world! — WANTS EQUALITY

DEAR WANTS: Only if he's single. If he's married, almost everything is in his wife's name.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14, and the oldest of five kids, so I'm the one who has to help my mom with the dishes and housework. I also have to help with the younger kids and I hate it!

When I complain about all the work I have to do around here, my mom gives me this routine about what good "practice" it will be for me in later life.

Abby, please help me! I plan on being a model or an actress, and I don't need all this "practice." — TIRED

DEAR TIRED: That's what YOU think! What do you think happens to all those broken-down models and actresses?

DEAR ABBY: A member of our family was recently in a near-fatal accident and naturally we are very much concerned, but our problem is this.

Friends and relatives who mean well have been calling us constantly to find out how he is getting along. Abby, we are half-crazy answering the telephone every few minutes. They all want to know the "details" of the accident, and I am exhausted reliving that nightmare so many times a day!

Also, friends have been phoning the hospital to inquire about the patient's condition, and we've been asked by the hospital personnel to instruct them not to call so much.

Abby, please tell your readers that it would help so much if they would send a cheery card to the hospital instead. Then the patient could read the cards at his leisure when he's sufficiently recovered and keep them as souvenirs if he so desires. — GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Your letter is well worth the space in this column. Readers — please?

DEAR ABBY: I laughed when I read the letter from the doctor's wife who complained because the neighbors called her husband in the middle of the night to run over and treat their kids for some minor ailment. (They all had regular doctors, but they called "Dr. Dave" instead because he was so handy).

Abby, the way to put a stop to tht is to send out bills for an "emergency call." Believe me, they'll think twice before calling Dr. Dave again.

When my husband was a young, struggling attorney, people used to corner him at social gatherings and pump him for free legal advice. He even had people calling him at all hours of the night asking for legal advice. We put a stop to that when he started to send them bills for "consultations."

LAWYER'S WIFE

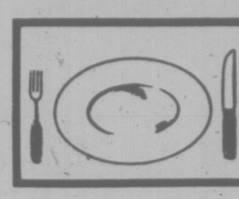
DEAR WIFE: That prescription must work. It was recommended by several doctors.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is having an affair with a widow who lives right across the street. When he passes her house, he blinks his lights and she flips her venetian blinds. They signal back and forth, and then he makes up excuses to get out of the house to meet her.

He says they are only good friends, but I know that she is man-hungry and not at all fussy who she goes with. I also know that she likes my husband. How should I put a stop to this? — JEALOUS.

DEAR JEALOUS: You can't stop a man from blinking his lights or a woman from flipping her venetian blinds. If you think he is "blinking" for her and she is "flipping" for him, get them both together and have a truth-or consequence session.

Homemade Cookies Rate More Than 'Snack' Label



hilda beastall

Don't consider homemade cookies as snack foods, they are worth more than that. Make them from wholewheat, rye and other flours, grain flakes, plus dried fruits and nuts and you have proteins, vitamins and minerals enough for a a substitute meal.

These cookies will not melt in the mouth like bought cookies, nor do they resemble those made at home from packaged mixes. A few homemades satisfy hunger, giving lasting energy because the protein value is there in the grains, nuts, powdered milk (in some) and the extra vitamin B in the unrefined grains.

People who work at a job where time off for regular meals is not planned into the schedule are the ones who need this kind of food. It must be small in bulk, easy to handle, no crumbs or pieces to fall out, yet its total must have nutrition and fibre as well as good flavor.

Homemade cookies are useful for such workers; and these recipes are put together with them in mind. These are three different types of cookies, but none is the time-taking rolled out kind. Livealoners and young students, night workers and in fact anyone can make them.

First is Date Sandwich; I put this together on a day with a half hour to spare but not the time to bake. So the trays were covered and put on refrigerator shelves until early next morning when more time was taken to mix and prepare the second batch — Streusel Squares. Meanwhile the oven was heating and the Date Sandwich Cookies went in as the oven reached 200 deg. C.

DATE SANDWICH COOKIES

Filling:

1 cup cut-up dates
¾ cup cold water

Bring to boil; cook gently about 5 minutes until thickening. Set pan in window to cool while making the cookie dough.

½ cup soft margarine
2 Tbsp. brown sugar
2 small eggs
1 cup wholewheat flour
¾ cup unbleached flour
1 Tbsp. wheat germ
¼ cup skim milk powder
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda

Cream margarine with sugar; add eggs and beat with spoon. Measure all dry ingredients into sifter and sift into egg mixture to make a firm dough. Wheat germ will not go through; toss it in.

Grease 12 medium muffin pans and 12 small pans.

With knife, slice off small pieces of dough, pat into rounds to fit in bottom of each pan. This is really quick when doing the job.

On top of each, drop a small teaspoon of cooled date mixture.

Now add a smaller thin slice of dough on top of the date as covering. Press down a little at the edges as you work.

Bake in fairly hot oven 200 deg. c. about 15 minutes until light brown.

Next are Streusel Squares, a cake-like mixture with the sugar and nuts used as a layer baked in, instead of on top where the crumbs would be a nuisance for certain on-the-job eating.

STREUSEL SQUARES

1 cup wholewheat flour
¾ cup unbleached flour
¼ cup soy flour
¼ tsp. salt
1¼ tsp. baking powder
½ cup skim milk powder
½ cup of margarine
¼ cup brown sugar
2 small eggs
¾ cup water

Layer filling:

¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup finely ground nuts
¼ cup wheat germ
Few grains ginger

Grease on 8x12x2-inch pan lightly, and get oven up to moderate heat, 177 deg. C.

Measure and mix all dry ingredients into sifter. Cream margarine with sugar in bowl.

Spoon half this mixture into greased pan; spread with the layer filling. Spread remaining batter on top.

Bake in moderate oven 177 deg. C. for 30 to 35 minutes until clean knife comes out clean. Cool in pan; cut into squares.

Oatflake Squares

½ cup oil or soft margarine
¼ cup brown sugar
¾ cup unbleached flour
¼ cup wheat germ
½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¾ cup liquid skim milk from powder
1 cup oat flakes
½ cup cut-up raisins (dates will do)

Grease a 6x10x2-inch pan.

Cream margarine with sugar. Measure dry ingredients into sifter and add to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Toss in wheat germ which remains in sifter. Stir in oats and raisins.

Spoon into greased pan. Bake in moderate oven 177 deg. C. until lightly brown about 30 to 35 minutes.

Cool in the pan. Cut into squares.

These three kinds of cookie will fill an important need in meals for all ages from active pre-schoolers to older people who may need a mid-morning or mid-afternoon nourishment because of smaller appetites at mealtime. But still better is to omit between meal snacking and use these cookies with fruit as part of a good meal.

Dear Lynn and Joel:

I would like to know more about ginseng. Why are there so many different prices? Is it safe to take? Will it be habit-forming? — Rose

DEAR ROSE:

We could write 10 columns about ginseng, sometimes called "the Chinese panacea." In fact, if we took enough, its energy-giving qualities might enable us to write 20!

However, to answer your specific questions, because it is much stronger and difficult to find, wild ginseng is always more expensive than cultivated. As far as this herb being "habit-forming," there's no evidence, at least not that we could find, that it's addictive, although there really is no evidence that it is in any way unsafe to take.

If you'd like to know practically all there is to know about this wondrous herbal remedy, we'd suggest a book called "Nature's Medicines" by Richard Lucas. Just one piece of advice: Make sure you buy your ginseng at a reputable establishment. Ground-up powder is ground-up powder, and you want to be absolutely certain you're getting the real thing.

How to Make a Door Fit

By A. J. HAND
(c) 1976, Popular Science

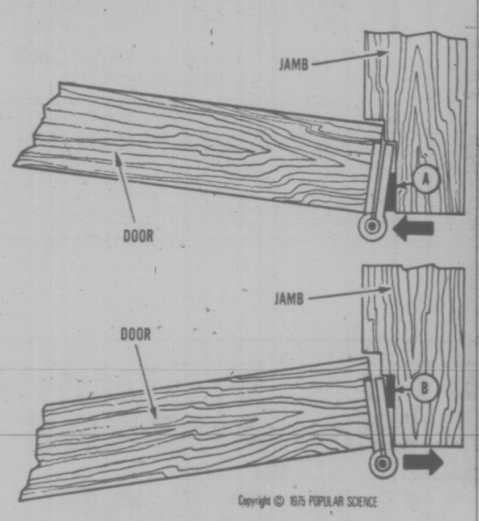
The door for all seasons . . . it's a little bit trickly to achieve. Most wooden doors expand and contract with the weather. They shrink in the dryness of winter, expand in the humidity of summer. So it's no wonder it takes a little fiddling now and then to keep a door working smoothly — without scraping or binding. But it's a job any home owner can handle without much effort, especially if he tries the quick fixes first.

Best time to work on a door is during the summer when it's swollen to its biggest. Fit a door to its cloest tolerance at this time of year and you know you'll be getting best year-round fit.

Simple cardboard shims can often solve the problem of sticking doors, eliminating the need to remove the door or plane it to fit. Examples: If a door rubs at its strike edge (the edge away from the hinges) you can move the whole door toward its hinge edge by slipping a cardboard shim or spacer under the part of the hinge marked "A" in the sketch. Just loosen the screws holding the hinge to the jamb, and slip a narrow shim as long as the hinge into place. Retighten the screws and check the fit. You can also move a door in the direction of its strike edge by placing the shim at point B. This will often cure a door binding along its hinge edge.

If a door sticks at a corner you can often rectify the situation in much the same way. For a bind at the top, cut two pieces of cardboard the size of the hinge plate. Notch them so you can slip them behind the hinge without removing the hinge screws. Loosen the screws a couple of turns, slip the double shim between the hinge and the jamb, and retighten. If there are three hinges, put a single shim behind the middle hinge, none behind the bottom. If the door binds at a bottom corner, do just the opposite. Put two shims behind the bottom hinge, none behind the top.

Okay, those are the quick fixes. They work well, but only if there is room for the door to shift in the desired direction. If the door is too big in the first place you'll have to escalate. If there is slight binding along the top of the door or along the strike edge, a few strokes with a sharp plane should do the job. And you won't have to demount the door. But if the door is considerably too wide, or if it rubs at the bottom, you'll have to take it down. Use a screwdriver to pry out the hinge pins, top pin last.



Copyright © 1975 POPULAR SCIENCE

Plane the hinge edge of the door — after removing the hinges — to cure wide doors. Then cut the mortises (recesses for the hinges) back to their original depth with a chisel. Replace the hinge, rehang the door (insert the top hinge pin first) and check the fit. If everything is OK, remove the pins again and paint the bare wood exposed by planing.

If you have to plane the bottom or top of a door, always plane from the edges in towards the centre. If you plane from the centre towards the edge, you may rip off splinters of wood.

Don't forget lubrication. On very minor binding, a shot of silicone spray (Krylon is one brand) at the point of friction may do the trick. A little bit of candle wax rubbed on the trouble spot may get you by long enough for dryer weather to arrive and solve your problem for you.

HAIR TODAY GONE TOMORROW

Solve some of your beauty problems now and you'll have a head start on spring and summer. It's time for exposure — and silky legs, sandal shoes and bare arms call for extra grooming.

Dear Jennifer: I'm going back to skirts for spring. I have a heavy growth of hair on my legs, which I don't bother about too much in the winter. How can I keep my legs hair-free and avoid that 5 o'clock shadow? — Eunice A., Montreal, Que.

There are a number of choices. If the hair on your legs is now visible, you might consider waxing. It should be done professionally. Hot wax is applied, and when it is removed the hair comes with it. The advantages are that is is removed by the root and doesn't grow in as quickly. It avoids the 5 o'clock shadow that constant shaving produces. Also the stubby feeling. Remember, too, that it is excellent for excess hair on the upper and inner thigh. Hence the popularity of the "bikini wax," as it is called.

Depilatories are popular, easy to use and are now pleasantly scented. The hair will grow in as fast as shaving, but you won't have as stubbly a texture when it does.

If you still choose to shave, use baby lotion instead of soap and water when you do. It will avoid nicks and cuts and smooth the skin at the same time.

Here are quick solutions for problems that come out in the open at this time of the year:

CALLOUSED HEELS — While in the tub, gently rub the heels with a pumice stone or a lotion that peels away thickened skin. Apply a pumice stone or a lotion that peels away thickened skin. Apply a coating of petroleum jelly from ankles to toes, slip on cotton socks and let them "soak" overnight. Great for taking away redness and rough spots. Give the same treatment to your elbows.

ROUGHNESS ON THE BACK OF THE ARMS — Small red bumps that appear on the back of the arms are caused by the rubbing of clothing. They will clear up quickly when the skin is exposed. Don't use abrasive creams or pumice; it will only aggravate the condition. Use a moisturizing body lotion.

SPIDERLIKE LEG VEINS — If you are thin-legged with fair skin, this problem can be a real beauty bugaboo. There is no cure, so just cover them with waterproof leg make-up. Match the exact tone of your natural skin or your summer tan and just apply the make-up in the areas where the veins occur.

DARK SPOTS ON THE CHEST AND SHOULDERS — Patches of pigmentation, like large, dark freckles, often appear after too much sunning or a bad sunburn. Be wise this year and use a protective sun cream that blocks out harmful burning rays of the sun. Get double value from a tinted foundation base with a built-in sun block. Cover the spots and prevent more at the same time.

Dear Jennifer: I have some scars on my stomach from an operation. How can I cover them up so I can wear a bikini? — Mary Lou C., Detroit Mich.

Don't even bother trying. The newest bathing suit is a figure-hugging tank suit, as comfortable as the bikini and just as sexy. Get one with a low, plunging back and show off your good size.

(If you have any questions to ASK JENNIFER, send them in care of this paper. She will use as many as possible in her column.

Tow Firms Put the Bite on Him

VANCOUVER (CP)—It cost Barry Day of Toronto $32 in towing charges, an expensive sports shirt and a $10 hospital bill for treatment of dog bites after he tried to retrieve his car from a towing company.

Day, 32, said he was attacked by a guard dog at the company's office in nearby Burnaby.

"I walked into the office," he said. "There were about three fellows and I asked them how to get my car back and one of them said 'through that door' and through that door was the dog.

"After it was over I saw a sign on the door that said there was a guard dog on duty."

Walter Bott, the company's customer complaints representative, confirmed that the attack took place.

"He went through the wrong door," said Bott. "The dog's there to do a job and he did it."

Bott said he was unaware of Day's claim that someone in the outer office had directed him through the doorway.

"There's a sign on the door with letters three to four inches high that said, 'Do Not Enter, Vicious Dog on Duty,'" Bott said.

RCMP in Burnaby said Day had called them and they took him for treatment to the Burnaby General Hospital.

Day, a commercial pilot, arrived here three weeks ago to look for work.

"The dog came out at me, going for my throat," said Day. "He ripped the shirt right off me and grabbed me on the arm and leg; but he broke the skin only on my chest, just below my throat.

Company employees pulled the dog off of Day and locked the animal in another room, he said.

Bowen Growth Backed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The controversy about the proposed community development plan for Bowen Island near here ended in a whimper when almost all the presentations in a public hearing on the island came out in support of the plan.

The Islands Trust, which held the hearing, voted after the meeting to recommend the plan to the Greater Vancouver Regional District.

Some of the Bowen Island residents who spoke at the hearing said the plan is too restrictive. Others said they fear the plan will allow overdevelopment.

Only one speaker condemned the plan outright.

The plan, which is to be reviewed in three years, recommends gradual controlled growth on the island. More specific proposals will be made when detailed studies on water and sewer requirements are done.

The plan originally called for a minimum one acre lot size, but the Islands Trust voted after to recommend that cluster housing be allowed.

FANCY PANTS are revealed by young twirler Cindy England, who danced with Delbert Moise at Prince George Spring Square Dance Jamboree, an event put on by the Northern Twisters.

Light Term Requested By Jury

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court jury has found Ivo Srdanovic, 41, orginally charged with murder in the shooting death of an apparent burglar, guilty of a lesser charge of manslaughter.

He was originally charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in the shooting death two years ago of Danny Mazurski, 21, in an east-end city apartment suite.

Mazurski died from a shotgun blast December 18, 1974, in Srdanovic's home.

The jury recommended that Mr. Justice David Verchere impose the lightest possible sentence on May 17. In the meantime, Srdanovic will be allowed bail.

Contract In Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — The dispute involving 2,900 paramedicals in British Columbia over binding arbitration they claim is ambiguous and impossible to evaluate has gone to the B.C. Supreme Court.

Jack Campbell, executive director of Health Sciences Association, said that he is hopeful the arbitration award will be set aside by the court.

The association asked for a 12-per-cent salary increase, but it was refused by the Anti-Inflation Board. The association then submitted to binding arbitration, but it is now unhappy with the results.

The binding arbitration by Guy Barclay, a retired Hydro engineer, has been interpreted by the Health Labor Relations Association as the maximum eight-per-cent increase in wages and fringe benefits for 1976.

The arbitrator called for a second year with a wage reopener clause for that period.

LIBERAL CHOICE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Businessman Jim Siemens was named Saturday night to contest the June 3 Vancouver East provincial byelection for the Liberal party.

He defeated Harold Daykin, Maggie Burtinshaw and Art Lang for the nomination.

The byelection was called after the resignation of Bob Williams of the New Democratic Party in the two-member riding.

Former Premier Dave Barrett, who lost in Coquitlam riding when the NDP was swept out of office by Social Credit on Dec. 11, was the first to be nominated.

Lawyer Ralph Long has been nominaated by Social Credit.

Farmers' Gander Up Over Freeloaders

SURREY (CP) — Irate farmers in this municipality are tired of providing free meals of birds from a Canada Geese-raising project and have asked the provincial government to, figuratively speaking, cook their own goose.

They have complained in a brief to Victoria that the free-loading birds have been eating and destroying their clover, corn and other vegetable crops.

About 25 farmers want officials to either clip the birds' wings, phase out the program, or use some of the project's 340 acres to grow the vegetarians' lunches and dinners themselves.

Their beefs centre around the 10-year program started in 1974 in the Serpentine Wildlife Area. The project is aimed at establishing a resident population of 20,000 Canada Geese in the Fraser Valley.

Canada Negotiating Own Fish Treaties

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada has negotiated or is in the process of negotiating bilateral treaties with six countries under which they would respect a 200 mile fishing zone off this country's coasts, according to Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

Treaties have been negotiated with Norway, France, Spain, Portugal and Poland. Negotiations are under way to get an agreement with Russia and talks are proceeding satisfactorily he said.

Through these treaties Canada is laying the groundwork for the day which could come soon this year when the Canadian government decides to unilaterally declare a 200-mile fishing zone. It is obvious the government is becoming very impatient over the slow progress of the Law of the Sea conference at the United Nations in New York and will act on its own.

The Law of the Sea conference adjourned on the weekend having failed to reach an agreement on the 200-mile limit.

Another session will take place in New York in August.

"There is no doubt that, as the Secretary of State for External Affairs (Allan MacEachen) has said, 1976 is a critical year for Canadian fisheries and in that sense we intend to take our responsibilities and do whatever is necessary to protect our interests," LeBlanc said.

The countries with which Canada has negotiated or is negotiating bilateral fishing treaties represent 88 per cent of the total fishing by foreign nations off Canada's coasts.

Through agreements with these countries Canada now has more freedom to act on its own. Under the agreements Canada would be able to lay down the conditions under which the countries fishing fleets operated in the zones.

Canada could, for example, say under the agreements that a country was free to fish for a certain species of fish, but not for another species which was in short supply. Canada could declare that the country's fishermen were free to take a certain catch but not another type of fish because Canada did not have enough available of that species for its own fishermen.

NAMED MARSHAL

MOSCOW (WP) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev was named a marshal of the army Saturday, the country's highest military rank, becoming the first Communist Party chief since Joseph Stalin to be so honored.

A brief announcement in Tass, the official news agency, described Brezhnev as the "Chairman of the USSR Defence Council" a body that is rarely mentioned publicly but is thought to provide civilian oversight of the military. Brezhnev was already a general of the army, the second highest rank.

Churchill's Pot Guarded

LONDON — Winston Churchill's wartime chamber pot is under lock and key nowadays, because souvenir hunters were ransacking his old underground headquarters, says curator Christiaan Truter.

Truter says the late prime minister's silk cushion, historical records, ventilation fans and even pencils have vanished from the fortified complex 60 feet under the treasury building on Whitehall — even though visitors are admitted only in small groups by appointment.

"Approaches have been made" to buy the porcelain chamber pot, Truter says. "But I didn't ask how much was offered. I pretended not to be interested."

Truter's job is to preserve the three-floor fortress just as it was when last used on Aug. 16, 1945, two days after the Japanese surrender.

TORONTO — Despite his 10-year absence from North America, Paul McCartney obviously felt at home during his concert Sunday night at Maple Leaf Gardens.

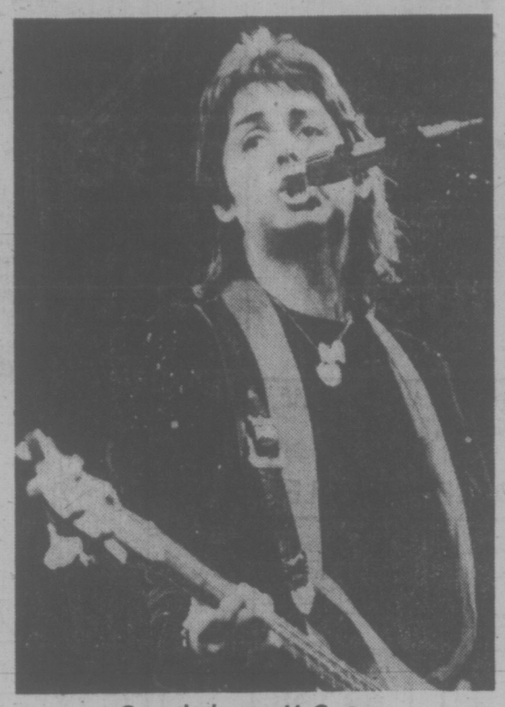
From the moment of his entrance amid thunderous applause, the former Beatle and his band Wings kept the attention of about 18,000 fans locked to the stage for two hours and two encores.

The show was a marked contrast to the Dark Horse concert last year at the Gardens which featured George Harrison, another former Beatle. At that time Harrison, obviously tired after a lengthy tour of the United States, was saved only by othe featured artists on the bill.

MILAN, Mo. — Police judge Coleman Smith was elected to the post in this north central Missouri town last month with an unofficial platform of lawlessness.

"I told the people I wasn't going to enforce the laws and I'm going to keep that promise," Smith declared.

A man of his word, Smith did not appear to be sworn in and skipped one Saturday morning court session. He attended the next session and forced policemen to stand at attention and berated one officer to the point that slander charges are being considered. He also dismissed all the cases pending before the city court.



Crowd-pleaser McCartney

SAUGERTIES, N.Y. — Harvey Fite, a sculptor and artist, was killed Sunday in a lawn-mower accident at his home, police reported.

Troopers said Fite, 72, apparently was operating a riding lawn mower on top of a rock quarry he was developing into a mammoth sculpture. Police said he must have lost control of the machine and gone over the edge of the quarry, hitting his head on the rocks 15 feet below.

Fite's body was discovered about 8 p.m. by a friend who had arrived for dinner.

BONN — About 500 persons rallied here Sunday for the release of Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's former deputy who embarked on a self-appointed peace mission to Britain more than 35 years ago.

Ewald Bucher, a former West German justice minister and chairman of the Freedom for Rudolf Hess Committee, demanded that the three Western powers — the United States, Britain and France — do more to pressure the reluctant Soviets into releasing the sole occupant of Berlin's Spandau prison.

Thirty years ago, during the Nuremberg war crimes trial, Hess, now 83 years old, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

LONDON — The Sunday People says J. Paul Getty, 83 and reputedly the richest man in the world, will leave most of his fortune to charity.

The newspaper reports the American oil tycoon, who for 20 years has lived in a Tudor manor house southeast of London, as saying in an interview that he wants to give the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people, but he declined to give details.

Getty's secretary, Norris Bramblett, reached by telephone at the billionaire's Sutton Place estate, confirmed to The Associated Press that the story is accurate but said Getty is not available for an interview. Bramlett declined further details.

DOG RETURNS THE FAVOR

BRIDGETON, Mo. (AP) — A runaway dog recently adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Morris of nearby Harvester, Mo., has been credited with saving the life of the couple's two-year-old daughter by pulling the youngster from a burning car.

The couple had left their daughter, Margaret, asleep in the parked car Saturday with the dog, an Irsh setter named Red, while they went into an automobile showroom.

Soon a salesman noticed smoke pouring from the car windows. Morris said that as he was running across the showroom floor he saw the smoke and then saw Red jump out the car window.

"As soon as Red hit the ground he jumped up, put his paws on the side of the car, and reached his head through the smoke coming out the window," Morris said.

The dog grabbed Margaret's coat collar with his teeth and dragged the little girl out the windows, then attempted to push her away from the car. Flames from the car were soon shooting more than 20 feet in the air.

Margaret was taken to a hospital where she was treated for minor burns while Red suffered singed hair. Police said the fire was caused by faulty wiring.

Red came to the Morris family about three weeks ago after they found him running loose in the neighborhood, dirty and hungry. The family found the owner of the dog but he agreed to let them keep the animal.

Dollar Power of Oscar Proven by Cuckoo Film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The dollar power of Oscar has again been proven with One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest.

United Artists reports that the winner of five top Academy awards "exploded at the box office" in the week following the Oscar telecast. The total theatre receipts: $1,260,639, compared with $776,153 for the week before the awards.

So far the film has grossed more than $35 million in the United States.

DECISION

Ottawa, April 30, 1976

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announces the following decision.

Decision CRTC 76-236

VICTORIA, SAANICH, ESQUIMALT AND OAK BAY, B.C. — 751005000

Licence Renewal of Victoria Cablevision Ltd.

In a Decision of March 19, 1976 (CRTC 76-141), the Commission renewed the licence of Victoria Cablevision Ltd. on a month to month basis pending the hearing of an appeal by the Federal Court of Appeal of an Order of the Trial Division of the Federal Court issued on February 2, 1976. The Order under appeal required the CRTC to hear the application of Capital Cable Co-operative for a cable television licence to serve the Greater Victoria area before renewing the licence of Victoria Cablevision Ltd., the existing licensee for the area.

On April 12, 1976, the Federal Court of Appeal heard the matter and set aside the Order of the Trial Division. Capital Cable Co-operative, through its Counsel, has advised the Commission that it will seek leave to appeal this decision to the Supreme Court of Canada.

In these circumstances, the Commission grants a further renewal of the licence of Victoria Cablevision Ltd. for a period of six months, expiring October 31, 1976, on the same terms and conditions as were contained in its licence which expired on March 31st, 1976, and was renewed on a month to month basis by Decision CRTC 76-141.

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

A defender is said to "falsecard" when he plays a card other than his lowest with the intention of deceiving declarer. In today's deal we have an example of a falsecard achieving its desired result.

NORTH
♠ A J 9
◇ A Q 5

WEST
♠ K 10 6
♡ 9 6 2
◇ 10 9 8
♣ A 10 5 2

EAST
♠ Q 8 5 3
◇ K 7 4 2
♣ J 9 7 4

SOUTH
♠ 7 4 2
♡ A Q J 7 4
◇ J 6 3
♣ K Q

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ◇.

A low diamond was played from dummy on West's opening lead of the ten-spot, and East captured the trick with his king. East played back a low club, South's queen being taken by West's ace. West returned a club to South's king. The king, queen and ace of trumps then gathered in the four outstanding trumps.

It was declarer's intention, when he next led the deuce of spades, to insert dummy's nine. If West held either the K-10 or Q-10, the nine would be taken by East's queen or king. When South regained the lead, he would then play another spade, finessing dummy's jack. The jack would be a winner, and declarer's game-going trick.

But, on declarer's lead of the spade deuce, West put up the king. Dummy's ace won the trick, after which the board's remaining club was ruffed by South. On the next lead of the spade four, West played the six — and declarer took a time-out for reflection.

He finally came to the conclusion that West had been dealt both the king and queen of spades, and that West had put up the king on the initial spade lead to make sure that his queen would become a winner. So, on the second spade lead, declarer inserted dummy's jack. East won the trick with the queen, and returned a spade to West's ten, plus sending declarer down to defeat.

Had West played "normally" by following suit with his lowest spade, the six, on the first spade lead, declarer would have had no trouble in fulfilling his contract. He would have put in dummy's nine, East winning with the queen. Upon regaining the lead, South would then have played another spade, finessing dummy's jack successfully.

But West's "sacrifice" of the spade king caused declarer to change horses in midstream, to his regret.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast
Tuesday, May 11

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on what people think they know as contrasted to actual facts. You are able now to supply material, to put across points and programs. Partnership, marriage area remains "magnified." Aquarius, Taurus, Leo persons could figure in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be an investigator. Check claims, figures. Look beyond the superficial. Member of opposite sex turns on charm. There could be motivation and manipulation involved. Be practical and grownup. Truth is a stimulating tonic, even if bitter-tasting at times.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Basic emotions come into play but this is not time to play games. Means realize stakes are high and "for keeps." If single, you may be asked to make a decision concerning marriage. If married, home payment or purchase could be of paramount importance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Conclude transaction. Dragging out negotiations would be error. You may start seeing through a haze of wishful thinking. Key is to sharply define, to know where you want to go and how to arrive at destination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get response to query. You find that what was supposed to be a lark might be an eagle. Means you get more than you bargained for if seeking something superficial. Study Gemini message for valid hint.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on money, how to obtain it, save it and invest it. Your security — or lack of it — is spotlighted. You become aware of needs, including emotional. If single, a relationship intensifies. If married, there could be talk of an addition to family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cycle high — take initiative. Trust hunch, judment. Be confident. Be direct, creative, independent. Love is very much in picture. New start in new direction could be highlighted. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check behind the scenes. Take nothing for granted, especially where valuables are concerned. Receipts, safety deposit box keys require attention. Know it and act accordingly. Aquarius, Cancer persons are in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on friendship, social activity, romantic alliances. Don't take others — or yourself— too seriously. Relax tensions; change of pace is necessary. Look beyond apparent limitations — be cognizant of potential. Gemini is in picture and so, too, is another Sagittarian.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some of your natural abilities surface. Friends also become more evident. You're asked to "take over" an assignment. Prestige is on upswing — standing in community is enhanced. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Lunar aspect coincides now with journey, teaching, learning, spiritual insight and communication. Correspondence is high on agenda. Your ability to "take pictures" and to write is spotlighted. You travel in sense that you no longer will tolerate unreasonable restrictions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Concern with hidden matters, the occult could be emphasized. Your extrasensory perception comes into play. You want free hand but may not quite be ready for it. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio are in scenario.

IF MAY 11th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a teacher, a sensitive, moody, creative person who never seems to go along with the majority. Plainly, you are individualistic, controversial, stubborn, sentimental, lonely, brooding, talented, generous and a person with an abundance of compassion. Aquarians play important roles in your life. You travel this year — May is a significant month.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"It was during the First World War," said Susan. "Do you remember?"

Sam chuckled. "Sure I do, and I remember something else about that day," he told her. "Your Dad remarked that there were exactly six times as many days after it in the month as there were days before it."

What was the date?

Blacks in Majority

SALISBURY (Reuter) — For the first time in its 19-year history, the University of Rhodesia has more black than white students, Robert Craig, university principal, said in a report delivered to the University Council. At the beginning of this year the university had 385 black students, 264 whites and 50 of other races.

How to Coax Summer Annuals

Sweet peas and snapdragons are two summer annuals which benefit from having growing tips removed early in the season.

If your plants are now about four inches tall, with three pairs of leaves, do the little job at once. With sweet peas, nip out the growing stem down to one pair of leaves. The result will be two side growths much stronger than the central growth.

At the same time provide twiggy branches, wire or strings for the tendrils to find when they make new growth, as they will very soon after the nipping.

Sweet pea plants which have been growing all winter against a warm wall cannot be treated in this way now, for they will be in bloom by the middle of May. However, to improve those which have already grown into flowering size, the tip of each growth can be taken off to encourage lower branching.

At the same time don't forget the plants will need deep watering at the roots and then a two-inch top dressing of well rotted compost or very old barn manure. This helps to keep the root area cooler during hot weather.

To have sweet peas with continuous bloom means removal of faded flowers at least every other day. Don't allow those little pods to form behind the faded blooms, take them off. Best done with a sharp knife or pruners to prevent vines from being pulled and loosened. Often we notice a whole growth of sweet pea vine suddenly become dry due to breakage by careless gathering of flowers or when removing pods. The same happens with green vegetable peas.

Snapdragons respond well to having their growing top removed. Since the gardener prefers many spikes of flowers from the plants this is the only way to get them early in the season. If three pairs of leaves are now present, take off the top with the first leaves below the top.

Dwarf varieties of snaps are self-branching and should not be shortened.

The two sets of leaves remaining after nipping of tall varieties will soon develop four new growing points. As they grow and flower, and the flower spikes are cut off before seeds develop, other shoots will replace those removed.

Snaps like a cool summer to bloom well. An early start gives them a strong root system, and then our normal summers keep them in constant bloom until late September. Only in a long hot summer as 1958 have snaps been a total failure in gardens here.

Another of the hardy annual group, to which sweet peas and snapdragons belong, is schizanthus. This has become popular in Victoria through its use in hanging baskets on the city's light standards in summer.

While Schizanthus is not capable of a long season of bloom it does give a truly magnificent display when raised as plants singly in six-inch pots. Seeded in a cool greenhouse in late January, progressively potted-on and pinched continuously to make a 12-inch wide and 15-inch high plant by early May, the plants begin flowering by about mid month.

Dozens of dainty blooms will then cover each plant. Watered, fed a little, and not subjected to continuous hot sun, these plants are worth growing on east-facing balconies and patios, to be replaced with later blooming tuberous begonias when the one great display of schizanthus flowers is finished.

Knowing which annuals respond to pinching and which branch naturally is just another way of getting value from the work and dollars expended on gardening.

9 IN MEMORIAM

LEIGHTON—Treasured memories of my dear Sister (Ivy) who passed away two years ago today. When God took you to Eternal Rest, He knew that you were one of the Best. Forever in my thoughts and sadly missed. May.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

There is some one who misses you sadly,

And finds the time long since you went,

There is some one who thinks of you always,

And tries to be brave and content.

Gone is the face we loved
so dear,

Silent the voice we loved
'Tis sad, but true,
we wonder why,

The best are always the first to die.

There is a link death cannot sever,

last forever.

CRAFTS SHOW

The 4th annual arts and crafts fair will be held in the View Royal Community Centre Friday and Saturday and with local work there will be a display of items from Central and South America.

Hours for the fair will be 1 to 9 p.m., Friday, and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday. The centre is at 279 Island Highway.

The display from South and Central America is made up of hand-made articles collected by Arleigh Trail and Daphne Louis during a seven-month trip.

It will include five "reverse applique" wall hangings from Panama, a technique unique to that country.

The women also collected tapes of South American music and these, featuring flute music from Bolivia and Peru, will be played at the fair.

SHEFFIELD SLIP CUTS

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — When the city council of this steel-making centre ordered cutlery from a local firm, it received a case made in Sheffield filled with knives, forks and spoons made in Japan.

Council leader George Wilson said the $111 bill will be paid, but in future he will insist on all-British goods.

A spokesman for the firm said he hadn't noticed the nationality and council was sent the cheapest cutlery available.

DEEPSEA SHIPS

(All cargoes are forest products unless otherwise stated.)

Victoria — Salunaka.

Esquimalt — Havdrill, oil drilling ship in for conversion; Sandar.

Harmac — Lujubljana.

Gold River — E. D. Papalios.

Crofton — N. R. Crump, U.K. and continental Europe.

Nanaimo — Daishin Maru.

Professors Fired

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The military government of Argentina has dismissed at least 40 university professors, including a former economy minister, since the overthrow of President Isabel Peron, academic sources said Saturday. They also said about 20 other university professors, who were dismissed or resigned when the Peronists came to power in 1973, have been reinstated since the bloodless coup March 24.

Cigars from the Hussars Next April

PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP) — If all goes well and according to plan the 8th Canadian Hussars will be handing out cigars in April, 1977.

The expectant mother is Princess II, the regiment's equine mascot. This may be the last chance for the Hussars, a reconnaissance regiment stationed here, to continue the mare's royal line. Princess Louise II now is 21 years old, in equivalent human terms nearly 100.

Once a cavalry regiment, the Hussars still have an affection for horses. The unit was formed in 1897 as the New Brunswick Regiment of Yeomanry Cavalry, designated to escort the Governor-General, the Marquis of Lorne, and his wife Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria.

The first Princess Louise mascot was adopted by the regiment in 1944, during the Second World War. Only a few months old, a wounded foal was found beside the body of her mother on battle-torn Coriano Ridge in Italy.

To sidestep army regulations that forbade the carrying of livestock or pets, the regiment outfitted a three-ton truck with a false compartment. Within this compartment they installed the filly, named after their princess, and carried her in comfort through Italy and Northwest Europe during the closing days of the war.

Eventually the filly made it to Canada and her first home in Hampton, N.B. There she foaled in 1954, bearing Princess Louise II.

Six years later Princess Louise II produced another filly, Louise III. Having provided an heir, Louise II retired in 1967 to Sussex, N.B., but her retirement was short-lived.

In 1970 Louise III died of a virus infection and her mother was recalled to duty.

After several attempts to breed her ended in miscarages, the regiment turned in desperation to the University of Guelph college of veterinary medicine. There she was cured of an infection that apparently had prevented her from carrying a full-term of pregnancy.

Although Louise II now is past her prime, veterinarians say she still is capable of conceiving and foaling. The Hussars plan to breed Louise again in May, which should enable her to foal in April, 1977.

To ensure that the birth will not be too difficult for the mare, the regiment is looking for an Arabian sire that should produce a smaller foal.

Rule Hits Paperback Firms

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The future ownership and possibly the future operations of Canada's two largest paperback book companies, both of them U.S. - owned, has been put in jeopardy by a decision of the Canadian government under its controversial Foreign Investment Review Act.

Involved are Simon and Schuster Canada Ltd. and Bantam Books of Canada Ltd., both of Toronto. They are the second largest and the largest paperback book distributors in Canada respectively.

The federal government is reportedly demanding that the two wholly-owned U.S. subsidiaries become Canadian-controlled, preferably as much as 75 per cent Canadian owned.

In the decision, the federal cabinet refused to allow a proposed take-over of Simon and Schuster Canada Ltd. of Toronto by, according to the Foreign Investment Review Agency announcement, an unnamed company owned and controlled by Gulf and Western Industries Inc. of New York.

The unnamed company, it turns out, is Simon and Schuster Inc. of New York, the longtime parent company of the Canadian paperback publishing and distribution operations.

The Canadian government became involved when Simon and Schuster Inc. was taken over last year by Gulf and Western, thereby changing the ultimate ownership of the Canadian operations and requiring a review and approval under the Foreign Investment Review Act.

A senior official of Simon and Schuster Canada said Friday that the company doesn't know where it stands, since in effect its long-time owners are now prohibited from retaining control over the Canadian subsidiary.

He added that the company had not been warned of the negative decision by the Canadian government announced quietly, nor was it given any reasons for the takeover rejection.

But he said that the Foreign Investment Review Agency (FIRA) had wanted the Canadian paperback operations to become 75 per cent Canadian-owned — a proposal which the U.S. owners decided wasn't acceptable.

FIRA also told Simon and Schuster Canada that a government decision on the future of the Canadian operations would be "deferred until later," according to the company official.

An FIRA spokesman refused comment on the case.

Reportedly, Bantam Books of Canada Ltd. is in the same fix.

Its U.S. parent, Bantam Books Inc. of New York, was also recently taken over by another company: the Institute of Finance and Industry of Italy, producers of the Fiat automobiles.

Therefore, the ownership of the Canadian subsidiary technically has been changed and Canadian government approval under the Foreign Investment Review Act must be obtained.

While FIRA refused to confirm or deny that Bantam Books of Canada has in fact made a take-over application on behalf of its FIAT-controlled U.S. parent, Bantam officials did confirm that fact.

And while the government hasn't yet ruled on the Bantam application, it is expected that the Simon and Schuster Canada decision will set a precedent, especially since Bantam also is being asked to turn over control of its Canadian subsidiary to Canadians.

Simon and Schuster Canada, with about 50 Canadian employees, publishes about 8 million paperback books a year. The publishing contract is held by Ronalds-Federated Ltd. of Montreal a large, Canadian-owned printing company controlled by FP Publications Limited of Toronto.

Ronalds-Federated also prints a large proportion of the Bantam Books of Canada Ltd. paperbacks, with the rest printed in Chicago, according to a Bantam company official.

Bantam has eight direct employees in Canada.

Simon and Schuster Canada says that it puts a lot of Canadian authors in print: perhaps 35 Canadian selections a year, half of them original works not previously published in hardcover.

Ronalds-Federated has just announced the reaching of an agreement in principle with major shareholders of Rolph-Clark-Stone Ltd. of Montreal to acquire their shares. A similar offer, which includes both cash and shares in Ronalds-Federated, will soon be made to minority shareholders.

From a legal point of view, Simon and Schuster (Canada) and, soon, Bantam Books of Canada face the choice of either re-applying to the government and making modifications in their proposal, including Canadian ownership; or not doing anything and waiting to see if the federal government will try to take court action to force them to stop operating in Canada under their current U.S. ownership.

The latter situation is possible under the Foreign Investment Review Act but has not yet been tested in the courts.

PLOWING CHAMPION

Jim Brooks of the J. B. Morgan ranch in Crofton was a top winner in Saturday's Saanich Plowing Association matches held on George Longphee's Mount Newton Cross Road farm.

He took the first class of the day, open to all comers.

Using a Massey-Harris horse-drawn handplow, donated by the Saanich Artifacts Society for the competition, Don Williams won the "businesspersons" class. Williams, a Sooke logging official, had never touched a plow before, according to the judges.

Joanne Bickford, 10, of of Central Saanich won the two-furrow prize for girls under 19. Her brother Brian, 12, won the Royal Canadian Legion trophy for 4-H members.

Jimmie Mar of Saanich, who has plowed in Canadian championships in the past, had to settle for third place in the B.C. residents', Saanich champion two-furrow.

He was beaten by Chiliwach plowers Allan Rendle and Charley Thomson, last year's B.C. champion.

Terry Michell, of the well-known family that has farmed on the Saanich Peninsula for more than 100 years, was second in the two furrow class for boys under 19 years of age. The event was won by Ken Smith of the Parksville-Qualicum area. Michael Parker of Saanich placed third.

Rick Fowler of Central Saanich won the open two-furrow mounted plow class.

BCGEU Votes To Affiliate

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the British Columbia Government Employees' Union have voted 50 per cent in favor of the union's affiliation with the National Union of Provincial Government Employees, BCGEU general secretary John Fryer said Saturday.

The results of an April referendum were 10,865 in favor, 7,127 against, Fryer said.

Provincial employee organizations in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island also have voted to join the NUPGE, established with approval of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The Newfoundland Association of Public Employees will vote on affiliation later this year.

Leniency for Murderers Despite Cruel Traditions

By JOHN WASILIEV

PORT MORESBY (Reuter) — In Papua-New Guinea, where an unfaithful wife can be chopped to death and minor disputes are settled with spears, the penalty for murder is being eased.

Instead of a mandatory life sentence, judges will be empowered to be more lenient if they believe traditions and social obligations have put pressure on a man to kill, to right what he believes is a wrong.

The change is an attempt by the law-makers of this newly independent South Pacific country to take into account the powerful influence of superstitions and customs on its three million inhabitants, mainly subsistence farmers and villagers.

A report by the Papua-New Guinea law reform commission examining the country's Australian-inspired criminal code has been accepted by Parliament. It says few murders reaching the courts are premeditated or cold-blooded.

Justice Minister Ebia Olewale, introducing the new legislation, told Parliament: "The law reform commission has found that murderers in our country are not dangerous criminals who commit crimes again and again unless they are locked up.

One of the most common situations resulting in murder was when a wife tried to leave a husband or was found with another man.

"This makes some husbands so angry that they grab an axe and kill their wives there and then," Olewale said. "In some areas, if they do not, they are regarded as weak men."

The commission said that in many parts of the country it is the strict custom that a wife who is unfaithful or openly insults her husband about his lack of sexual prowess should be killed.

Disputes over animals, land or bride prices, which a man must pay to the tribe of a prospective bride, often leads to deaths.

In the eastern highlands recently, a young tribesman was jailed for life for killing his mother-in-law with an arrow after his wife ran away with another man and her tribe refused to refund the bride price.

'PASSABLE' U.S. $16M IN PRINT PLANT RAID

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secret Service agents raided a printing plant in the Bronx before dawn Sunday and nabbed six men they said were making $16 million in "passable" counterfeit $100 bills.

Albert E. Whitaker, agent in charge of the New York office of the Secret Service, said the suspects had made a printing plate and that the counterfeit money was probably intended for sale to professional counterfeit money passers.

Whitaker said five of the men were arrested inside the plant and the sixth man sitting in a car with about $100,000 in the phoney bills.

The suspects were identified as:

John W. O'Leary, 40, Americo Lombardi, 39, Philip N. Priore, 44, Rudy Deberadino, 51, all of the Bronx; William T. Quinn, 44, of Longwood, Fla., and Kenny Ransingh, 36, of New York City.

They were scheduled for arraignment today in Manhattan federal court on charges of illegal possession of counterfeit money.

Whitaker said Deberadino was charged last year with passing counterfeit money and was awaiting trial on the charge.

The Secret Service began surveillance on the Bronx plant after Deberadino was observed entering the location, Whitaker said.

He said "several" Secret Service agents entered the plant and found five of the men inside, operating the press. Ransingh was found in his car with about $100,000 of completed bills.

In the plant, Whitaker said, was $3 million more in completed fakes and $13 million with one side printed.

Victims Identified

RESOLUTE, N.W.T. (CP) —RCMP today identified two men from British Columbia as the victims of a helicopter crash last week in the high Arctic.

Police spokesmen said pilot Michael Hofius, 28, and engineer Clay Gauthreaux, 25, both of Vancouver, were killed when their helicopter crashed on sea ice Thursday on Mackenzie King Island, about 300 miles northwest of here.

The helicopter, which was owned by Nahanni Helicopters Ltd. of Delta Park B.C., was moving equipment for a geophysical survey crew at the time of the crash.

Government To Run Marguerite

The provincial government will again operate the Princess Marguerite service this summer because two leasing proposals from private industry were not acceptable.

Transport Minister Jack Davis announced the government's decision today and said regular service between Seattle and Victoria will begin May 21.

But new labor contracts have still not been negotiated with the ferry unions and start of the service could hinge on completion of the wage agreements.

Two bids to lease the vessel were received by the government, while other firms who had expressed an interest backed off after examining costs and possible income from the service, said Davis.

Sea-Vic Ltd. bid to operate the ship for one year, renewable for five years, but Davis said the company is not registered in Canada.

Harbor Ferries Ltd. of Vancouver did not give a firm proposal, according to the minister, "but merely an offer to manage the vessel on a profit-sharing basis."

Davis said "documentation as to the probable costs and profit outlook in both cases was incomplete."

"Obviously the Princess Marguerite's operations are marginal at best. Were we to charge depreciation on the B.C. government's $2 million investment in the ship, they would be losing money," he said.

The B.C. government now has no alternative but to operate the Marguerite providing that labor contracts with the three unions involved can be concluded to "meet with Anti-Inflation Board approval," said Davis.

The government will try to keep losses at a minimum to recover some of its investment in the ship and he added its finances will "all depend on how well it is managed."

This year the ship will provide daily service between Seattle and Victoria but will not go to Port Angeles.

B.C. SEAT BELT LAW

Compulsory seat belt legislation will be introduced by the provincial government later this session.

Transport Minister Jack Davis said today B.C.'s law will be closely patterned after Ontario's legislation which he said is working effectively and "anything Ontario can do, we can do better."

The minister did not describe details of how the system would work but violators would be subject to fines.

Jubilee Strikes 6 a.m. Tuesday

The Hospital Employees Union will strike Royal Jubilee Hospital at 6 a.m. Tuesday, union secretary-manager Jack Gerow said today. A strike is also possible at Victoria General later this week, he added. No date has been set, however.

Gerow said a picket line will go up around the Jubilee at 6 a.m. Tuesday, stopping everything but essential workers and goods. He said the picket line will stop all garbage pickup, most laundry and some food deliveries.

However, the provincial Labor Relations Board has designated 59 of the 1,163 HEU employees as essential and has declared that 769 of the hospital's 950 beds must be kept in service.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, Jubilee executive director, said the hospital went into action with a contingency plan over the weekend and is ready to continue full medical service for the patients in the designated 769 beds.

Between Friday and 1 p.m. Sunday the hospital began discharging patients who were recuperating from operations and 326 were sent home.

At the same time, 68 patients were admitted for emergency care, for a net reduction of 258 patients.

Pickles said 329 beds are for long-term illnesses, including veterans in Memorial Pavilion, and these patients will not be moved. They will continue to get full care.

In addition, at least 377 beds will be available for acute care patients. As of this morning, there were 304 patients in these beds, leaving 73 available for additional patients.

These new patients will be emergency cases only. Full services will be available for emergency operations. The emergency ward is open but where patients have a choice (for example, a broken arm) they probably should go to the emergency ward at Victoria General.

All elective surgery has been cancelled at the Jubilee. One exception, said Pickles, is open heart surgery, which will resume some time this week despite the strike.

The patients will be admitted on a priority basis with the most urgent cases first. It takes two full days of tests after admitting before the

BUDGET MAY 25

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal budget will be presented Tuesday, May 25, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald announced today.

The budget — the first presented by Macdonald since succeeding John Turner — seems certain to include an increase in the price of crude oil, now $8 a barrel.

Ferry Rates Firm

There is no chance of a ferry fare review prior to the scheduled June 1 doubling of fares, Transport Minister Jack Davis said today.

The minister said he has not read weekend reports about Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair promising a review of the new ferry fares but stressed there are no plans to take a second look.

He said he would be "very surprised" if the new rates were ever rolled back, although in the long term the government plans to set up a regulatory system for reviewing all government charges to consumers.

But that process is likely many months away, he said.

At some period long in the future "maybe five or 10 years from now" a fare rollback on the ferries might be ordered, said Davis, but with costs where they stand today it will not happen for some time.

Mair has denied reports which quoted him as saying he expected a review of the rates before the June 1 increases go into effect.

Mair was quoted as telling the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities' convention Friday the new fares will hurt the tourist industry and the government would likely review them.

"I can't remember the questions or the answers I gave," he said, Sunday referring to a 30-minute question period after his speech to the Campbell River convention. "But I certainly didn't indicate that the government is planning any review. I wasn't speaking for the government or the department."

Meanwhile, the four Vancouver Island labor councils expressed their dissatisfaction Saturday with the doubling, and in some cases tripling of ferry fares. They met at Nanaimo and sent a telegram to Premier Bennett requesting a meeting to discuss the layoff of 420 ferry workers and the effect of the fare increases.

Labor delegates said the new fares will constitute a major threat to the economy of Vancouver Island and the Sunshine Coast.

Special Instrument (right) "exposes" Nootka's inner tracts

When a Whale Is Blue . . .

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

It could be spring fever.

If it is, it's the most expensive bout in history.

Nootka, mate of Sealand of the Pacific's killer whale Haida, has been off her feed for several days.

Sealand manager Angus Matthews said today after days of mecial testing an international team of experts has been unable to diagnose why she is not eating.

"It's pretty hard to believe but it could be spring fever," he said.

Matthews, who was married on Saturday, has postponed his honeymoon until Nootka is off the shoals.

Assisting Sealand's veterinarian Dr. Allan Hoey in taking tests of Nootka today was Dr. John Allen, a marine mannal expert from New Zealand.

Allen was attending an international conference of scientists in Seattle last week and flew to Victoria on learning of Nootka's problem.

Also on the team examining Nootka was Dr. Jay Sweeney, a research marine veterinarian, who works at the United States naval marine centre in San Diego.

When blood samples and other tersts failed to show any cause why Nootka should be off her food, two doctors from the University of Washington's hospital in Seattle were flown by charter plane to Sealand on Friday.

The two doctors are gastroenterologists.

2 Men Gunned Down In City Club Argument

Two men were gunned down before 150 people at the Dockyard Recreation Association Club Sunday night and a 43-year-old Esquimalt man is in custody charged with two counts of attempted murder.

Joseph Halasz of 819 Wollaston appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning and was remanded to Friday for plea and bail hearing.

He is charged in connection with the shooting of Richard Cory Small, 32, of 519 Constance, and John Warren Ingham, 29, of 825 Admirals.

Both are in Victoria General Hospital. Small is in poor condition with a bullet wound to his neck. Ingham, wounded in his chest, is in fair condition.

An Esquimalt police spokesman said the shooting occurred shortly after 11 p.m. He said an argument had apparently broken out between three men and one of them pulled a handgun and fired twice.

The spokesman said three members of the Esquimalt police force and two Military Police attended and found Small and Ingham sprawled on the floor with club members administering first aid.

He said another man was off to one side sitting in a chair and being watched by other club members who told police they had disarmed him.

Police said a .25 calibre semi-automatic Browning was seized.

WORKERS' SABOTAGE AFFECTING OLYMPICS

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Rouleau, chairman of the Olympic installations board, said Sunday that progress on the main stadium site has been affected by a work slowdown and acts of sabotage by some plumbers and electricians.

"The completion of the stadium is not yet in question," Rouleau told The Canadian Press. "But if we have problems like this for a week we may be in trouble."

If the work disruptions which started late last week continue, they could force the closure of the construction site, he said. But he added that he hopes a shutdown will not be necessary.

"Most of the workers on the site have been working very hard and I lift my hat to them," Rouleau said in a telephone interview. "But some of the plumbers and electricians have been cutting pipes and wires, and I've had enough."

He did not specify the estimated cost of damages or the extent of delays caused by what he described as acts of sabotage.

NEWS BRIEFS

Thorpe Resigns

LONDON (Reuter) — Jeremy Thorpe resigned today as leader of Britain's Liberal party after weeks of crisis over allegations that he once had a sexual relationship with a male model. Thorpe, 47, had led the country's third-largest political party since January, 1967.

Nurses Walk Out

MONTREAL (CP) — About 5,500 nurses in five cities, including Montreal, began a 24 hour work stoppage this morning in response to the slow pace of contract negotiations with the provincial government.

Lira Stronger

ROME (Reuter) — The lira strengthened on the Milan foreign-exchange market tday, opening nearly three per cent higher than its closing rate Friday. Dealers said the lira was being quoted at about 830 to the U.S. dollar, compared with 855 on Friday.

Italian-Born Canadians Offered Quake-Site Flights

Times News Services

As more tremors rolled through north-eastern Italy today Alitalia announced in Toronto it will offer free flights to their Italian hometowns to Canadian citizens born in the area recently hit by a devastating earthquake.

An airline spokesman said persons producing proof of birth from their local Italian consulates will be given free economy flights until May 13.

About 145 persons left Toronto during the weekend on flights to Rome to search for relatives in the stricken area.

Also in Toronto, a telethon Sunday raised $658,000 for earthquake relief work. The telethon originally was planned to raise money for a geritric centre for Metropolitan Toronto Italians, but air time was turned over to the Friuli Emergency Fund.

Two more strong quakes were felt Sunday in northeasten Italy and western Yugoslavia. No casualties were reported from them. But the official toll from the quake Thursday rose to 812 dead and more than 2,000 injured.

Rescue operations continue in the villages. Three women were found alive early Sunday, more than 50 hours after the quake. Police expressed the belief that at least 400 more persons are buried in the debris, and there is little hope of finding any of them alive.

The first mass burial was held Sunday in Maiano.

REPRISAL FEARED

BONN (Reuter) — Police throughout West Germany were on the alert today for possible left-wing guerrilla reprisals after Ulrike Meinhof, founder of a gang blamed for a series of urban bombings, was found hanged in her jail cell.

Mrs. Meinhof, discovered hanging from a strip of towel in her solitary jail cell in Stuttgart Sunday morning, had been on trial for almost a year accused of involvement in bombings that killed five persons in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

A defence lawyer in her trial, Otto Schily, Sunday night demanded an international inquiry into what he called her "alleged suicide." Another lawyer, Giovanni Capetti, said Mrs. Meinhof, visited in prison on Friday, had not given the impression of "someone who had given up."

Government and justice officials said her suicide may lead to violent protest by sympathizers of her group, named after Mrs. Meinhof and cofounder Andreas Baader.

Ships, Planes, Tanks in Proposal

MONTREAL — Major contracts for the construction of 20 new destroyers are expected to go to shipyards in Quebec City, Montreal and Sorel, Que., if proposals of the chief of defence staff are accepted by the federal cabinet, a Montreal newspaper says.

In a weekend report, the Gazette says the proposal calls for new fighter planes and tanks in addition to the helicopter - equipped destroyers.

Cost of the destroyers was estimated at more than $2 billion and the fighter planes, about the same. Tanks worth $400 million would be bought under a separate plan.

The tanks and aircraft would be bought abroad, but the proposals strongly suggest that the ships be designed and built in Canada.

The plans are said to be an offshoot of Defence Minister James Richardson's announcement in the Commons last Nov. 27 that the government is planning to re-equip the armed forces.

Army advisers are trying to decide between the Leopard 1 and Leopard 2 tanks, built in West Germany. The air force has been asked to decide whether it can replace the CF-5, CF-104 and Voodoo aircraft with a single model, probably the U.S.-built F-16.

Differing propositions for the ships have been forwarded to Ottawa. Some designers are pushing for a ship with ice-breaking capabilities, while the Navy League of Canada has urged the purchase of more gas-turbine powered destroyers like the last four delivered to the navy, the newspaper says.

The Gazette says the navy itself favors a Canadian-designed and Canadian-built ship that would be turbine-powered, cost about $100 million, weigh 3,500 tons, take a crew of 160 and carry helicopters.

Twenty such ships would be built over a period of 18 years.

The newspaper quotes a spokesman for Richardson as saying the cabinet may not rule on the proposals until later this year because of other pressing business.

Vic High

The Reunion Is Over

But the Memory Lingers

HONOR OF CUTTING black and gold iced cake at pioneer tea went to one of the oldest living graduates of Vic High, Cecil (Hardie) Leeming, from the class of 1902. Mrs. Leeming was born in 1883. (John McKay photo)

At Government House, people , people . . . and more people.

Days of Sunshine . . .

Two glorious days of sunshine and memories at the weekend rolled up Victoria High School's 100th anniversary reunion for more than 10,000 participants.

Better than 1,000 an hour turned up for class reunions, sports events, a look at the school archives and a chance to turn back the years with friends and old teachers in a day-long program Saturday.

The same brilliant sunshine stayed on for Sunday when thousands reassembled at Government House for tea and more socializing on the laws, after a night of dancing to the music of Mart Kenney at Memorial Arena.

The Vic High reunion was successful beyond the wildest hopes of its organizers, but like the years at school it became today one more memory in a catalogue spanning most of this century.

A few of the old classmates from each decade were asked to recall their best thoughts of their Vic High years.

One of the oldest of the Old Boys was there in 1905, Johnny MacRae, now of Shelton, Wash., a chum of former jurist Mr. Justice Tom Norris, who was too ill to attend.

With trembling hands he produced a creased and stained copy of an early yearbook and turned to a poem extolling Johnny MacRae's prowess on the rink. His school years were fun:

"Instead of joy-riding, we used to take a girl in a canoe up the Gorge."

Grace Fynn, class of 1917, had a strong recollection of the First World War, which more than spanned her years at Vic High:

"Some of our best teachers went off to war . . . We were working so hard for the Red Cross knitting a sock a day."

John Zarelli, 1923, paid tribute to "a fine staff of inspiring teachers," but also was fond of the social life: "We learned to dance."

Dorothy Urquhart, 1927, who designed the school pin, remembers the encouragement given to young artists. Her best recollection was "Capt. A. M. Boyd's art gallery. He had a gallery in his room to which all the kids contributed pictures."

Jim Robinson, 1940: "I remember Lewis Clark well, I was in his home room. Strict but fair and never played favorites."

Bindo Dillon, 1946, made many friends and joined a lot of school activites. Though only 4 feet 9½ inches, she made the girls' rep basketball team each year, and remembers passing off her sister Bosso's (1949) report card as her own.

Ray Lee, 1950: "I was new here then, and remember meeting a whole new bunch of people. There was an awfully good staff here. Sports activities were really quite good."

Mary Wickstrom, 1955: "The friends I made. Twenty years later, they're still here."

Bruce Chan, 1960: "Things were very strict. We really had to toe the line; we had our place, and we had to work. Victor Thomson, he ran this place like a ship."

Two grads said something for everyone.

Jane Vaesen, 1965: "Just being part of the school tradition. I didn't belong to anything, just enjoyed being here."

Teatime for Alma (Heyer) Snyder, 1925, from Carstairs, Alta.

MEMBERS OF CLASS of '46 bringing each other up to date are Rosemarie (Austin) Haddad, Vancouver; Lee and Ed Weber, Delta, and Ann (Greenwood) Dunae, 775 Cowper. Reunited grads filled Arena wall-to-wall for Saturday ball.

MODISH RICK (1963) and Wendy Thomas, 115 Robertson, sidelined for the moment at centennial ball where estimated 7,000 packed Memorial Arena 'til 1 a.m. Sunday.

'Brazen' Convicts Escape Wilkinson

Vancouver Island police are searching for two Wilkinson Road inmates who bolted from the jail's exercise yard Saturday night, climbed a fence and fled across a field ignoring two shotgun blasts fired by a guard.

Prison director Hal McGillivray called the escape one of the most brazen in the history of the jail.

He identified the escapers as Richard Ernest Alexander, 21, of Campbell River, and George Wesley Kenny, 20, of Nanaimo.

Both men, who were awaiting trial on separate narcotics offences up-Island, had escaped from the jail once before, on April 5.

McGillivray said Alexander and Kenny were in a group of 30 inmates taking exercise in the yard. As the men were being led back to their cell-block at 8 p.m., the two bolted from the line.

They ran for a far corner of the yard on the northeast side, climbed a 10-foot fence, over five strands of barbed wire, and fled across the open field on the other side.

McGillivray said a guard fired a warning shot over their heads and when they didn't stop aimed directly at them and fired again. But by that time they were out of range.

There was no way the guards could pursue the pair, McGillivray said, because "their first job had to be to contain the remaining 28 from escaping too."

Saanich police were on the scene within minutes, McGillivray said, and started a search of the bush behind the jail. An RCMP helicopter was brought in and tracking dogs sent from the RCMP detachment in Nanaimo.

Saanich police Staff-Sgt. Robin Stewart said officers and prison guards searched the area for the better part of the night.

Police said neither man is considered dangerous. Alexander is described at black, five feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes.

Kenny is white, five feet eight inches tall, 140 pounds, with brown hair and eyes.

Both men were wearing green institutional clothing.

SMILING Shirley May, a 17-year-old student at Reynolds Senior Secondary, was chosen May Queen Sunday and will be crowned at an official ceremony on the steps of the legislature May 23 during Victorian Days celebrations. Chosen princesses at the judging Sunday at Saanich Municipal Hall were Barbara Rainsford, of Esquimalt Senior Secondary and Caroline Vanderboor, of Mount Douglas. (Bill Halkett photo)

Rapist Receives 15 Months

Mr. Justice John Gould today handed out what he called his lightest sentence ever to a 41-year-old Victoria man convicted last month of rape.

William Robert Robinson was sentenced to 15 months in jail and Gould recommended it be spent where treatment is available for alcoholism.

Robinson, in a brief comment to the Supreme Court, said "I am my own worst enemy," and added he will do his best to never drink again.

Gould noted that Robinson has already spent three months in jail and both he and the complainant, aged 54, were "very drunk."

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang said it was "quite clear" Robinson is an alcoholic and alcohol was involved in the offence. He suggested a sentence of two and half to three years.

First Pick Three Quarts of Dandelions

WE LOOKED OUT THE other day to see one of our neighbors roving a yellow-spangled vacant lot with a plastic pail in his hand. At first we thought he was collecting greens for his rabbits. Then we noticed that he was nipping off only the heads of those hosting dandelions.

"Wish he'd come over and pick ours," I grumbled.

"I don't," Win said. "We may have a use for them."

With the exception of little children and nature-salad fanciers, nobody has any use for the tough and prolific dandelion. I said as much.

"You're forgetting about dandelion wine," my dear one said. "I had some once, and it was really good."

I'd forgotten about the dark and tangy elixir — hadn't even heard it spoken of for years. The mention of it brought back memories. In the country towns of my boyhood, mothers would send their children out to pick dandelions at the height of the springtime, with explicit instructions.

Just the flower heads, mind! No stems and no grass leaves. And try not to get too many bugs in the pail.

"You make it in a stone crock," I said. "While it's working, it fusses and bubbles and gives off the damnedest smell."

But Win was off to ask for the recipe.

She came back with a copy. We rounded up a couple of ice-cream buckets and went out to harvest a grass plot that could pass for the Field of the Cloth of Gold.

"No stems, remember," Win told me, her fingers already dyed orange by the dandelion juice. "They make the wine too bitter."

We picked industriously. Sometimes we paused to debug an opulent yellow head. I remembered the double standard that used to exist where such home-brewed aperitifs as blackberry cordial and dandelion wine were concerned.

Strait-laced ladies of temperance convictions who looked on store-bought liquor as the devil's agent took pride in their dandelion wine. A thimbleful served with dark, rich fruit cake in the parlor purified the blood and tempered the spleen. They regarded it as a tonic, in no way to be bracketed with the Demon Rum and its pernicious allies. An alcoholic beverage? Nonsense!

We picked three mounded buckets of dandelion heads, then drove to town to hunt up a stone crock. Inflation has got in its licks on stone crocks too: but the technological revolution has produced acceptable substitute containers. We settled for a plastic garbage can.

"That small one should be just right," Win decided.

The clerk nodded. He glanced at my fingers, which still showed a trace of orange.

"Going to make dandelion wine, eh?" he said. "I hope yours turns out better than my last batch!"

Home again, we dumped our dandelions into the new can. We'd done pretty well by the no-stems injunction, and only a corporal's guard of bugs toiled up the sides of the containers.

Win put water on to heat — 14 quarts of it on four burners. When the water came to a boil, we poured it over the dandelions.

"Too bad for any bugs left in there," Win said, "but maybe they'll add a little something to the flavor!"

Following the recipe, we let the dandelions soak overnight.

Next day, we poured off the liquid. Win strained it and put it on to warm while I dumped the dandelion heads into our compost for recycling. Then Win cut up oranges and a lemon while I grated ginger and fingernails.

With the warmed extraction returned to the can, in went the other ingredients. Orange and lemon chunks. The ginger. Two cups of raisins, nine pounds of sugar, and to finish off, one tablespoon of yeast sprinkled on a slice of toast.

Our dandelion wine in the making now sits in a sheltered nook where it won't be tripped over. Once a day, it receives a cautious stirring. It remains only for time and ferment to get in their licks.

The slice of yeasted toast has expanded to three times its original size. The smell when the can lid is lifted is highly promising. It's plain that elemental forces are at work in there.

"When do we get to sample it?" I asked in the course of this morning's inspection.

"Six months from now, Win said, putting the lid firmly in place. "In a little glass, with a piece of fruitcake!"

Esquimalt Zoning Hearing Tonight

A two-day public hearing for 306 residents affected by an Esquimalt zoning bylaw which restricts development density in the municipality will be held tonight and Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the recreation centre on Fraser Street.

The largest public hearing since major zoning changes in 1957, the hearing will discuss bylaws covering pockets of property in two main areas west of Admirals and Esquimalt and Craigflower and Colville.

Zoning committee chairman Ald. Jim McEvay says the bulk of changes are the creation of three new zones; a low density apartment R3L which limits heights to two storeys; a medium density townhouse at 12 units an acre, and a low-density townhouse zone at nine units an acre.

Most of the 45 acres to be down-zoned from R-3 will switch to the townhouse zoning with duplex and R3L following. Mayor Art Young sees the down-zoning as "a major step in reorganizing Esquimalt as a family base."

Thrust of the move is to meet the Capital Regional Board's regional plan, which set a target population for the municipality at 18,500 for the year 1996. Under existing zoning the population could reach 21,600.

Municipal clerk George Merz has sent out abot 8,000 letters to occupiers and owners directly or indirectly affected by the reduced zoning.

Indications are the hearings are going to be lively.

"People see us as taking money out of their pockets; but it's all in their minds," said Mayor Young. "We've been talking about it for three or four years and I don't see how anyone in the developing business could have been caught short."

Pioneer Dies

The daughter of a pioneer Vancouver family who married into B.C.'s most prominent mercantile chain died Sunday at her West Vancouver home.

Gertrude Isabel Spencer, 84, only daughter of Richard Vance Winch, owner of seven coastal canneries, was the widow of Col. Victor Spencer, one of the five sons of the storekeeping family which sold its chain of stores in 1948 to Eaton's.

Col. Spencer died in 1960.

ANTI-ABORTION VIGILS HELD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Anti-abortion groups held vigils outside Greater Vancouver area hospitals Sunday to protest abortions carried on inside the hospitals.

At Vancouver General Hospital, striking hospital employee union members moved their picket lines to allow about 200 people to hold a vigil outside the hospital's main entrance.

Demonstrations were also held at the Lions Gate Hospital in North Vancouver, Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster, Burnaby General Hospital, Surrey Memorial Hospital and Richmond General Hospital, each of which were attended by between 50 and 100 people.

Betty Green, chairman of the British Columbia Pro-Life Society, said anti-abortion groups will go to Victoria on Wednesday to put pressure on Health Minister Bob McLelland and Attorney-General Garde Gardom to end abortions in B.C. hospitals.

Jubilee Goes on Strike At Dawn Tuesday

operations can take place. Among the 59 HEU employees designated as essential by the Labor Relations Board were hart pump operators for open heart surgery.

The strike affects the Eric Martin Institute and Memorial Pavilion (the former Veterans Hospital) as well as the main building at the Jubilee. There are about 220 patients in the Memorial Pavilion, most of them long-term cases, and they will not be moved. A few acute care patients in the pavilion may be moved later into the main building to consolidate that type of care.

The hospital sent home 56 of the 110 patients in the EMI.

All out-patient care has been cancelled during strike except for the cancer clinic which remains in full operation. The closure means there will be no X-rays, laboratory services and electro-diagnostic services for out-patients.

Pickles said the hospital should be able to operate for an extended period of time, if necessary, at the reeduced level of service.

There would be no reduction in service for emergency care at any time during the strike.

Meanwhile, the union prepared to deliver strike signs from Vancouver to Victoria this evening.

The HEU workers going on strike include orderlies, dieticians, clerical workers and other housekeeping groups.

The picket line will be open, which means essential medical employees may cross without being hindered in any way.

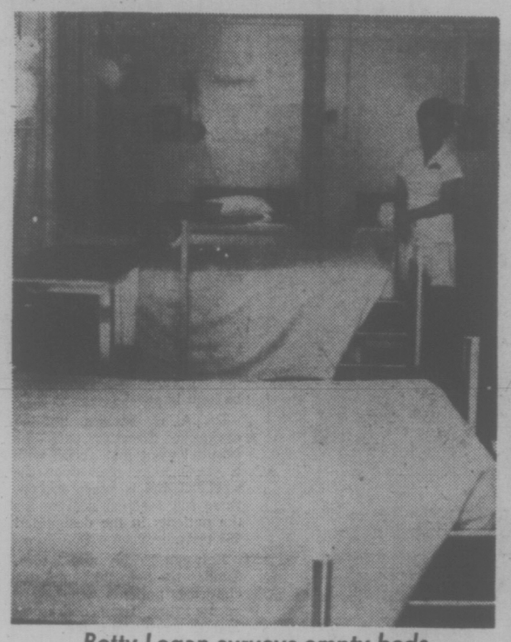
Truck deliveries will be stopped and inquiries made to ascertain whether the product is essential to the health care of the patients.

For example a routine delivery of oxygen would be stopped but an emergency shipment of oxygen would be permitted to cross the picket line.

Seventy-two hour strike notice at the Jubilee expired at 12:50 p.m. today but the strike was delayed until Tuesday morning in hopes of a break in the wage negotiations, Gerow said.

The union is seeking implementation of the contract settlement proposal by industrial inquiry commissioner Bert Blair. The Blair reprot recommended a one-year contract providing wage and benefit increases estimated at between 13 and 15 per cent for the 16,000 union members in the province. The hospitals offered eight per cent.

Labor Minister Allan Williams scheduled meetings today with the Hospital Labor Relations Association, which represents management, and said he would not comment until after the meetings.



Betty Logan surveys empty beds.

The strike by 2,100 HEU members at Vancouver General Hospital is in its seventh day. Strikes may be called at any time at Burnaby General, Lions Gate in North Vancouver, Surrey Memorial and Langley Memorial, union sources said. The union may begin a series of rotating strikes, allowing the Vancouver General and Jubilee to return to full oeprations after a short strike.

Strike votes are planned at Shaughnessy Hospital, the Royal Columbian in New Westminster and hospitals in Kelowna and Trail.

Strike notice expired at 11:40 a.m. today at the Victorial General but there would be no immediate strike, union sources said.

After the Jubilee strike is under way, "the situation at the Victoria General would be considered," Gerow said.

At Victoria General, executive director Jim Fair said some elective surgery has been postponed in anticipation that the beds will be needed for emergency cases.

There are a maximum of 429 beds at the Victoria General and about 330 patients at the moment. About 60 patients were discharged during the weekend.

Fair said some elective surgery would continue, especially any cases related to cancer, and full services would be maintained for emergency care and to handle any referrals from the Jubilee.

Earthquake Relief Fund Opens Here

Members of the Italian community in Victoria decided Sunday to open a disaster relief fund for victims of severe earthquakes last week in north Italy.

Starting with a $1,000 donation from the Victoria Italian Assistance Centre at Leonardo da Vinci hall, 195 Bay, the fund will accept donations from members, the public at large and possibly money-raising functions such as bingo, spokesmen said today.

Donations may be made in person or mail to the above adress, marked earthquake relief fund. Office hours are 6-9 p.m.

Members of the relief committee are Guiseppe Rosso, Antonio Scandale and Salvatore Barresi, who like most of former Italians living here is from the southern provinces.

Angry Salt Springers Protest Ferry Rates

The provincial government promised in 1961 to keep ferry fares low for Salt Spring Island residents and the angry Islanders are not going to let the government forget it.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis will be reminded of a 15-year-old promise at what will amount to a protest rally on the Island Friday.

Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce spokesman Gil Humphries said people on the islands are "terribly upset" about what amounts to a 400 per cent increase in fares on the two ferries from Vancouver Island.

Islanders realize ferry fares must increase and are not concerned about a hike in regular fares but abolition of special commuter fares will mean a drastic increase in their cost of living, he said.

A man who commutes to Crofton Mill to work, for example, faces a $900 a year increase in costs, not to mention its effect on costs of goods on the island.

The island ferries paid for themselves when it was still owned by a private firm and it's only recently it's begun to lose money, said Humphries.

But he believes the major losses are on other ferry routes and the new ferry rates would mean islanders are subsidizing other ferry systems.

Norman Mouat, a director of the private firm that operated the ferries up until 1961, said there was a verbal agreement at that time that low ferry fares would be retained for Island residents.

Mouat said he wouldn't accuse the government of breaking a promise since fares have been kept the same for 15 years, but, like other Islanders, he feels commuter tickets should still be cheaper. cheaper.

"I'm not questioning the doubling of the fares, but we take great exception to making the regular commuters who support the system all year 'round have a 400 per cent increase," said Mouat.

The local Social Credit constituency association was having a meeting with their MLA, Hugh Curtis Friday night but now the meeting has turned into a protest rally for Salt Spring Islanders.

Humphries said the meeting is expected to be packed with angry commuters.

"Lately they (the government) have been trying to turn the Gulf Islands into a tourist attraction and if they want tourists to pay more to get on the islands that's fine with us, but some people have been using commuter tickets that aren't entitled to them and we think that should stop too," said Humphries.

Dr. Fred Silverstein, assisted by Dr. Robert Pretell, examined Nootka's stomach, using a colonoscope, a sophisticated instrument normally used to examine the large intenstine of humans.

Again, the scientists drew a blank. The stomach was clear of infection.

Nootka, believed by Sweeney to be about three years old, now measures 13½ feet and weighs in at 1,950 pounds.

As if she knew of Matthews' marriage, she ate a small amount of herring on Saturday.

Gandhi Off To Russia

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi will pay an official visit to the Soviet Union beginning June 8, the government announced today.

"Prime Minister Indira Gandhi will pay a friendly and official visit to the Soviet Union from June 8 in response to an invitation from the general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party L. I. Brezhnev," the announcement said.

Mrs. Gandhi last visited the Soviet Union in mid-1971, shortly before the Indo-Pakistan War that saw the birth of Bangladesh.

Crash Kills 16

HUETE, Spain (Reuter) — An Iranian air force jumbo jet freighter exploded in the air and crashed Sunday, killing all 16 persons aboard, an Iranian embassy spokesman said today.

Loggers' Bodies Identified

PORT HARDY — Bodies of two north Vancouver Island loggers found in a river Saturday were identified today by the RCMP.

John Arthur Balkwill and Franklin Percy Miller, both 20, apparently were trapped when their car went off a bridge sometime overnight Friday. The submerged car was reported Saturday morning by a passing truck driver.

The men were from the Holberg camp of Rayonier Canada Ltd.

the weather

The warm temperatures which occurred Sunday over much of the province established one new record of 29 for Kamloops breaking their previous record high for the date of 28 which was set in 1969. Sundays warm temperatures over the Vancouver and Victoria areas will end today. The major depression now covering all of the Gulf of Alaska has forced a broad area of cloud and rain into the coastal area. This will spread slowly eastward today and inland weakening in the process. The next system in this series will begin to affect the north coast late Tuesday otherwise a return to generally sunny skies is forecast for Tuesday except for some rain lingering along the Rockies.
